CLASH OVER TARIFF

Party Leaders in the Senate Come to Grips on Proposed Legislation.

SIMMONS OPENS ATTACK

And Smoot Replies in Defense of the Bill Advocated by Republicans.

THE VARE VOTE PLEASES

G. O. P. Leaders See Good Chance for the Bill in Step to Speed Up Action.

(By the Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The tariff leaders of the Democratic and Republican parties in the senate came to grips today. Senator Simmons of North Carolina, Democrat, charged and Senator Smoot of Utah, Republican, denied that the pending tariff bill would raise consumers' costs by billions of dollars.

Senator Simmons delivered a Democratic "keynote" speech on the tariff, explaining the opposition to the bill. Veteran of many a tariff war, Simmons outlined the battle plans of the Democratic-insurgent coalition, which seeks to eliminate Republican administrative provisions and slash Republican protective rates.

Smoot Has a Word.

Following Senator Simmons, Senator Smoot of Utah, Republican, asserted that "powerful forces" were at work at home and abroad to break down the policy of American tariff protection.

Smoot said repeated criticisms from the minority on the tariff were losing force because they were "ill-timed and premature."

He asserted the Democratic party was still a "low or competitive tariff party" and charged that the attack on the pending bill was aided by "internationalists willing to betray American interests."

Interprets Hoover Message.

The Utah senator asserted President Hoover, in his message to congress, doubtless meant revision of industrial as well as farm commodity rates where investigation revealed it necessary. He said the senate had refused to limit revision to agriculture and added that both houses were free to readjust existing law wherever conditions justified it.

The tariff bill now has the right of way in the senate over all other legislative activities. The coalition's effort to inject the Vare case into the special session went down to defeat when the senate voted, 41 to 34, to postpone action on the question until after the tariff bill is passed.

Pleased Over Vare Vote.

The vote, which had no bearing whatever on the seating of Vare, indicated the administration could command a majority in the senate on tariff matters, even though a few insurgents opposed it. While nine Republicans, all insurgents, voted with the Democrats, the Republican organization won by gaining five Democratic votes. The result pleased Republican leaders.

"It was a very decided victory," said Senator Watson of Indiana, majority leader. "I am very glad the senate voted to keep the tariff under consideration. That was very hopeful. I believe now we will be able to pass the tariff at the special session.

Might Have Blocked Action.

"If we had taken up the Vare case, it would have been debated for a month. That has been the rule in other contests over senatorial seats. With so much time lost, it would have been impossible to enact the bill at this session."

Coalition leaders, however, asserted the vote was no indication of how the senate would treat the Republican rates in the bill. They pointed out that twenty senators were absent, including nine Democrats, a Farmer-Laborite and three insurgents. If all had been present and voting, the vote would have been much closer. They assert a better indication of tariff strength will be found on the first vote to change the administrative features of the bill.

Into the Flexible Provision.

The administrative provisions incidentally will be considered first and the rates afterwards. The first important feature reached under this program will be the flexible tariff provision, giving the President power to raise or lower rates to meet "changing conditions of competition." The new provision, rather widening the President's present powers, will be opposed by the coalition. If it is stricken from the bill, the coalition will have struck a heavy blow at the administration.

The Vare case, meantime, will slip back on the legislative shelf it has occupied most of the last three years. It probably will be disposed of this year, and Vare probably will be able to appear in his own defense. His physician announced the Philadelphian rapidly was recovering from a stroke of paralysis and would be able to appear here in December. His fate is a foregone conclusion—he will be denied his seat, whenever the vote is taken.

NINE OBJECTIONS TO BILL.

Senator Simmons Gives Reasons for Opposing Tariff.

(By the Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Nine "outstanding objections" to the pending tariff bill were enumerated in a speech in the senate today by Senator Simmons of North Carolina, who opened fire on the Republican measure for the Democrats by declaring it would add billions of dollars to the annual tax burden imposed upon the consuming masses.

Aiming his castigation not only at the administrative and special feature of the bill, but at proposed increased rates as well, the veteran minority tariff leader gave the following reasons why he could not support it:

It contains many rates and increases upon agricultural products that are useless and ineffective.

It is replete with exorbitant rates on articles which farmers buy.

It contains numerous instances of higher rates on articles used by the masses than on articles of identical use, but purchased principally by persons of wealth or of more than average means.

It does not conform to President Hoover's request for increases on industrial products only when there has been a slackening of employment due to imports. In many cases increases have been granted to industries which have been very prosperous under the present tariff act.

It is full of inconsistencies and unfair discriminations.

It increases rates on many articles even though the imports under the present tariff act have been negligible.

It encourages inefficiency by many of its increases in rates.

Its excessive increases on many articles imperil our trade with European countries.

By its liberalization of the flexible provisions, enlarging the powers and discretion of the President, the latitude allowed the President in the imposition of additional duties is dangerously expanded.

PAPERS CHECK A LOTTERY.

Washington Publications Take Action Against Game of "Numbers."

(By the Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Two Washington newspapers—the Evening Star and the Daily News, a tabloid—today discontinued, at the request of United States Attorney Rover, publication of daily New York and Washington clearing house figures and federal treasury balances which are used by gamblers in operating a game known as "Numbers."

The News also agreed to stop publishing all race track data, except that from Maryland tracks, where, it explained, racing and parimutuel betting are legal, while the Times, another daily, agreed to move the financial figures from the first page to its regular financial columns inside.

No change in the policy of the capital's other daily papers has been announced.

The Kansas City Clearing House a few years ago stopped giving out the exact daily bank clearings, then forming a basis for number lotteries and "suit clubs." Since then the bank clearings have been made public in terms of even thousands. The last three figures previously had been used in the lotteries The clearing house action was taken when telephone calls for early information of the day's clearings became frequent and after an attempt or two had been made to have an inconsequential figure altered.

Grain storage figures also have been used by lotteries.

BULLET HOLE IN DIRIGIBLE.

The All-Metal Airship Is Fired on During Flight.

(By the Associated Press.)

LAKEHURST, N. J., Sept. 12.—The metal dirigible ZMC-2, being delivered to the navy department from Detroit, arrived shortly before noon today with a bullet hole in its main helium gas chamber.

Capt. William Kepner of the army, who flew the ship from Detroit, was unaware he had been shot at until the ship was safely in the hangar and the bullet hole was discovered by a member of the landing crew.

It will be recalled that on the last leg of the Graf Zeppelin a bullet hole was found in the fabric covering when the ship landed at Lakehurst from Los Angeles. The navy dirigible Los Angeles also has been fired on several times.

The ZMC-2 is the first all metal dirigible to fly successfully, although several have been built, both here and abroad. The sheath of the ZMC-2 is of thin aluminum alloy and the helium lifting gas is pumped directly into this tin bubble instead of being carried in cells as in the fabric dirigibles.

NEW WAY TO CATCH BANDITS.

A Victim Puts Car in Reverse, Spilling the Robbers.

(By the Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Roy Halquist put his car into reverse last night, thereby taking the joy out of life for two highway robbers.

The bandits had relieved Halquist of $29 and were standing behind his car waving their pistols and admonishing him to be on his way. Halquist shoved into reverse and stepped on the gas. The car shot back and spilled the robbers.

Police got there in time to arrest one, but the other, with greater recuperative powers, got away.

A BRITISH BID TO SOVIET.

New Steps Are Taken Toward Resuming Relations.

(By the Associated Press.)

LONDON, Sept. 12.—Great Britain today took new steps toward resuming commercial and diplomatic relations with Soviet Russia. The British government sent to the Norwegian government, for transmission to the Russian government, a note expressing the view the time had come when it would be desirable to resume the conversations interrupted several months ago by the departure of the Soviet plenipotentiary, Dovgalevsky.

READY MIX PROBE, MAYBE

PAGE SAYS MAYOR WILL BE GIVEN OPPORTUNITY TO TESTIFY.

Beach's "Responsibility" in Divulging Facts Supporting Recent Charges Is Cited by the County Prosecutor.

One of the first questions presented James R. Page, county prosecutor, today on his return from a vacation in Texas involved the charge made by Mayor Beach in a political speech last week that contractors virtually were forced to use Ready-Mixed concrete in their building operations.

The matter was presented Mr. Page by T. A. J. Mastin, an assistant prosecutor, with whom H. F. McElroy, city manager, took up the charges Tuesday. After the charges had been outlined to him by Mr. Mastin, Mr. Page said the mayor or others having knowledge of corruption would be given an opportunity to present their evidence to the next grand jury, to be impaneled in about three weeks.

INTO MURDER TRIALS FIRST.

Delay in calling a grand jury for this term of court was necessitated by the murder trials growing out of the indictment of persons in the Prospect avenue drug store blast last month, he said. Those cases are set for trial next Monday and Mr. Page said his office would not have time to prepare for a grand jury until the murder cases had been disposed of.

Mr. Page said that if the question involved just a political fight between the Republican mayor and the Democratic city manager, the prosecutor's office would not be interested in it, but that if the mayor or anyone else had evidence tending to prove the truth of the charges, then it was a matter for grand jury investigation.

"If the mayor of this city knows of any crimes being committed and he is not willing to come and tell the prosecuting attorney's office about them," Mr. Page said, "or if as mayor he knows that crimes are being committed and is not willing to come to the prosecutor's office and lodge a complaint against the parties committing the crimes, or at least is not willing to come over and ask that a grand jury be impaneled to investigate, and let him voluntarily, with his witnesses, come before the grand jury, then he is not honestly representing the city and is no better than anyone else who is protecting crime or refusing to divulge facts that would enable criminals to be prosecuted and convicted.

WILL BE CALLED BEFORE JURY.

"When the grand jury is impaneled the mayor will be requested to present any facts which he has or anyone else who may have any facts proving or tending to prove the statements which I understand the mayor made," Mr. Page added.

"I have every reason to believe the charge I made was true," Mayor Beach reiterated today. "If the city administration is honest in its desire to obtain information along this line, I believe it will not take a grand jury to do it. Such charges have been current so long that the administration should be able to find out for itself what it says now it desires to know."

When asked whether, if he were summoned before a grand jury, he would divulge the name of his informant, which he refused to give the council when requested by resolution Monday night, Mayor Beach said he was a lawyer and would not discuss any matters regarding probable action of a grand jury.

Professor Schmidt, Russian scientist and geographer, announced no trace had been found in any of the seacoast settlements on the huge island of the heroic Norwegian or his companions.

NO BLUE-GRAY REUNION

THE G. A. R. TABLES PROPOSAL FOR COMBINED SESSION.

"Question" Which Brought on War Is Called "Dead and Forever Dead," but It Comes to Life in Discussion.

(By the Associated Press.)

PORTLAND, ME., Sept. 12.—The Grand Army of the Republic, in sixty-third national encampment here today, laid on the table the proposal for a reunion of the soldiers of the North and South.

The action was taken on a minority report of the committee on resolutions forming the reunion. A large "aye" vote sent the report to the "table."

Leroy T. Carleton of Winthrop, Me., who presented the minority report, got a round of applause from the veterans when he called for a "final reunion of the Blue and Gray" in 1930 or 1931.

He asserted the "question" which brought on the war was dead and forever dead.

Carleton's motion was seconded by Ira Wildman, past commander of the department of Connecticut, who told of returning Confederate flags, and said he was "received with open arms."

Stirring and impassioned speeches were made by several of the delegates. Major Gage of Chicago, in a calm, dispassionate talk, pleaded with the delegates.

"We are all Americans today and for God's sake don't mar your record," he said.

The encampment selected Cincinnati as the place for its meeting next year.

THE SUN TO REMAIN HIDDEN.

There Is a Slight Possibility of Rain Here Tonight.

Cloudy tonight with a slight possibility of rain, and partly cloudy tomorrow and continued cool, is the expectation of R. L. Anderson, assistant to P. Connor. The minimum temperature tomorrow should be about 50 degrees, Mr. Anderson said.

The rain today measured .60 inch here. Northern Kansas and Northwest Missouri received showers. Horton, Kas., reported .95 inch and St. Joseph .82 inch.

HOOVER WON'T VISIT WEST.

The Trip to Texas Is Given Up by President.

(By the Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—R. B. Creager, Republican national committeeman for Texas, said today after a call at the White House that President Hoover had informed him it probably would be impossible for him to visit the Southwest and Texas next month.

Creager said he regarded the statement as definitely closing the possibility the President might extend his trip to Cincinnati and Louisville to include a visit into the Lone Star state.

Mr. Hoover explained because of the proposed visit of Premier MacDonald and the tariff deliberations in the senate, it would be impossible for him to be away from Washington for an extended period in October.

ENRIGHT A CANDIDATE, TOO.

Tammany Is Attacked by Newcomer in Mayoralty Race.

(By the Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Richard E. Enright, ex-police commissioner, has become New York's fifth candidate for the mayoralty with the announced intention of ridding the city of "grafters."

In announcing to a committee of the newly formed Square Deal party that he would accept the nomination, he said:

"I will rid this town of the grafters and Tammany parasites who are spending the taxpayers' money like inebriated men of the sea. I will clean up the disgraceful conditions in New York City, where, with the genius of the city hall doing nothing about it, demoralization has flourished like a green bay tree."

Enright, who is a Democrat, served eight years as police commissioner under Mayor John F. Hylan. He now conducts a private detective agency.

TWO MORE FILE RATE CUTS.

Missouri Pacific and Wabash Revise Schedule to Gulf.

(By the Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The Missouri Pacific and Wabash railroads today filed with the interstate commerce commission revised rates on grain and grain products providing for reductions of 7 cents per 100 pounds from Kansas City to Gulf ports.

This action was taken under a recent decision by the commission permitting other roads on one day's notice to meet a similar reduction put into effect by the Kansas City Southern August 15.

The Santa Fe and Rock Island already have put into effect the reduction rates, leaving the Burlington and the Chicago & Alton yet to file their revised tariffs, these roads having been given permission to meet the reduction.

FOR NEW CONVENTION HALL

Majority of Committee Favors Replacing Present Building.

An entirely new Convention hall, big enough to take care of any three conventions Kansas City secures—a building that would cost at least 3½ million dollars, on the site of the present structure, with necessary ground added, was approved by a majority of a joint committee meeting this afternoon at the Hotel Muehlebach.

The committee was composed of directors of Convention hall and members of the Chamber of Commerce convention bureau. Conrad H. Mann, president of the Chamber, presided.

Two plans were submitted and given full consideration. A majority favored the bigger plan. The other plan would provide merely for an additional builing across Thirteenth street south of Convention hall.

The plan given majority approval would remove the present building and start from the ground. The vacant ground north of the Robert E. Lee hotel, extending through to Wyandotte street, a width of 225 feet, would be added to the site. Also, 53 feet on Central street north of the present structure would be added.

A bond issue would be required and the committees will meet with H. F. McElroy, city manager, Tuesday to lay the matter before him.

(By the Associated Press.)

DENVER, Sept. 12.—Transportation to New York of all the records of the Bank of Telluride, in connection with the federal investigation of C. D. Waggoner's ½-million-dollar swindle, was arranged today by federal officers here.

BOMB IN STREET CAR STRIKE

Violence Flares in New Orleans After a Compromise Fails.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 12.—Violence flared anew in the New Orleans street car strike early today, following rejection by the striking carmen of a compromise agreement reached by union heads and car company officials.

Dynamite placed on the track of one of the trolley lines exploded about midnight as a car passed over it. The three passengers and the motorman and conductor were injured slightly.

A few hours later a second explosion was averted when dynamite was discovered on tracks in another part of the city by the motorman of a car.

SAVED IN FIGHT WITH BEAR.

Feigning Death, Mining Man Is Spared, Although Injured.

(By the Associated Press.)

VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 12.—Badly wounded in an encounter with a bear last Thursday, H. C. Hughes, superintendent of the Emerald mine at Ootsa lake in North British Columbia, was in a hospital here today after a 1,000-mile flight.

Walter E. Gilbert, Western Canadian Airways pilot, brought the injured man to civilization.

Unarmed, Hughes, attacked by the grizzly while inspecting mining claims, lost one finger. His face was badly lacerated and he was otherwise bruised and cut.

Realizing his danger Hughes feigned death. The bear picked him up and threw him down, mauled him and left him.

FEAR FOR 28 ON A SHIP.

Lake Steamer, Missing Two Days, Is Believed Sunk.

(By the Associated Press.)

CLEVELAND, Sept. 12.—Fear prevailed here today that the gravel carrier Andaste, more than two days overdue at Chicago, had sunk in the lower end of Lake Michigan.

A. E. M. Schneider, vice-president of the Andaste Steamship Company, which had leased the vessel to the Construction Materials Company of Chicago for operation the last two years, said he felt the ship had been lost and her crew of twenty-eight had been drowned or were adrift.

Schneider said airplane searches had failed to discover any trace of the Andaste, which left Grand Haven, Mich., for Chicago Monday. The boat was commanded by Capt. A. I. Anderson.

Judge Reeves ordered the wine destroyed immediately.

A TRUE PATRIOT SUBMITS

THE FORMER JESSIE DOWNING PROVES TO BE A DIPLOMAT.

Kansas City Woman Saves a Bad Philippine Situation by Putting Aside Her Own Desire for Vindication.

Mrs. Jessie Downing Artamonoff, 24-year-old daughter of John F. Downing, pioneer Kansas City banker, is the storm center of a university quarrel which has threatened to develop a political crisis in the Philippines.

Through the storm of bitter accusations and racial hatreds, Mrs. Artamonoff is emerging as a patriot, looked upon in the American colony as a martyr, although she is cast unwillingly in the role.

Mr. Downing explained the matter which has blazed in the limelight of Manila newspapers now for several days in a simple story today.

AN ARTICLE IN THE STAR.

His daughter, a graduate of Smith college, wrote for The Star last June an article telling of her experiences as a teacher of English in the University of the Philippines. In it were several criticisms of the Filipino students.

These remarks were made in the most casual way, told as the impression of an American in a foreign country, to her friends back home. However, they were carried back to Manila, reprinted in full and immediately became the target for bitter denunciation. The Filipinos, extremely sensitive to criticism of anyone from the United States, were thoroughly angry over reading that "while they were good in memory work, they couldn't reason."

Resentment flamed, too, over her simple statement that attempting bribery was so common among the Filipinos some girl students one day offered to pay her if she would pass them. Manila newspapers were swamped with protesting letters, and the pretty young teacher was called all the uncomplimentary adjectives of flowery vocabularies.

RESIGNATION IS ASKED.

Her resignation was asked by the dean of the college of liberal arts, through the American head of the English department. Americans rallied to her side, urging that she stand firm. She had said nothing that was not true, and she had written in no spirit of malice. She hesitated, and there followed promptly an order of the board of regents, demanding resignation.

Mrs. Artamonoff's ire was up. She could have stood her ground, insisting that her accusers prove her statements untrue—an impossible task at the outset. Surely she could not be dismissed on the only grounds set forth in the university charter, incompetence or immorality. Indignant American friends urged her to "stand pat." Meanwhile, she learned that students in the university (with the exception of those in her own classes, who stood by her loyally) were planning to parade in a demonstration against her. She made a difficult decision.

RESIGNED EARLY IN AUGUST.

"I've sent in my resignation," she wrote her parents here August 10 in a letter they just have received, "and I feel as if someone had wrung me through the clothes wringer.

"Of course, if I'd consulted my personal feelings, I shouldn't have, as the university has no right to demand my resignation on the grounds they did. . . . But by doing so, I've saved a lot of bad feeling toward other Americans, and probably done the wisest thing all around."

The university president's request for Mrs. Artamonoff's resignation was on the grounds, according to her letter to the Downings, "that the board of regents believe me to have been guilty of unprofessional conduct as a teacher, and that my permanence in the institution could no longer be countenanced, much to their regret."

HUSBAND A RUSSIAN COUNT.

It was a strenuous time for the young woman, who has been living in the distant island in a tropical climate only since she went there to be married a year ago last February. Her husband is George Leonidovitch Artamanoff, who has dropped his legitimate title as Russian count since the revolution there, and now is an electrical engineer on the staff of the Pacific Commercial Company, a subsidiary of the General Electric Company. He is a son of a former general in the czar's army. The courtship began while Jessie Downing was a student at Smith, and the young count was at Schenectady, N. Y., following his graduation from the Sheffield scientific school at Yale university.

For days Mrs. Artamanoff saw her name and picture staring at her from the front pages of hostile newspapers. She heard herself reviled in a torrent of angry abuse. Children followed her on the street, pointing their fingers at her. Rumbles went to government officials, alert for the least incident which might fan the flames of ill-feeling against Americans on the part of Filipino patriots who are impatient to take over the reins of their government completely, and have the United States withdraw its control.

TELLS OF HER DECISION.

In her letter, Mrs. Artamonoff sets forth the factors responsible for the distasteful decision she made in resigning.

"Had I stayed on till the end of the semester, matters would have been much worse. First, I would have insisted that they prove the untruth of my statements. This they could not have done, and American teachers would have testified for me, and that would have stirred up violent feelings against all American teachers and any American as well.

"Second, although my pupils were exceedingly good, the outstide students would have prevented them from attending classes. A parade to demonstrate against me was being planned by the students, and no good

Justice Comes to Three of Four Lamar Bandits.

The Lamar, Col., bank robbery and murders, which attracted nation-wide attention more than a year ago, were brought a step nearer final solution today when three men, Ralph Fleagle, W. C. Death sentences probably will be asked for Messick and Royston, while Ralph Fleagle's life will be spared because it was his confession that helped to clear the crime .

'GLAD HAND' TO TOURISTS

CHIEF MILES DEVELOPS COURTESY CARD FOR VISITORS.

System Inaugurated as Result of Recent Rowdyism Will Impart Traffic Regulation Hint With Welcome.

A courtesy card for tourists and other motorists visiting in Kansas City has been developed by John L. Miles, chief of police, as a result of the discourteous treatment received by George D. Leydic of Indiana, Pa., tourist, beaten by a ruffian while he and his family were driving through Kansas City.

The card system of Chief Miles's will extend a glad hand from the police department to the visiting motorist. The cards will be placed on all motor cars owned by tourists where the tourist has violated a city traffic ordinance.

A WELCOME AND A HINT.

An order for the cards already has been sent to the police printer and will be ready for distribution soon. Wallace Cameron, secretary to Chief Miles, ordered 1,000 of the cards printed immediately. This inscription will be printed on them:

> To the visitor within our gates. We welcome you to Kansas City. We hope you will enjoy your visit and will come again.
>
> You have failed to obey traffic regulation, as follows.........
>
> This is not a notice to appear before a police judge, but your car license number has been taken, and in the future we respectfully request that you be more careful in the observance of police regulations of our city.
>
> The K. C. Police Department.

Chief Miles obtained his idea for the cards from other cities. Chamber of Commerce officials here approved the plan. The cards will be given traffic patrolmen and motor cycle patrolmen for distribution.

A LETTER TOO LATE.

It appears now the Chamber of Commerce has waited too long to convince Mr. Leydic he should return here to appear against Sam Disalvo, 18-year-old ex-inmate of the Boonville reformatory, charged with beating Mr. Leydic in the presence of Mrs. Leydic and their two children.

A letter has been sent Mr. Leydic by officials of the Chamber of Commerce, expressing Kansas City's regret over the treatment he received here. The action by the chamber was taken last Friday, although the letter was not sent until yesterday. Mr. Leydic sent The Star a telegram today, saying he did not intend to return as a prosecuting witness in the case. His telegram:

> Having received no word from the Chamber of Commerce, as stated in your telegram, and having been absent from my business almost two months, I do not feel justified in returning to your city to do something your city should prevent.

Mr. Leydic is an undertaker in Indiana, a small city near Pittsburgh. The Chamber of Commerce letter to him advised the case against young Disalvo could be reopened and the chamber would defray his expenses if he would return.

INSPECT A COOLIDGE HOME.

Mothers of John and Miss Trumbull Approve Apartment.

(By the Associated Press.)

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 12.—The 4-room apartment which John Coolidge will occupy with his bride has the approval of his mother.

Mrs. Calvin Coolidge visited it with Miss Florence Trumbull, her son's fiancee, and Mrs. Trumbull, wife of the governor of Connecticut.

After inspection of the $78-a-month apartment, the two mothers and the young lady who will become Mrs. Coolidge September 23 went to a furniture store and looked at various pieces that might be suitable for the apartment. Nothing definite was selected.

Mrs. Coolidge had been visiting the governor's home at Plainville since Tuesday. Last night she left by train for her home in Northampton.

Feminine Touch Is Advocated by an Ex-Teacher's Husband.

(By the Associated Press.)

STAMFORD, CONN., Sept. 12.—Dr. William T. Hornaday, director emeritus of New York's zoo, has been married fifty years and disagrees with Prof. R. F. Rogers of Massachusetts Tech, who believes that women teachers are feminizing American youth. On his golden wedding day Dr. Hornaday remarked: "I don't believe the American man is going to be feminized to his injury. If he selects the right wife the more he listens to her advice the better off he is." Mr. Hornaday married a teacher, Miss Josephine Chamberlain of Battle Creek, Mich.

3 GUILTY AT LAMAR

Pleas to Murder Charges Are Entered in Bank Robbery and Four Deaths.

MAY GET DEATH TERMS

It Is Up to Court to Sentence Ralph Fleagle, Messick and Royston.

FOURTH STILL AT LARGE

And Prisoners Insist It Was Jake Fleagle Who Did the Shooting.

Bulletin.

(By the Associated Press.)

COLORADO SPRINGS, COL., Sept. 12.—Ralph Fleagle, member of the Fleagle gang of bandits who held up the Lamar, Col., bank last year, will not hang for his participation in the crime. Chief of Police Harper announced here today the state would not ask the death penalty for him.

It was through Ralph Fleagle's confession that the crime was cleared. It was not indicated what penalty would be asked for Messick and Royston.

(By the Associated Press.)

LAMAR, COL., Sept. 12.—Three members of the Fleagle gang of bank bandits who held up the First National Bank here May 23, 1928, pleaded guilty to charges of first degree murder, kidnaping and robbery with a weapon, when arraigned in district court here today.

Under the Colorado statutes a person guilty of first degree murder is sentenced by the jury trying him or the judge hearing his plea. The death penalty is not mandatory.

Fourth Still Is Sought.

The three who pleaded guilty are W. C. Messick, Ralph Fleagle and Herbert L. Royston.

After a nation-wide search lasting for more than a year the three men were arrested and confessed to participation in the Lamar robbery. Royston recently was brought back to Colorado from Sacramento, Cal., his home. He was the man who was wounded in an exchange of shots with bank officials during the robbery. Ralph Fleagle lived at Garden City, Kas., and Messick at Grand Junction, Col.

A fourth member of the gang, Jake Fleagle, still is being sought by authorities.

Slain for Resisting.

A. N. Parrish, 74-year-old president of the bank, and his son, John Parrish, 35, resisted the hold-up and were shot to death. E. A. Kessinger, bank teller, was taken with the gang as a hostage. He later was killed because he "knew too much." Dr. W. W. Wineinger, Dighton, Kas., physician, was murdered after he was called to treat Royston. The three were captured in widely separated parts of the country.

After they had been rounded up and brought back to Colorado, all made confessions as to their part in the crime. All contended that Jack Fleagle, the man still at large, was the one who did the shooting.

Under heavy guard this morning the three men were taken into court here. Messick was the first called and he immediately pleaded guilty to the first degree murder charge. Royston and Fleagle followed Messick and also entered pleas of guilty.

Judge A. F. Hollenbeck was on the bench and Judge L. W. Cunningham of Colorado Springs represented the defense.

IT PAYS TO BE COURTEOUS.

H. C. Zerbst Is Left $2,000 Because He Is a Gentleman.

Being courteous paid a good dividend to Harry C. Zerbst, who lives at the Ormond hotel.

Two years ago, while spending a vacation in Colorado, Mr. Zerbst met Mrs. Elizabeth Peterson, 61 years old, of St. Louis. Mrs. Peterson died August 27 at her home in St. Louis. When her will was read Monday this clause was found:

"To Harry C. Zerbst of Kansas City, a very courteous young man and a gentleman, I bequeath the sum of $2,000."

Most of her estate of $50,000 went to charity and to churches. The will was made in May of this year.

FAILS TO BEAT AIR MARK.

Although Equaling Seaplane Record, Orlebar Can't Surpass It.

(By the Associated Press.)

CALSHOT, ENGLAND, Sept. 12.—Attaining practically the same speed of 355.8 miles an hour established as a world's straightaway record Tuesday, Squadron Leader Orlebar, captain of the British Schneider trophy team, today equaled his record, but failed to set a new one.

He shot over the 3-kilometer course above Southampton water six times, and experts who watched the attempt were confident he had bettered his former mark, but it was officially stated he attained about the same speed as Tuesday, and that no new figures on the flight will be announced.

Paraguay and Bolivia Agree.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—(A. P.)—Paraguayan members of the Paraguay-Bolivia commission of inquiry and conciliation today deposited with the commission their government's ratification of the conciliation formula agreed to Monday in Bolivia.

A NAVAL PACT NEAR

Revision of American Position Is Believed to Foreshadow an Accord on Armament.

NEW ORDERS TO DAWES

Rebalancing of the Cruiser Program Brings the Two Powers Closer, It Is Asserted.

Speed, Armor, Gun Power and Other Technical Issues Also Are Involved.

LONDON LOOKS FORWARD TO REPLY ON CRUISERS.

(By the Associated Press.)

LONDON, Sept. 12.—Highly important developments in Anglo-American disarmament negotiations are expected here within forty-eight hours, according to well-informed circles. Late today the American reply to Great Britain's naval disarmament proposals was placed in Premier MacDonald's hands.

Premier MacDonald would sail for the United States September 28, it was definitely announced tonight.

There is every prospect of final agreement between Great Britain and the United States on naval disarmament, it is understood here, although the usual reserve is maintained in British official circles. The margin of difference between the British and American viewpoints on naval power is believed to be very small.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—A revision of the American position on disarmament, facilitating an agreement with Great Britain and bringing such an accord very near, is believed to have resulted from a protracted series of conferences President Hoover has had with Secretary Stimson, Secretary Adams and the general board of the navy.

It is confidently expected that in the near future, perhaps within the next twenty-four hours, new instructions will go forward to Ambassador Dawes for presentation to Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald.

A Readjustment of Program.

Indications were that the President's conferences had to do with a readjustment of the 15-cruiser construction program effecting a redistribution of tonnage, gunpower and other elements, to conform with the wishes of the London government.

The impression has prevailed in naval and diplomatic circles in Washington that a rebalancing of the cruiser program might be effective in bringing closer the positions of the United States and Great Britain on the naval question.

In the last week the American naval experts have been engaged in a study of a possible shifting of the various elements which enter into a naval program such as is contemplated under the 15-cruiser law.

Naval circles have pointed out that the factors in this program, in addition to tonnage, involve speed, armor, gun power and other technical intricate phases.

Hoover Favors Reduction.

President Hoover already has declared himself in favor of a policy of naval reduction instead of one of mere limitation, in so far as auxiliary ships are concerned. Parity, or naval equality, already has been agreed on between Great Britain and the United States as a basis of discussion on the naval problem. In order to meet the situation, well informed circles consider it possible that a reshifting of the "paper program" of the American navy might be called for to meet the existing desires of President Hoover for either a stringent limitation or reduction, giving at the same time a basic parity with Great Britain.

The reduction policy, with its accompanying desire by the President to cut taxes for naval expenditure, is one of the President's most intimate desires, and throughout the present negotiations it is known he has worked steadfastly toward this end.

A START ON SHEARER PROBE

Subcommittee Will Meet Saturday to Plan the Investigation.

(By the Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The senate naval sub-committee appointed to investigate charges of interference at the 1927 Geneva naval limitations conference by American shipbuilders arranged today to meet Saturday to determine its program.

William B. Shearer, self-styled naval expert, who has sued three shipbuilding corporations for services he alleges he rendered in their behalf at the Geneva parley, will be among the first witnesses called.

Senator Shortridge of California Republican, was appointed chairman of the subcommittee. Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, and Senator Allen of Kansas, Republican, are the other members.

The Washington Star says today it has learned from authoritative sources that American naval observers at the 1927 Geneva naval conference were on their guard against Shearer, because of advices that the navy department was investigating the man's activities.

FIND DRIVER WHO KILLED

TWO MEN WERE IN CAR RETURNING TO PARTY WITH LIQUOR.

After Charles Hann Was Struck and Injured Fatally, the Machine Was Ditched and Reported Stolen.

Deputy sheriffs today arrested the driver and owner of the "hit-and-run" car which killed Charles Hann, 38 years old, 727 Bennington avenue, last night as Hann was crossing Independence road to go to his work at the Sheffield Steel Corporation in the Sheffield district.

The owner of the car gave his name as Everett Oliver, 21 years old, 9508 Independence road, an employee of the Ford Motor Company. The driver of the car gave the name Charles Hughes, who lives at Sugar Creek, an employee of the Sheffield Steel Corporation. Hughes was driving the car at the time Hann was struck and killed. Oliver was riding with him—"too drunk to drive"— according to Hughes's account of the accident to the deputy sheriffs.

A BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Hughes was 24 years old yesterday and a party was held at his home last night. According to the deputy sheriffs, Hughes said the liquor became exhausted, so Hughes and Oliver went to a bootlegging place in Oliver's car. Hughes told the deputies he drove the car because Oliver was too drunk to handle the machine.

After obtaining two bottles of apricot brandy the car was headed back toward Sugar Creek and the birthday party. Hann was strruck and killed as the car, a Ford coach, was passing the steel plant. The car was run into a ditch near Sugar Creek and a report made to the police that the coach was stolen.

DEPUTIES FIND THE CAR.

H. W. Gallagher, James White and Bert Powell, deputy sheriffs who patrol a district including Sheffield and Sugar Creek, found the "hit-and-run" car in the ditch where it had been run by Oliver and Hughes. The description tallied with that of the machine which killed Hann. Checking the license numbers, the deputies found Oliver and questioned him in Independence. He admitted owership of the car and told about the killing of the steel worker and the disposition of the machine. After questioning Oliver the deputies arrested Hughes. Oliver said he had drunk a "little wine" and that he was not intoxicated. He said Hughes was sober "so far as he knew."

TIRES OF ENDURANCE RAIDS.

Judge Smith Says Musicians' Club Case Has Become "Public Joke."

Judge Carlin P. Smith in the North Side court today informed policemen he was "sick and tired" of the cases involving the endurance contest between the police department and the Negro "Musicians' Club" at 1702 East Twelfth street.

"Your actions border on contempt," Judge Smith said to the patrolmen who staged the ninety-fourth and ninety-fifth raids on the Negro club since March 1. "If this continues, I may resort to some severe move to stop this thing, which has become a public joke."

There were thirty-five Negroes before Judge Smith today, all members of the "board of governors" of the "Musicians' Club." They were arrested last night in two raids by patrolmen.

Chief Miles issued orders some time ago that the club should be raided every time its so-called members were seen in the place. Charles Wilson, known as "Doc Fojo," the head of the organization, is a gambler, according to the police. He has insisted there is no gambling in the place and that only Negro musicians assemble there. The police have been unable to obtain evidence of gambling. The chief ordered the raids regardless of the failure to find evidence of gambling.

"No evidence," the patrolmen told Judge Smith today.

"Case dismissed," the court replied, and added his warning that the "public joke" must end.

Chief Miles said the raids would continue.

TO COURT OVER LAW FEES.

A Firm Asks Enforcement of Contract With Mrs. Mary E. Hayman.

A petition asking the circuit court to enforce an alleged attorneys' contract and lien between themselves and Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Hayman was filed today by Swearingen, Wolfson & Lebrecht, law firm.

Mrs. Hayman was divorced Tuesday from Clarence M. Hayman, head of the Forum Cafeterias, Inc. Previous to that, the Swearingen law firm states, it had filed for Mrs. Hayman a suit for separate maintenance. The law firm charges she dismissed the suit out of court after coming to an agreement with her husband whereby $7,500 was to be paid her. The alleged contract with Mrs. Hayman was that her lawyers should get 25 per cent of any money collected by the suit and the firm claims $1,875, or 25 per cent of the $7,500.

would have been done to anything but my own stubborn pride. As the matter is no longer personal, but Filipino versus American, I feel that I cannot, in view of the stand of the governor general on politics in general, do anything which would be deliberately against the policy of the government just to satisfy my personal feelings. As an American here, I feel that even indirectly, I ought not to stir up more rabid emotionalism against the Americans than has already been stirred."

Even in the midst of the turmoil, Mrs. Artamonoff has not lost her sense of humor, and it must have stood her in good stead.

"KNOW THE ARTICLE IS TRUE."

"What was really funny, however," she wrote, "was that in the midst of all this excitement arrived the two letters from you, patting me on the back about the article! Of course, every one here knows the article is true, one of the proofs being that, though I have been reviled, no Filipino has tried to prove a single statement untrue."

One attempt Mrs. Artamonoff made to calm the storm met with flat failure. She wrote an article for publication in Manila, explaining that the article in The Kansas City Star, her home city paper, was written in the spirit of friendly criticism, and that in her heart she loved the Filipinos. But the peace offering was spurned by the student paper at the university, which said bluntly, "If Mrs. Artamonoff did not mean what she said in her first article, she did not know how to use the English language and was not, therefore, fit to teach it."

SEEKS A NEW INTEREST.

Now the Kansas City young woman is "scouting for a job," she writes her parents. An American in Manila does none of her own housework, because servants are very cheap and the custom of the country makes it next to impossible for anyone not of the lowest class to do menial labor. The easy teaching schedule of two hours one day and three the next was an ideal arrangement. It will be more than a year before her husband has finished his required stay in the Philippines.

Upon their return to America—the former Russian count is a citizen of this country—the two have planned to stop in Europe as near the Russian border as they think it safe to go, in the hope of arranging a little visit with Mr. Artamonoff's father and sister.

"I wish we were leaving sooner," Mrs. Artamonoff wrote.

WROTE A FRIENDLY ARTICLE

Mrs. Artamonoff Gave Impressions in The Star.

The article Mrs. Jessie Downing Artamonoff wrote for The Star, causing a little tempest in Manila and resulting in her resignation as a teacher in the university there last month, was published Sunday, June 30. It was one of several interesting accounts she wrote of her life in the tropical land.

The tone of it was decidedly friendly, and much of it was highly complimentary. She told of her Filipino girls' habit of piling her desk high with flowers, and of their cleanliness, modesty, and love of home. She said the girls "would seem like a teacher's dream of Paradise, so far as discipline goes."

She went on frankly with their limitations as students, and mentioned that the study of geometry was a failure, "the proof being that now no original problems are given to the pupils, because for the last ten years not one has been solved!"

"The pupils learn just enough to pass the examinations," she wrote, explaining that the girls hoped for improved social position out of their schooling, rather than the desired learning for its own sak, "which is easy beyond belief, to us at least.

"For instance, a person of ordinary intelligence would be able to remember and spell the title of a poem he had studied for three weeks preceding the test. Not so a Filipino; in fact, after five months' study of 'Silas Marner,' out of 230 papers, on only five did I find the names of the three chief characters spelled correctly. But I was not allowed to count it a mistake, which made me feel that the pupils are being allowed to fall into unnecessary slipshod habits. This is a pity, for Filipinos formerly were trained to do good memory work, since they cannot reason."

"If they are told to look up in the dictionary the meaning of a word they memorize the definition and can recite it perfectly days after, but if told 'explain that in your own words' they answer, 'But, mummy, I do not know.' This is not actually the fault of their mentality so much as it is that, knowing so little English, the words defining a word are as incomprehensible as the word itself."

The portion which aroused indignation of Filipino leaders dealt with the prevalence of bribery and began by saying that the girls realized their handicaps in study and made the best of it.

"'Making the best of it' consists in being very, very nice to the teacher," she wrote, "cheating when hard pressed, and, worst of all, and most typical of the bad Filipino traits, attempting bribery. I was aghast, one day shortly before the midyear examination, to have three of my sweetest and 'dumbest' girls stand up in the middle of class and say, 'We will pay you, Mum, if you will pass us.' To them, such a thing is looked on as morally neither right nor wrong, only a necessary step to a coveted high school diploma. It speaks worlds for the Filipino character, for no girls could be gentler nor more honest in their dealings than the Filipino girls; yet the system of bribery and graft here in the Philippines, especially in politics, is so common, so rampant, that even nice little Filipino girls think nothing of trying (and, alas! often succeeding with the Filipino teachers) to bribe their way through."

'BAR SAND NOT SALABLE'

DEALERS NOT DREDGING NEAR KAW MOUTH DESPITE CONTRACTS.

Men Who Have Worked Missouri River for Years Also Doubt Digging, Even Continuously, Would Keep the Channel Clear.

Men who have spent years pumping and marketing sand from the Missouri River adjacent to Kansas City asserted today the sand forming the bar in front of the Woodswether dock site was not commercial sand.

Two companies have permits for dredging sand at that point but both dredge elsewhere. The Woods Brothers Corporation dredged there for months, but the sand was not marketed. Instead it was used to fill in low ground and build land for industrial use.

Sand pump operators said today no bar sand was of commercial value; that no pumps or dredges seeking marketable sand would work on bars. Instead, it was said, they would seek deeper water where a coarser and sharper sand could be obtained. If the bar had a market value, it was pointed out, all the sand used in building in Kansas City and the highways leading out from it could have been supplied from it without diminishing its size, since it continuously is reforming, according to river records.

Sand men expressed doubt that any private concern would enter into a contract with the government to dredge for sand that would not meet the specifications of building or paving contractors. And they were positive in their opinion the sand in the bar in question, samples of which are in every sand company's office, would not meet those specifications.

Doubt was expressed, too, that even constant dredging would keep the channel clear at a point where a bar was natural.

Not long ago a bar was forming in front of the Kansas City Power and Light Company's water intake in the East Bottoms. It was shutting off the water needed for the boilers and the company faced a crisis. It employed a power dredger and a crew of men at $150 a day to dredge a channel through the bar. The first day the dredge bit deeply into the bar and the second day it was in a lake. The bar had reformed right behind it. It was forced to dredge its way on through the bar in order to get free, and when it escaped the bar was intact. It appeared as it did before the dredging began.

The bar at the Woodswether site, the army engineer agree, is caused by the meeting of the waters of the Kaw and Missouri rivers. The Kaw flows into the larger stream almost head-on. It slows down the current of both streams and the silt and sand deposit results.

Sand men have no particular interest in the location of docks, but they have spent years actually on the river, observing its habits, and they express the belief the sandbar would stand as a permanent and expensive handicap to the Woodswether dock site.

NO CITY CHANNEL COST.

Dock Site Decision to Await Sand Bar Action, Good Says.

WASHINGTON BUREAU
THE KANSAS CITY STAR
610 ALBEE BUILDING

(By a Member of The Star's Staff.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12. — Kansas City will not be compelled to pay anything for keeping open the channel to any wharf site that finally is approved by the war department.

That promise was made today by James W. Good, secretary of war. Mr. Good said he expected in a few days to reach a final decision between the proponents of the Woodswether site at the Kansas state line and those desiring a location further down the river. Until the secretary receives data on proposals that the sand bar in front of the Woodswether site be removed under private contract or by army engineers, he said he would make no decision.

Secretary Good strongly indicated today the recommendations of Maj. Gen. T. Q. Ashburn, chairman of the Inland Waterways Corporation, would not be changed if an economical method were found to dredge the approach to the Woodswether site so the sand might be sold for commercial purposes by a private contractor or by the war department. He reiterated the statement previously made to Senator Arthur Capper that no change would be made without a hearing.

WOMAN ACCUSES A SLAYER.

Sweetheart of Dead Man Tells Police Who Did the Killing.

A woman, revengeful because her sweetheart had been slain by another man, also in love with the woman, telephoned the police today and gave them the name of the man she said did the killing. The man was arrested and admitted the slaying, according to city detectives.

Willie Snow, 32 years old, who gave his address as 1216 Washington street, told Ed Young and Fred Wolf, city detectives, he had stabbed Henry (Pickles) Heinz, 47, 1914 Grand avenue, on the sidewalk at Seventeenth and Main streets the night of September 1 following an argument over the woman at 14 West Seventeenth street.

Heinz was found by the police, following the stabbing, and was taken to the General hospital. He died there September 5. Before his death Heinz named Willie Snow as his slayer, according to police and hospital attendants, but asked that Snow not be arrested and he would "take care of him after he recovered."

Snow would not give police the name of the woman, except to say her name was "Mae." Police are searching for her. Snow's alibi is that he drew a knife on Heinz after Heinz had used a brick and attempted to stab him with a knife, police said.

Heinz was a laborer. Snow is a truck driver.

Independence Crosstown Service to Continue Thirty Days.

The crosstown street car line in Independence will not stop at midnight tonight, as scheduled, but will continue for thirty days, Mayor Roger T. Sermon announced today.

The Kansas City Public Service Company some months ago made application with the Missouri public service commission to discontinue the line because of losing money. The request was granted, but the time for discontinuance has been lengthened several times.

MILES FIRES HIS FRIEND

JOHN W. GIBSON IS DROPPED "FOR THE GOOD OF THE SERVICE."

A Tonganoxie, Kas., Accident Causes the Chief to Dismiss His Comrade in Arms and Co-worker Since the War.

Because, as he said, his duty and the public position he holds forced him to do it, John L. Miles, chief of police, today discharged from the department a friend and worker under him nine years, and his chief personal investigator at police headquarters.

The victim of the chief's rule of cutting clean no matter where the chips fall is John W. Gibson, sergeant and acting lieutenant, and entrusted with considerable responsibility in the running of the department while Chief Miles was away in Idaho on his vacation.

During the World War Gibson served under Miles; while Miles was county sheriff he was a deputy under him eight years; when Miles was appointed chief of police last spring he remained a week at Gibson's home, 3220 East Eighth street, while finding a residence for himself here.

The chief returned from his vacation and regretfully began a full investigation into a motor car wreck Gibson was in near Tonganoxie, Kas., the night of August 25. It developed Gibson and his brother, Aubrey Gibson, of Topeka, were driving in a police Whippet sedan which collided with another car four miles west of Tonganoxie in a rain. The next day John Gibson was fined $50 in a Tonganoxie police court for careless driving, and part of the testimony was that Aubrey Gibson threw a bottle of liquor from the car after the crash.

A $200 judgment also was entered against Gibson as due the other driver for damage to his car. Another police car was called by Gibson to haul the Whippet back to Kansas City, and it cost Gibson $60 to get it repaired.

In his report to Wallace Cameron, secretary to the chief, Gibson denied he had been drinking and said he was taking his brother personally to Topeka to see he got there safely, because he was intoxicated.

After checking all these reports thoroughly, Chief Miles today asked for and received his friend's resignation.

"I regret this more than I can say," the chief said. "Gibson has been an honest and trustworthy helper in the many years I have known him. But this situation could not be ignored; I had to meet it head-on, and so, for the good of the service and because it was the thing I have cautioned and disciplined my men against, I have asked his resignation."

A successor has not been appointed. Walter Goodhue, assistant investigator to Gibson, has been mentioned.

DUCE EASES HIS BURDEN

SEVEN CABINET POSITIONS ARE RESIGNED BY MUSSOLINI.

In a Sweeping Reorganization of Government, the Premier Keeps Only the Portfolio of Interior Secretary.

ROME, Sept. 12.—Premier Benito Mussolini today lessened the terrific burden of public office that has been resting on his shoulders by giving up seven ministerial portfolios.

Official announcement was made that Mussolini has resigned all his ministerial portfolios, save that of home office. He remains head of the government as premier.

NEW MEN TO FILL PLACES.

The ministerial portfolios relinquished by Mussolini were those of foreign affairs, colonies, war, navy, aviation and corporations. However, they are not vacant, as the following undersecretaries have been appointed to fill them:

Brandi, foreign affairs; Debono, colonies; Gozzera, war; Siriani, navy; Balbo, aviation; Bianchi, public works, and Bottai, corporations. Each of the former undersecretaries thus becomes a minister of a department.

All the other ministers retain their portfolios except two.

Minister of education has been replaced by Signor Balbibo and minister of economy has been succeeded by Signor Acrebo.

Mussolini added to his state duties continuously after the Fascist party came into power in Octobe., 1922. He assumed one ministerial post after another until he held eight, including the premiership. Despite the terrific strain he kept the whole business of the state, including vast ramifications into finance, industry, commerce and public works, at his finger ends.

STILL TIME FOR VISITORS.

Notwithstanding his multifarious duties, which were increased by the delicate negotiations with the Vatican for settlement of the Roman question, he always found time to welcome foreign visitors, especially Americans, who called at Chigi Palace to pay their respects.

The present is the first let-up in the wonderful driving force of this "Modern Napoleon," as he is characterized by many of his admirers in the Fascist organization. Many regard it as an answer to the often asked question:

"After Mussolini, what?"

An Operation for Mrs. M. A. Foster.

Mrs. Ada Foster, 1000 West Fifty-fifth street, wife of M. A. Foster, president of the park board, underwent a major operation today at Research hospital. Her condition was reported satisfactory.

SPARKLING TEETH WIN OUT

Who doesn't envy the radiant smile of the man with strong, vigorous teeth! This follows the consistent use of Pebeco toothpaste, which not only cleans every nook and cranny of mouth and teeth but actually checks "acid-mouth." By stimulating the flow of saliva which neutralizes the mouth acids caused by food ferment, Pebeco retards decay. Give it a week's trial . . . and note the difference.—Advt.

SPEED BOAT MARK STANDS.

Segrave Misses Wood's Record by Three-Tenths of Second.

(By the Associated Press.)

VENICE, ITALY, Sept. 12.—Cutting through the water at a speed of 92.8 miles an hour, Maj. H. O. D. Segrave of England fell three-tenths of a second short of equaling Gar Wood's world's seepd boat record, when he sent his Miss England over the rectangular course here today in the opening run of Crown Prince Humbert's cup. His effort, however, to lower the American's record may have proved disastrous for future trials, as the bottom of Miss England was split. Major Segrave said he believed the boat would be ready by Saturday for another trial.

Miss America V, which will be driven by Phil Wood, brother of the record holder, stated he would send the American boat over the course late today. Miss America VII, Gar Wood's fastest boat, is expected to be ready for a shot at the record Saturday.

No More Cold Creams

No More Skin Foods or Astringents This New Way

The four fundamentals of skin care are condensed into a single, 3-minute application.

A Scientific Discovery that Condenses a Complete Professional Facial Into a Single Application, Taking Less Than 3 Minutes, That Combines the 4 Fundamentals in Skin Care Urged by Experts!

NOW comes a remarkable new development in beauty science. A discovery that experts predict may soon change all previous methods in skin care.

A way that condenses the four fundamentals of scientific skin care into a single, three-minute home application! And that provides the exact and same effect of a complete Professional Facial costing $3 or more.

A way that combats blackheads and enlarged pores; often with almost unbelievable results. That banishes premature age lines, and the lines of strain and worry. For each application works directly on each and all of these conditions.

Hence, a way that completely eliminates the need of costly special creams and lotions. Of old-time cleansing creams, of "skin foods" and astringents. Yet—that is as easy to use as an ordinary cleansing cream.

Do you wonder, then, that largely on expert advice tens of thousands of women are adopting this unique creation?

What It Is

It is called Lady Esther Four-Purpose Cream. And it marks the application of totally new principles in skin care as defined by the most recent scientific findings of ablest specialists in the field of beauty culture.

Each application has four distinct actions on the skin.

Cleansing action that cleanses the pores. And thus ends the use of an ordinary cleansing cream.

Tissue stimulating action that invigorates the deep tissues of the skin. And thus that ends the use of a special "skin food."

Astringent action that eradicates worry, strain and premature age lines, refines pores. And thus that makes the use of youth creams and astringents a folly.

Softening action that forms a perfect base for powder. And thus banishes the need of a powder base. Thus the four fundamentals of skin care are condensed into a single, 3-minute application.

Age lines soon go under this daily care. Flabby tissues strengthen and become firm. The skin is kept clean—for the astringent action of this cream closes the pores after they've been cleaned. And thus closes them against accumulations that foster imperfections.

It is sold under the name of Lady Esther at all drug and department stores at 50 cents and $1.25 a jar. The $1.25 size contains four times the amount in the 50 cent size.

KANSAS CITY'S DOMINANT STORE

Fast Growing Kansas City As Seen by Our Civic Leaders

WHAT THE PRESIDENT OF THE REAL ESTATE BOARD SAYS:

Overnight Kansas City has developed into an aircraft center of first importance. More established lines of air travel radiate from Kansas City today than from any other city in the United States. Kansas City is not more than a day's travel by air to any part of the United States. It is truly "the nearest by air to everywhere."

The effect of these influences for growth is just beginning to be felt. The first indication is the large building program. Probably never before in the history of Kansas City has there been so much construction work under way in our down town district. Upwards of thirty millions of dollars will be spent for new buildings in the near future, which will mean employment to several thousand men, a large volume of business for firms dealing in building materials and supplies, and activity which should bring improvement in practically all lines of business.

Prosperous conditions and opportunity for employment always attract people, and Kansas City in the next two or three years should show a rapid growth in population and industry, bringing about increased rentals and rising real estate values. Altogether the outlook in Kansas City today is the brightest in many years.

EARL C. HALLAR,
President, Real Estate Board.

A DEAD LOVE REVIVES

NILS ASTHER AND VIVIAN DUNCAN ARE MAKING UP.

Perhaps It Means Something, Perhaps Not—Eleanor Boardman as a Country Girl Among the Sophisticated.

By Mollie Merrick.

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 12.—The romance weathervane points to the revival of an abandoned love story.

Drifting about a Culver City studio lot, whom should I see but Nils Asther and Vivian Duncan holding hands in a doorway and very frankly making sheep's eyes at each other.

"H'm," said someone, "is this the way it looks?"

"Very much so," said the gallant Nils, with a radiant smile at the little blonde Duncan, who was giggling along at a great rate.

A year ago the engagement of Vivian Duncan and Nils Asther was announced. The Swedish star had only recently come to the village. And the little Duncans were not making sound pictures for Hollywood movie magnates at salaries that would stagger you.

A blight fell upon the romance Just what, nobody knew. Nils of Sweden took to his house, and a certain taciturnity and objection to Hollywood parties became his chief characteristic. More recently still he has been the faithful swain of Greta Garbo. But these two are of the same blood, and friends of both predicted short shrift for that romance.

The pretty little tableau with Vivian Duncan would lead one to believe that the difference has been made up, that a ring will sparkle on her finger again—that the idyll will be resumed.

Either that, or they get engaged each summer just for fun!

Eleanor Boardman has gone rube most delightfully. At a luncheon party yesterday she arrived with a broad-brimmed Panama hat jammed down over lengthy hair wind-tossed as a Gainsborough boy's. Her tan face was absolutely innocent of powder or the slightest hint of color. Not even so much as a tint on the lips. Her straight little red and white print frock had an organdie ruffle about the throat, and her bare feet were thrust into straw colored, low heeled shoes of rough silk.

She smacked of country air and laissez faire and devil-may-care and anything else you can think of in the same rhythm. And she capped the climax by ordering a glass of buttermilk and a green salad.

With a hey and a ho!

Considerably less hey and ho marked the costume of Mrs. Rupert Hughes at the same luncheon hour. She was dressed in pale corn color, the cool delicious shade of a tamale husk, and her pale face and red-gold hair made an exquisite color symphony.

And Evelyn Brent at the next table looked as if she were lunching at the Marguery with her tight skull cap of dark red Agnes mesh, her brown imperturbable face of which one doesn't tire, her sophisticated summer frock of creamy crepe, and some strange dark brownish red and white large print.

A straight little jacket hip-length of the same print was donned to hide the creamy blouse as she departed. And the final touch to the ensemble was the red blown-glass choker which tied the color scheme firmly.

When a Hollywood lady goes color she goes all the way. So thus it was that Elise Schildkraut wore a poisonous shade of marsh yellow crepe, which fierce and bilious color was repeated again in a flaring hat of the same. Yet most of her time this Hollywooden lady wears green in all its lovely shades. Perhaps she's on her color vacation.

Frances Goldwyn, who accompanied her, chose China blue and white. A soft printed chiffon made in the very feminine and ruffly manner of recent frocks and topped off by a wide-brimmed hat of blue.

In a corner sat a quiet little woman in black with a touch of pale blue about the throat. Flat heeled patent leather shoes. A small black felt hat pulled down unmodishly over her fascinating brown eyes.

Helen Hayes, one of our greatest actresses, uncontaminated by the Hollywood virus.

A CANADIAN WHEAT PREMIUM.

Reasons for High Price Found by Bureau of Agriculture.

(By the Associated Press.)

Washington, Sept. 12.—The high protein content of Canadian wheat, adequate storage facilities and favorable transportation rates were cited today by officials of the bureau of agricultural economics as important factors contributing to the disparity between Canadian and American wheat prices.

The bureau undertook an investigation at the request of the federal farm board to learn the causes of the disparity and what bearing storage facilities in this country had on it.

The greatest disparity in prices were found to be on cash grain and grain for delivery in the immediate or near future, generally from 8 to 9 cents a bushel. It was found also there was a tendency to pay a premium for Canadian grain because of its better suitability for flour milling purposes.

KVALE DEATH AN 'ACCIDENT.'

No Inquest Needed for Legislator Who Died in Fire.

(By the Associated Press.)

Fergus Falls, Minn., Sept. 12.—Death of Representative C. J. Kvale of the seventh Minnesota district was "accidental," county authorities said today, and no inquest will be held.

Mr. Kvale's charred body was found in the ruins of his cottage near Battle Lake, Minn., early yesterday. The cottage had been destroyed by fire, which is believed to have been started by the explosion of a gasoline lamp, according to Coroner J. G. Vigen, who investigated.

SPEAKING THE PUBLIC MIND

Fact, and the Poetic View.

To The Star: A characteristically fine poem is that of Kipling's which appeared in the morning issue of The Star last Friday. But how about the cold facts forgotten in the poetic fervor of the latter half of the poem? If the airman is to keep ahead in his race with the sun westward he must maintain a speed approximately of 1,000 miles an hour, the rate of the rotation of the earth eastward. His best thus far, in the Isle of Wight races, was only about one-third that of the speed of the "Sun God." Apollo still leads. But the poet may be a prophet. DR. E. B. KNERR.

Believe Honesty Is the Best Policy.

To The Star: I was much interested in your leading editorial in The Star Sunday, concerning the question as to whether honesty is really the best policy. It happens that in my work I have met virtually all the leading business men in Kansas City, and many hundreds who are not exactly "leading," but compose the rank and file of the business world. While my job is not particularly to study this angle of business, yet because of my own intense interest in this subject, I have studied the question, and discussed it with many.

I have found most persons who hold to the opinion that honesty is not the best policy are of the cynical type; and in general, as I see it, the cynic is usually a shallow thinker and of the destructive rather than the constructive type of mind. Many persons who hold to this opinion also believe virtue in women, chivalry in men and courtesy in everyday dealings are largely the "bunk," and that "getting by" is the one thing worth successful business men of my ac- considering. They believe that how one gets by makes no difference.

In general, the most efficient and quaintance are sticklers for rigid honesty, not merely as a means of evading possible punishment, either legal or of incurring the disapprobation of their fellow men, but as a matter of pride, self-respect and, best of all, "good sportsmanship."

The average rigidly honest, self-respecting business man is honest for a reason that may date back to his football days in high school or college. Here, he remembers vividly, a dishonest player (a poor sport) might win a few yards for his team, might disable an opposing player or even conceivably win a game by fouling a member of the other team. But, when discovered, he was subject to the burning contempt, not only of the other team, but of his own fellows as well. Dishonesty and bad sportsmanship are synonymous, and the advantages gained by either are likely to be only temporary and to provide a boomerang that will react to the detriment or even the destruction of the perpetrator.

To me the law of honesty is as fundamental as that of gravity or mathematics and is the "best policy" because any other conception is one of fundamental error and cannot prevail permanently. J. L. SIMPSON.

Thinks Traffic Badly Handled.

To The Star: I have noticed all the recent articles on the city's traffic problems and also the letters that you publish on the subject. My home has been in Kansas City for the last twelve years. In that time I have been in six other cities, four larger and two smaller than Kansas City, and I must say that I have never seen traffic handled as poorly as it is here at the present time. I drive all over the city every day and I cannot see for the life of me why such corners as Linwood and Main, Thirty-first and Troost, Thirty-ninth and Main and all the uptown busy corners are handled as they are.

Why is it that we must let ice cream trucks, bakery trucks, cleaners' trucks and special delivery trucks park for ten minutes right in a safety zone on a busy corner? This happens every day and if you doubt me, drive around and see. Why is it that large sedans are allowed to double park for any length of time on Walnut and Grand between Eleventh and Twelfth? Why is it your own delivery trucks are allowed to dash out in front of traffic, cut into a safety zone and park there and hold up traffic for any number of minutes?

All of this could be stopped if these truck drivers were required to hunt a parking space as you and I must, or better still, park in the alleys. The traffic police on the above named corners seem not to notice anything at all except some poor stranger who is walking against the lights.

I certainly am in favor of the talked of ruling to use car tracks through safety zones, but I think that something should be done about these trucks parking on east and west streets and in safety zones.

P. C. RICE.

'No Need of Stop at McGee Viaduct.'

To The Star: The annoying traffic congestion that occurs every evening on the McGee street viaduct is caused by the boulevard stop at Twenty-second street. There is no need for this stop. The intersection is one of the widest in the city, and there is comparatively little east and west traffic. In the evening rush hours, the ratio of southbound cars to east and westbound is fully ten to one. Is it wise to force ten motorists to halt their cars on a steep incline to allow one motorist to cut across traffic and proceed up Hospital Hill?

Since this stop has been in effect I have seen many minor accidents on the viaduct. Inexperienced drivers continually are killing their motors on the hill and blocking traffic. Many seem to be unable to release their brakes and move forward simultaneously without allowing their cars to roll backward several feet. This results in bent fenders and broken headlights. Wouldn't it be better to discontinue this stop between 4:30 o'clock and 6:30 o'clock in the evening? A MOTORIST.

"Honesty Not a Question of Policy."

St. Louis—To The Star: As to your editorial question, "Is honesty the best policy in business?" The affirmative is proved by the fact all business men put on the cloak of honesty. No one would do business with a dishonest concern, if he knew it was dishonest. An enterprise may become successful through some inherent quality in the business itself, and its promoters be utter failures from the standpoint of character. No man is wholly bad; intelligence, like rain, is dispensed to the unjust as well as the just.

Honesty, however, is not and cannot be a question of policy, in the final analysis. Men who prate of their honesty are as objectionable as the other extreme. To paraphrase Emerson: God is there, or He isn't. No credit attaches to an honest man, but discredit attaches to a dishonest one. What an unscrupulous and dishonest man actually is trying to do, and temporarily thinks he succeeds in doing, is to beat this game we call Life. It cannot be done.

A. L. BOYD.

Disagrees With Mayor Beach.

To The Star: The writer noticed in The Sunday Star a report of the remarks of our mayor at a picnic sponsored by the Twentieth Century Republican Club. As a Republican interested in the success of the Republican party, it is the writer's opinion that the remarks quoted were most puerile and certainly had very little to do with the issues of the coming campaign, unless, in the opinion of our mayor, mere personalities can take the place of economic argument.

The fact, if it is a fact, that the wife of Mr. T. J. Pendergast should own jewelry of greater value than the house owned by Mr. Beach or that the wife of Mr. T. J. Pendergast should have three fur coats, whereas the wife of Mr. Beach has none, does not strike the writer as being any forcible argument why the Republican party should come out victorious in the spring election.

It is the writer's hope that those who have taken over the management of the Republican party in Kansas City, as well as those who feel that they also are entitled to some voice in its affairs, may for once get together and select candidates who can bring to the fold of the Republican party all those who are interested in its success, be they Republicans, independent voters or dissatisfied Democrats, and that the betterment of civic conditions will be the issue in the campaign rather than personalities relating to the personal adornment and wearing apparel of individuals. R. M. BROCKETT.

Vice-president C. A. Brockett Cement Company.

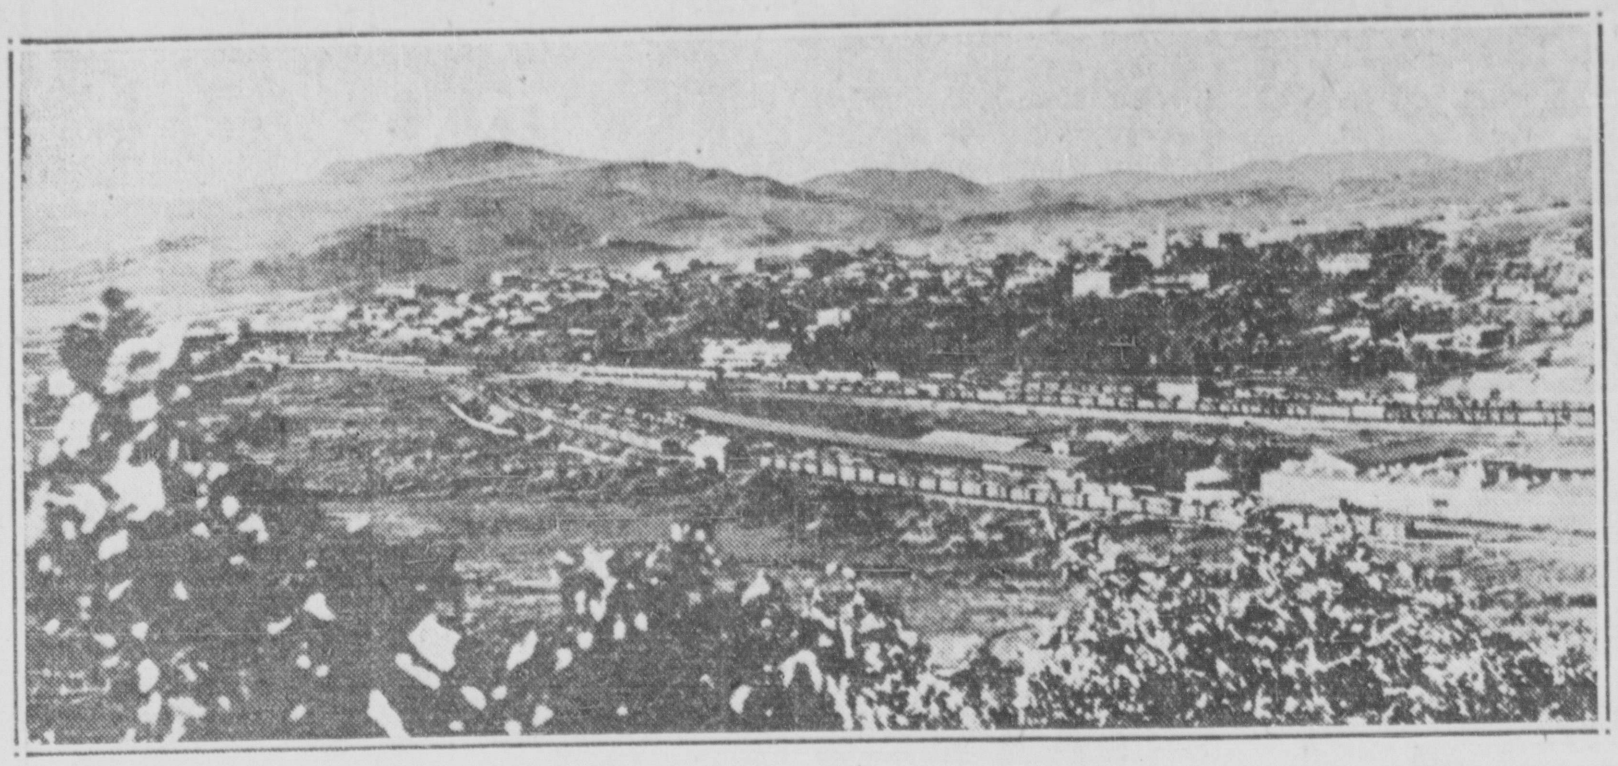
SOVIET FIRE BRINGS DEATH AND DESTRUCTION TO A MANCHURIAN CITY.



The city of Pogranichnaya, in Northeastern Manchuria, has been the target of Soviet artillery and air raids recently, many buildings, including the railway station, being destroyed. Many lives were reported lost in the heavy fire directed from the Russian lines nearby, one dispatch saying forty Chinese soldiers and twenty railway employees were killed. The photograph shows the town before it was almost destroyed.

TRENCHES ADJOIN MANCHULI, A DESERTED CITY FEARING WAR

Almost as Much Russian as Chinese, the Metropolis of Manchuria Has Folded Up Its Business While Troops Camp Nearby in Rail Crisis.

Copyright, 1929, by the North American Newspaper Alliance (The Kansas City Star and other newspapers).

MANCHULI, Sept. 12.—Within sight of this wind-swept frontier town and of the blue cupolas of the Russian orthodox church, which is its principal landmark, two lines of trenches face each other on opposite hills.

One, facing south, shelters the outposts of the Russians; the other is occupied by the advanced guard of the Chinese troops rushed to this city, the northern terminal of the Chinese Eastern railway when the road was taken over by the Manchurian authorities.

Near Kenghis Khan's Wall.

At this point China shades imperceptibly into Siberia. Except for the ruins of a wall said to have been built by Genghis Khan there is no definite line of demarcation to separate the area over which Mukden exercises control from that which is under the banner of the sickle and hammer.

The population is mixed Chinese and Russian, mixed in more senses than one. A not uncommon sight is that of a broad-shouldered Chinese peasant in ankle-high boots, cloth cap and a blouse worn on the outside of the trousers, Russian fashion, or of a blond Russian woman, sturdy, flat-faced and high cheekboned, dressed in the long, straight dress with choker collar affected by Chinese women.

Externally, however, Manchuli is a Siberian rather than a Chinese town. The houses are built solidly, many of rough-hewn pines, and the double windows tell an eloquent story of the severe, if snowless, winters that visit North Manchuria. The streets are wide enough for a dozen oxcarts side by side, and become mud pits in time of rain. Surrounding the town lie the low barren hills typical of the thousand on thousand miles of steppes stretching to the north and the east.

Town Is Almost Deserted.

Since the middle of July, when the Manchurian crisis arose in its present acute form, Manchuli has presented the appearance of a deserted town. The Soviet Russians who lived here, most of them working either for the Chinese Eastern or the Trans-Baikal railroad, the latter line connecting at Chita with the main route of the Trans-Siberian road which serves as a link between Asia and Europe, have for the most part crossed the line or sought shelter elsewhere. Many Chinese have followed suit and so have white Russians.

Many stores and houses fly British, American or Japanese flags, although the number of Japanese here is few, and there are no other foreigners except some stranded wayfarers hoping for the resumption of Trans-Siberian traffic, and one Englishman in the customs service. The boarded-up store fronts and houses give eloquent evidence of this exodus, which reached floodtide with the Russian ultimatum.

How many troops the Russians have concentrated opposite Manchuli is the subject of very considerable speculation here. Nobody actually knows, but it is believed to be about a division. The Chinese early in August had about 5,000 troops, but their numbers appear to have been reinforced lately.

They do not impress one with their war-making capacity. Many of them are boys. No airplanes are available; they have few machine guns and no heavy artillery.

Chang Hsueh-liang, nominal head of the three provinces which make up Manchuria, is supposed to have a large and fairly well-trained force of at least 200,000. But the young general's treasury is none too well filled at present.

English Starlings.

From the Chestertown (Md.) Transcript.

The English starlings have increased in Kent County to such an extent that thousands of these birds are now feeding on Kent's corn crop and in many instances are consuming and destroying corn to an alarming degree. Probably the most serious damage is caused by the birds cutting the husk away and leaving the grain exposed to the elements, causing it to rot.

AN 'AMERICAN ENTENTE'

A NEW INTERPRETATION OF THE MONROE DOCTRINE IS HEARD.

Venezuelan Statesman, Speaking at Geneva, Says Latin Faith in United States Has Not Been Misplaced.

(By the Associated Press.)

GENEVA, Sept. 12.—Asserting a real entente among the peoples of the North and South American continents could be developed, Cesar Zumeta, Venezuelan statesman and representative on the council of the League of Nations, today made an important declaration regarding the Monroe Doctrine.

He spoke at a conference of the signatory nations of the World Court of International Justice, and the chairman of the conference, Prof. W. J. M. Van Eysinga of Holland, announced that in view of the importance of the declaration it should be reproduced in full in the minutes.

A BASIS FOR HIS OPTIMISM.

"In recording the vote of my government for the protocol of adhesion of the United States to the permanent court of international justice," said Zumeta, "I have done so the more willingly because of my personal interpretation. If the reservations of the United States were to be applied in connection with a dispute between American states, these latter would always find judicial means of agreement in conformity with law and a competent jurisdiction.

"My optimism is not blind. Preoccupations which the Monroe Doctrine inspires are daily losing in our continent the acuteness which they seem to retain on the other side of the Atlantic. This doctrine has been, is, and will be, at each stage of its development, no more than a variable whose expression is the result of play of two orders of forces—that of a powerful unity, the United States, in the presence of that of the plurality formed by other American republics.

AN INTER-AMERICAN CONSCIENCE.

"This variable now plays the part of a new force, that of the spirit of inter-American conscience, whose influence has been beneficial.

"It is in the high domains of this conscience that a real continental entente between all our peoples can be developed.

"It is in this inter-American spirit of loyal co-operation in the work of justice and peace in which the world is engaged that we salute this protocol which creates new bonds of world solidarity under the auspices of the League of Nations."

Reduce the Acid

In sick stomachs—instantly

Sick stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are over-stimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour.

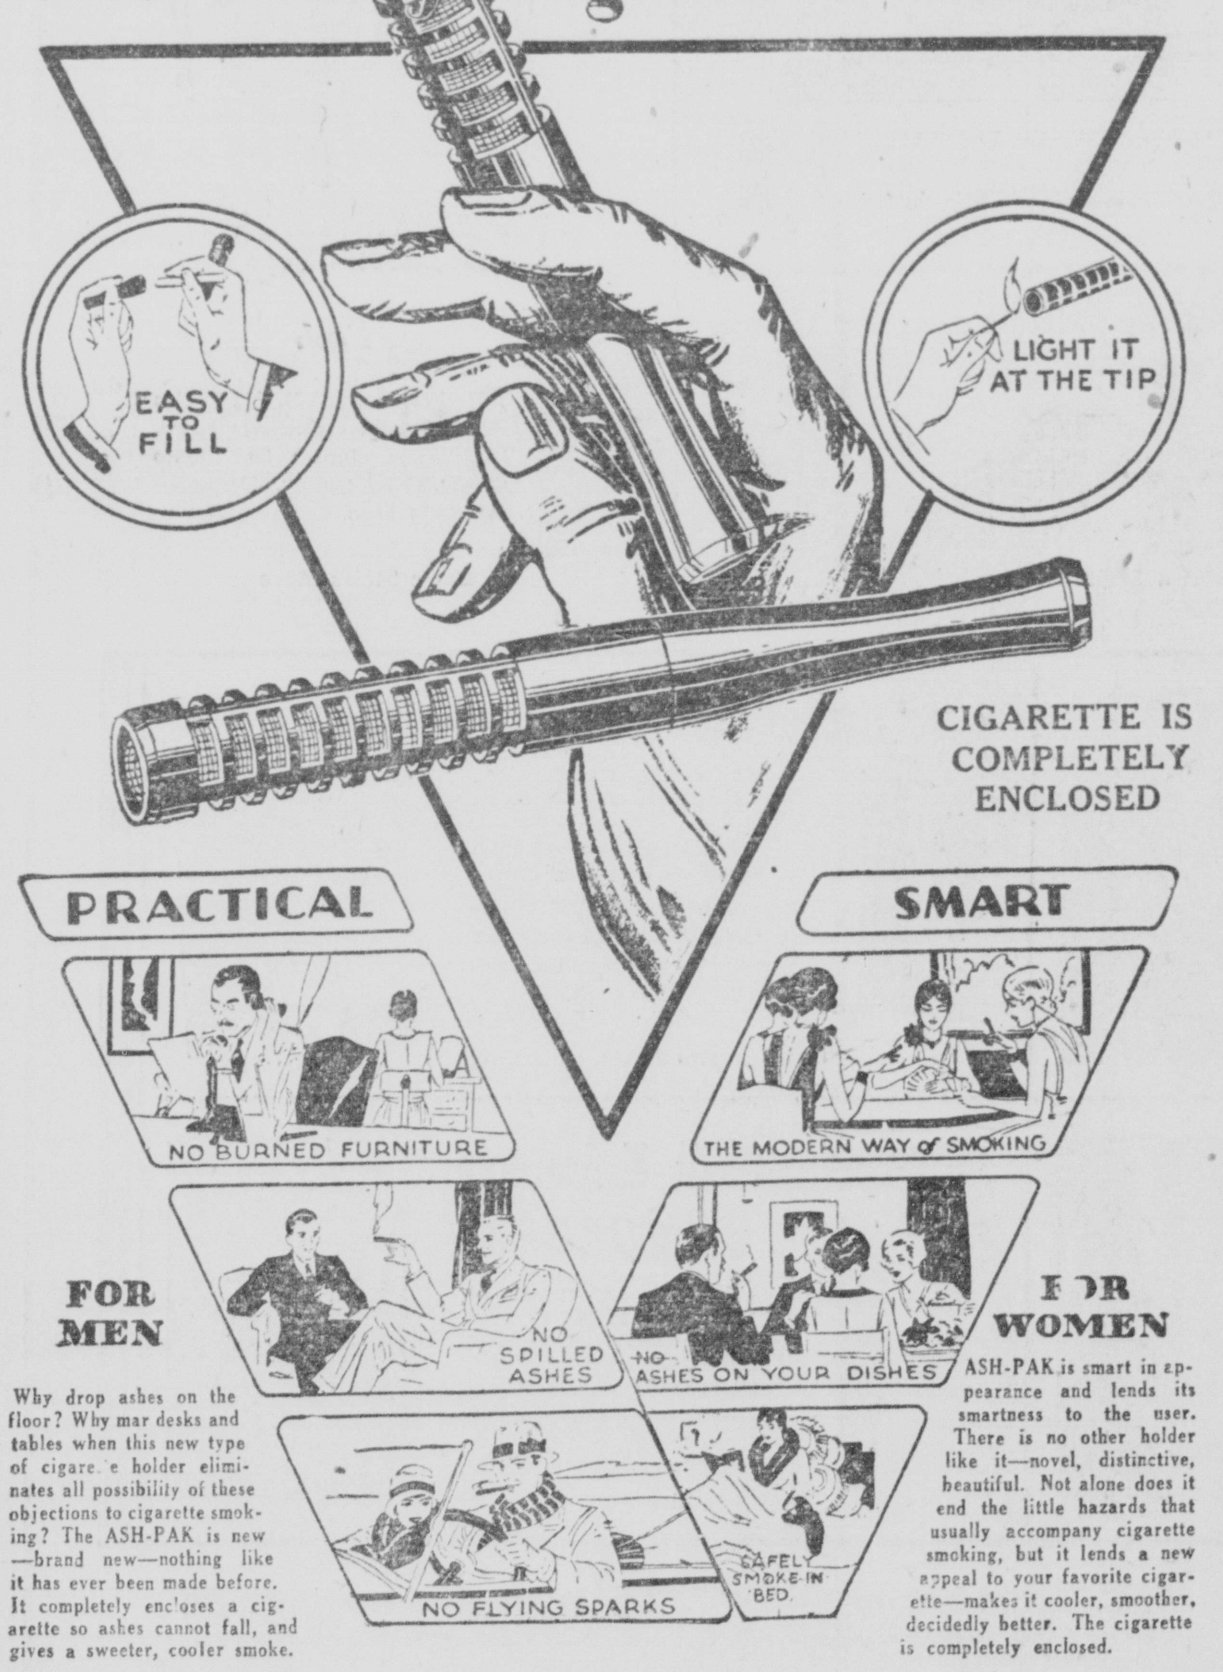
Alkali kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because one harmless, tasteless dose neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Since its invention, 50 years ago, it has remained the standard with physicians everywhere.

Take a spoonful in water and your unhappy condition will probably end in five minutes. Then you will always know what to do. Crude and harmful methods will never appeal to you. Go prove this for your own sake. It may save a great many disagreeable hours.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drug store.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor, Charles H. Phillips, since 1875.

ASH-PAK
The Safety Cigarette Holder



FOR MEN

Why drop ashes on the floor? Why mar desks and tables when this new type of cigarette holder eliminates all possibility of these objections to cigarette smoking? The ASH-PAK is new—brand new—nothing like it has ever been made before. It completely encloses a cigarette so ashes cannot fall, and gives a sweeter, cooler smoke.

FOR WOMEN

ASH-PAK is smart in appearance and lends its smartness to the user. There is no other holder like it—novel, distinctive, beautiful. Not alone does it end the little hazards that usually accompany cigarette smoking, but it lends a new appeal to your favorite cigarette—makes it cooler, smoother, decidedly better. The cigarette is completely enclosed.

A Smart New Way to Smoke a Cigarette

Enjoy your smokes with this newest and smartest of all cigarette holders. Make your hostess happy. You can't drop ashes on costly carpets and rugs for the Ash-Pak cigarette holder completely encloses the cigarette and ashes are retained until completely smoked. No need to look around for ash receivers or to use dainty dishes at the table for this purpose. Avoid the danger of burned clothing and upholstery caused by flying sparks. The Ash-Pak removes all possibility of these accidents and makes cigarette smoking safe as well as enjoyable.

Ash-Pak is ingenious. A clever arrangement of fine wire mesh holds the ashes until your smoke is finished. It prevents any possibility of flying sparks, for these are within the wire screen. The case of beautifully colored bakelite is quite the smartest thing you've ever seen—as modern as this season's debutante—as distinguished as a foreign diplomat.

Wherever Tobacco Goods Are Sold

A half-turn of the barrel of Ash-Pak separates it from the mouthpiece. Your cigarette slips in; the barrel goes on with another half-turn. Then light up! How cool—how refreshing—the smoke tastes! Lay Ash-Pak anywhere—even on a sheaf of papers. Your cigarette, though burning, cannot possibly set fire to anything. Here, indeed, is cigarette smoking robbed of all its hazards. Enjoy a smoke in bed, if you wish . . . there is no danger.

Ash-Pak is sold wherever you find smokers' articles—in Department Stores, Drug Stores, Cigar Stores—in fact, wherever you find a tobacco counter, there you'll find Ash-Pak. The price is one dollar, and you can choose from a variety of colors. Ash-Paks are selling rapidly. If, by chance, your dealer has sold his supply, you can secure one direct from the manufacturers by sending a dollar.

ATWATER KENT MANUFACTURING COMPANY A. Atwater Kent, President 4700 Wissahickon Avenue, Philadelphia, Pa.

What It Means to Be President.

PRESIDENT THE CHAMPION OF THE UNORGANIZED MAJORITY

In the Defense of the Rights and Liberties of the People, Chief Exécutive Should Resist Encroachments Upon His Lawful Authority, Coolidge Says.

By CALVIN COOLIDGE.
ARTICLE V.

IN determining upon all his actions, the President has to remember that he is dealing with two different minds. One is the mind of the country, largely intent upon its own personal affairs and, while not greatly interested in the government, yet desirous of seeing it conducted in an orderly and dignified manner for the advancement of the public welfare. Those who compose this mind wish to have the country prosperous and are opposed to unjust taxation and public extravagance. At the same time, they have a patriotic pride which moves them with so great a desire to see things well done that they are willing to pay for it. They gladly contribute their money to place the United States in the lead. In general, they represent the public opinion of the land.

But they are unorganized, formless and inarticulate. Against a compact and well drilled minority they do not appear to be very effective. They are nevertheless the great power in our government. I have constantly appealed to them and have seldom failed in enlisting their support. They are the court of last resort and their decisions are final.

POLITICAL MIND IS ARTIFICIAL.

They are, however, the indirect, rather than the direct, power. The immediate authority with which the President has to deal is vested in the political mind. In order to get things done, he has to work through that agency. Some of our Presidents have appeared to lack comprehension of the political mind. Although I have been associated with it for many years, I always found difficulty in understanding it. It is a strange mixture of vanity and timidity, of an obsequious attitude at one time and a delusion of grandeur at another time, of the most selfish preferment combined with the most sacrificing patriotism. The political mind is the product of men in public life who have been twice spoiled. They have been spoiled with praise and they have been spoiled with abuse. With them nothing is natural, everything is artificial. A few rare souls escape these influences and maintain a vision and a judgment that is unimpaired. They are a great comfort to every President and of great service to their country. But they are not sufficient in number so that the public business can be transacted like a private business.

It is because in their hours of timidity the congress becomes subservient to the importunities of organized minorities that the President comes more and more to stand as the champion of the rights of the whole country. Organizing such minorities has come to be a well-recognized industry at Washington.

"THE PRESIDENT HAS TENDED TO BECOME THE CHAMPION OF THE PEOPLE, BECAUSE HE IS SOLELY REPONSIBLE FOR HIS ACTS.

They are oftentimes led by persons of great ability, who display much skill in bringing their influences to bear on the congress. They have ways of securing newspaper publicity, deluging senators and representatives with petitions, and overwhelming them with imprecations that are oftentimes decisive in securing the passage of bills. While much of this legislation is not entirely bad, almost all of it is excessively expensive. If it were not for the rules of the house and the veto power of the President, within two years these activities would double the cost of the government.

PARTY SPIRIT WEAKENING.

Under our system the President is not only the head of the government, but he is the head of his party. The last twenty years have witnessed a decline in party spirit and a distinct weakening in party loyalty. While an independent attitude on the part of the citizen is not without a certain public advantage, yet it is necessary under our form of government to have political parties. Unless someone is a partisan, no one can be an independent. The congress is organized entirely in accordance with party policy. The parties appeal to the voters in behalf of their platforms. The people make their choice on those issues. Unless thoso who are elected on the same party platform associate themselves together to carry out its provisions, the election becomes a mockery. The independent voter who has joined with others in placing a party nominee in office finds his efforts were all in vain if the person he helps elect refuses or neglects to keep the platform pledges of his party.

Many occasions arise in the congress when party lines are very properly disregarded, but if there is to be a responsible government proceeding in accordance with the express mandate of the people, and not merely at the whim of those who happen to be victorious at the polls, on all the larger and important issues there must be party solidarity. It is the business of the President as party leader to do the best he can to see that the declared party platform purposes are translated into legislative and administrative action. Oftentimes I secured support from those without my party and had opposition from those within my party, in attempting to keep my platform pledges.

Such a condition is entirely anomalous. It leaves the President as the sole repository of party responsibility. But it is one of the reasons that the presidential office has grown in popular estimation and favor, while the congress has declined. The country feels that the President is willing to assume responsibility, while his party in the congress is not. I never felt it was my duty to attempt to coerce senators or representatives, or to take reprisals. The people sent them to Washington. I felt I had discharged my duty when I had done the best I could with them. In this way I avoided almost entirely a personal opposition, which I think was of more value to the country than to attempt to prevail through arousing personal fear.

Under our system it ought to be remembered that the power to initiate policies has to be centralized somewhere. Unless the party leaders exercising it can depend on loyalty and organization support, the party in which it is reposed will become entirely ineffective. A party which is ineffective will soon be discarded. If a party is to endure as a serviceable instrument of government for the country, it must possess and display a healthy spirit of party loyalty. Such a manifestation in the congress would do more than anything else to rehabilitate it in the esteem and confidence of the country.

CHAMPION OF THE PEOPLE.

It is natural for man to seek power. It was because of this trait of human nature that the founders of our institutions provided a system of checks and balances. They placed all their public officers under constitutional limitations. They had little fear of the courts and were inclined to regard legislative bodies as the natural champions of their liberties. They were very apprehensive that the executive might seek to exercise arbitrary powers. Under our Constitution such fears have seldom been well founded. The President has tended to become the champion of the people because he is held solely responsible for his acts, while in the congress, where responsibility is divided, it has developed that there is much greater danger of arbitrary action.

It has therefore become increasingly imperative that the President should resist any encroachment upon his constitutional powers. One of the most important of these is the power of appointment. The Constitution provides that he shall nominate and, by and with the advice and consent of the senate, appoint. A constant pressure is exerted by the senators to make their own nominations, and the congress is constantly proposing laws which undertake to deprive the President of the appointive power. Different departments and bureaus are frequently supporting measures that would make of them self-perpetuating bodies to which no appointments could be made that they did not originate. While I have always sought co-operation and advice, I have likewise resisted these efforts, sometimes by refusing to adopt recommendations and sometimes by the exercise of the veto power. One of the farm relief bills, and later a public health measure, had these clearly unconstitutional limitations on the power of appointment. In the defense of the rights and liberties of the people, it is necessary for the President to resist all encroachments upon his lawful authority.

All of these trials and encouragements come to each President. It is impossible to explain them. Even after passing through the presidential office, I find it still remains a mystery. Why one person is selected for it and many others are rejected cannot be told. Why people respond as they do to its influence seems to be beyond inquiry. Any man who has been placed in the White House cannot feel that it is the result of his own exertions or his own merit. Some power outside and beyond him becomes manifest through him. As he contemplates the workings of his office he comes to realize with an increasing sense of humility that he is but an instrument in the hands of God.

[THE END.]

"A THRILL IN LEARNING"

DR. BROOKS SAYS GREATEST JOY IS IN INTELLECTUAL UNFOLDING.

At Opening Convocation, the M. U. President Explains the Part Student Activities Have in University.

(By The Star's Own Service.)

COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 12.—Participation in the extra-curricular activities of the university, such as athletics, debating, music and society, is a rightful part of every student's life, and unless he has a part in some of them he has not taken full advantage of his opportunities, Dr. Stratton D. Brooks, president of the University of Missouri, so told new students at a convocation this morning which formally opened the institution's eighty-eighth academic year.

"But," the university president continued, "neither separately nor collectively are they as important as some of you now think them to be.

"Those things," he added, "comprised the college atmosphere, while its academic activities were the solid earth in which things of importance grow."

"I hope you do not think I am proposing to take all the joy out of life," Dr. Brooks continued. "It is a great game—this game of life. But what about the joy in it? Let me say that there is nothing to compare with the satisfaction that comes from intellectual unfolding. No pleasure greater than that of seeking and mastering the unknown. It is but the extension of that inborn instinct that urges the baby to reach for the candle flame, but this time the reaching is governed by intelligent desire and in full confidence that the results will be beneficial and not harmful."

Music for the convocation was furnished by members of the school of fine arts faculty.

Class work for the fall semester began this morning.

CLAIMS A MELON RECORD.

One Weighing 140 Pounds Arouses Senator Robinson of Arkansas.

(By the Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—A bid for recognition as the home of the "world's largest watermelons" was lodged with the federal farm board today on behalf of the little town of Hope, Ark., and a melon weighing 140 pounds was presented as proof of what can be grown there.

Senator Joe T. Robinson, who thinks there is no place in the world like Arkansas, presented the melon for the Hope Chamber of Commerce. He said thousands of such melons were grown in that vicinity and already this year 500 melons weighing more than 100 pounds had been shipped from there.

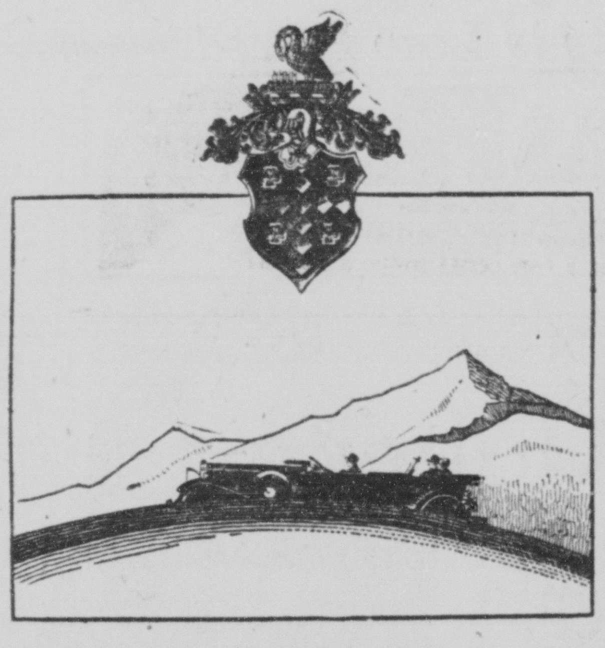
The New Series PACKARD EIGHTS

outstandingly more advanced, more beautiful, more luxurious than ever before



THE new series Packard Straight Eights are now on display. We want you to see them no matter whether you are now planning the purchase of a car or not. They are so advanced in engineering, so rich in luxury, so complete in appointments, that we know they will delight anyone interested in all that is latest and best in fine car design and craftsmanship.

The new series includes the three Packard lines—Standard, Custom and De Luxe. Prices at the factory range from $2375 to $2775 for the Standard Eight; from $3190 to $3885 for the Custom Eight; and from $4585 to $5350 for the De Luxe Eight. Individual custom cars are also available to order.

Entire Fine Car Range Is Included

These three Packard Eight lines completely cover the fine car field—and dominate it! There is a Packard Eight available at the lowest price for which a truly fine car can be sold. And there are Packard Eights on up to the most luxurious individual custom creations obtainable anywhere in the world.

In accordance with Packard's long established policy, the fundamental grace and beauty of Packard lines have been again retained. Packard does not depreciate cars in the hands of owners by frequent and unnecessary changes in appearance. But the new models are outstandingly more beautiful, more luxurious, more advanced than any of the famous Packards of the past.

No Convenience or Comfort Has Been Forgotten

When you inspect the new Packard Eights you will agree that nothing that can be provided for the comfort, the convenience and the enjoyment of owners has been omitted. It is literally true that Packard engineers and designers can think of no way in which the new series cars can be made either better or more beautiful.

Packard cars have always been noted for their fine engineering and supreme craftsmanship; their superb performance, and long life; their comfort, beauty and distinction. In the new series cars Packard has surpassed every previous Packard achievement in these fields and has also given even greater attention to refinement and details of appointments—to incidental comforts and conveniences.

Women drivers, particularly, will appreciate the new arrangement of the sun visors, the adjustable driver's seat and steering gear, the newly perfected shatter-proof glass, the dashboard lockers and the new beauty of fixtures and upholstery. While to men the improved powerplant with its new four-speed transmission and still further refined Packard straight-eight engine is sure to appeal. Here is a new smoothness, a new ability, in traffic or on the open road.

Every Engineering Improvement Embodied

Untried novelties in design are never incorporated in Packard cars. Only such improvements and refinements as meet Packard standards after long and thorough tests on Packard's own million dollar proving grounds are offered the Packard clientele. Yet for 30 years Packard has been responsible for many of the most important inventions and engineering advances made by the industry, and has pioneered most of the mechanical improvements developed in recent years.

Today's Packard Eights, therefore, include those tried and proven engineering improvements, those refinements of detail, those conveniences and luxuries which the world naturally expects in cars bearing the Packard name.

Come in and see these new masterpieces—ride in them, drive them yourself. And then tell us, if you can, what could be done to meet more completely your ideal of what a truly fine car ought to be.

RAIL MERGERS UP AGAIN

I. C. C. TAKES UP CONSOLIDATIONS OF EASTERN LINES.

But Action on Unification Probably Will Be Deferred Until Commission Decides on Its Own Plan.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Railroad consolidation, particularly among eastern roads, was taken up again today by the interstate commerce commission and is expected to engage the attention of the commission the next few months.

The commission, following its August recess, has resumed its deliberations and is reported to be giving much consideration to the tentative consolidation plan prepared by Commissioner Porter. The details of the Porter plan have been carefully guarded and action on a number of important unification plans probably will be deferred until after the commission has propounded its own general plan.

WABASH PLAN IS PENDING.

Among the pending plans are those of the Chesapeake & Ohio, Baltimore & Ohio and the Wabash asking for authority to link up many eastern roads into comprehensive systems. Although these three applications have been on file for several months no date has been set for hearings on the questions involved.

Another merger plan involving the linking up of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads into a system to be known as the Great Northern Pacific, has been pending before the commission since July, 1927 and there has been no inkling of the commission's attitude toward the proposal.

The Baltimore & Ohio has also applied for authority to acquire control of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh and the Buffalo & Susquehanna and these applications have served to complicate the merger situation.

A DEADLOCK IN ONE.

The Pittsburgh & West Virginia, controlled by the Taplin Brothers of Cleveland, are trying to get the Wheeling & Lake Erie, as are the Van Sweringen-owned Nickel Plate, and the Wabash. The holdings of the New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio and Nickel Plate, have been trusteed pending a final decision of the commission as to the Weeling's place in the merger map.

Control of the Western Maryland also is being eagerly sought by a number of important eastern roads. The Baltimore & Ohio, which owns control of the Western Maryland, has been cited by the commission under the Clayton antitrust act for "illegally" holding this control. The Baltimore & Ohio has proposed trusteeing the stock until the commission can decide the Western Maryland's proper allocation.

While the commission's ideas on the subject of consolidation are still undisclosed, the best opinion seems to be that the status of the Pennsylvania and the New York Central presents insuperable obstacles to more than four major systems in the East. L. H. Loree, president of the Lehigh Valley, is sponsoring a fifth trunk line system, but apparently is making little headway with it.

FOG AND CLOUDS HALT PLANE.

W. A. E. Trimotor Returns to Airport Twice After Take-Off.

Extremely low visibility in the vicinity of Kansas City today interfered with the departure of the Los Angeles-bound Western Air Express trimotor plane from the Kansas City Airport.

The first attempt to get away was made at the scheduled time of 8:30 o'clock. The plane returned soon after its takeoff. Another attempt was made later, but with the same result. Reports of clearing weather indicated the W. A. E. machine might leave later today, proceeding as far westward as possible before darkness should interfere.

The Central Airlines, Universal and Southwest Air Fast Express machines departed from Fairfax Airport as usual. Thick weather was reported in nearly all directions from Kansas City, but the planes of the three latter lines did not return following their departures. The Central Airlines and Universal planes arrived on schedule.

A FRAUD IN NEW MONEY.

U. S. Agents Find $5 Note Raised to $10 at Wichita.

The first illegal raising in this part of the country of a note of the new currency was found yesterday by United States secret service agents at Wichita. A $5 federal reserve note had been raised to $10.

W. H. Davenport, head of the federal secret service here, said the raising was a crude job. Ink was used to change the numbers, he said, but a second look at the note revealed the $5 number beneath the false $10 mark. The portrait of Lincoln, used only on the $5, notes was on the raised note. Hamilton's picture appears on $10 federal notes.

Only two other instances of illegally raised federal notes have been reported.

Peggy Joyce's Husband No. 5 Goes to Work

Count Gosta Morner, who was the fifth of Peggy Hopkins Joyce's husbands and who was divorced by her because, as she said, "he never worked during the six weeks we were married," is working like a steam engine in New Haven, Conn., as part owner in a radio sales agency, and for which he makes house to house visits as a salesman.

THE count has shed his title and his coat, rolled up his sleeves and rolled up sales of $10,000 in the slack month of July. On the most sweltering days this summer he has ridden in a truck from door to door, dressed in knickers, toiling cheerfully, patiently, successfully.

Peggy's parting words to him seemed the spur that started him on this career. "The least a wife can demand of her husband," said she, "is some ambition." That was enough for the big blond nobleman, who used to claim relationship to the king of Sweden, but who now prefers to be known as plain "Mr. Morner." He went right to work.

WON SALES TROPHY.

Count Gosta Morner.

In January, 1928, he began as an electric refrigerator salesman in the Bronx; three months later he was personnel director for the company's metropolitan area and coaching new salesmen in their work. Three months later he was assistant branch manager for the company in Hartford, and a month later won the quota sales trophy for the entire country.

Two months later he became branch manager at Toledo and then left to buy a third interest in a radio and refrigerator agency.

Almost every morning one may see the count climb aboard a truck loaded with radios and with a second truck following. Nine salesmen, trained in his methods, visit every house on a street and where no electric set is already installed ask permission to demonstrate one. Twenty-four hours later the truck returns, to close the sale or remove the set.

The method, employed in other lines, is rare in radio, but has proved eminently successful.

A $10,000 MONTH.

"Why not?" asks the count. "We employ no high-pressure methods. No one is talked into purchasing anything he does not want. If he is receptive we are there to sell it. Last month, when many other organizations gave their men vacations because July is a bad month to sell radios, we did $10,000 worth of business."

During a recent week-end he says he sold $3,000 worth of sets without stirring from his desk.

After hours he divides his interests between painting, swimming and concocting rare sea food and Italian delicacies, for he is an artist, athlete and culinarian of rare ability. He speaks several languages fluently.

Recently he went fishing with a party of Italians off the New Haven breakwater. He assisted in preparing the fish and in fixing brocoli, antipasto and roast chicken in oil. In the interim he engaged in wrestling, swimming and feats of strength.

LAUGHTER NOT ALL CRUEL.

Children, at Least, Laugh Because the World Is Funny.

From the New York Times.

Laughter has always puzzled students of human expression. The old theory that cruelty underlies a really hearty guffaw has been exploded, though people still continue to laugh when a pedestrian slips on a banana peel. But the source of laughter is very complex and cannot be explained on one simple basis.

Children's laughter is often harder to understand than the merriment of adults. A committee of investigators at Teachers college has just reported the findings of a long study of this subject. Nursery and kindergarten children were watched, and it was agreed that they laughed because they were growing conscious of the things and particularly the people around them as entities separate from themselves.

It is a cheering thought for grown people that the youngsters start out by finding this a funny world. The notion that childhood was a happy period used to be accepted without argument, but there have been so many novels and autobiographies relating the misery of early life that nowadays that conviction has been abandoned. If the child researchers can restore something of our old belief in childish gayety they deserve a vote of thanks.

Rival of Gretna Green.

British embassies used to be rivals of Gretna Green for runaway marriages. The Channel was a more effective barrier to pursuing parents than the Scottish border. In mid-Victorian days twenty marriages a week took place at the chapel attached to the Paris embassy, now the dining room, and the majority were elopements. The couple was required to give only 24 hours' notice. Now, three weeks' notice must be given before the knot can be tied. When the Embassy Chapel was closed and a new church erected several hundreds of couples found that their marriages were illegal. The house of commons had refused to vote the purchase money for the church, hence it was not technically British ground. Negotiations were temporarily delayed. When completed a special act was passed to legalize the marriages which had been taking place in the new church.

Marital Paralysis.

From the Boston Transcript.

"When are Joan and Ed to be married?"

"Never, I'm afraid."

"Why, how's that?"

"Well, she won't marry him until he pays his debts and he can't pay his debts until she marries him."

A Fool in the Market.

EDGAR A. GUEST.

Bill Brown bought stocks when they were low
And sold them out when they were high.
Who would get rich has but to know
Exactly when to sell and buy.
Bill Brown is now a millionaire
While I have not a dime to spare.
The difference, I'd have you know,
I bought 'em high and sold 'em low.

Bill Brown made money out of "grape."
He bought his shares at twenty-three.
The figures climbed upon the tape.
"At ninety-four I'll sell," said he,
I bought some shares at ninety-four,
Believing that they still would soar,
The shares Bill had belong to me—
They're quoted now at twenty-three.

If I but knew when low is low,
And I could sense when high is high,
Then when to sell my stocks I'd know
And also when to rush to buy.
The difference is slight, you see;
But oh, it means so much to me!
I seem to be the ne'er-do-well
Who buys when wise men start to sell.

GIRLS STOP GROWING AT 16.

But in Boys, Ageing During Adolescence Continues Until 18.

From Tit-Bits, London.

"There is a marked difference between boys and girls in the way they grow, particularly during adolescence."

This is the opinion of Miss R. M. Fleming, a well known British authority on child welfare. Miss Fleming, who has observed about 5,000 children over a period of eleven years, has followed about 700 of them to adult growth.

"Growth in the girl practically ceases between 15 and 16, and in many cases earlier," she said. "But in the boy this is prolonged until 18 and often later. The girl, having to get her growth over in a much shorter period and doing it in rather a jerky way, tends to go through a phase lasting from twelve to eighteen months when she is disinclined for any physical or mental exercise, and welcomes group control and routine.

"The boy, on the other hand, tends to have a marked freeing of energy and wants to undertake some particular individual task outside routine and tends to resent group control."

All She Asked.

From Tit-Bits, London.

"Will you let me have my way in everything?" she asked.

"Of course I will, darling."

"Will you permit me to go home to mother whenever I want to?"

"I should never think of being cruel enough to keep you away from your mother when you wished to see her."

"And may I have a regular allowance to spend just as I like?"

"Certainly. I shall be as liberal in that respect as possible."

"And may I call you up on the 'phone during business hours?"

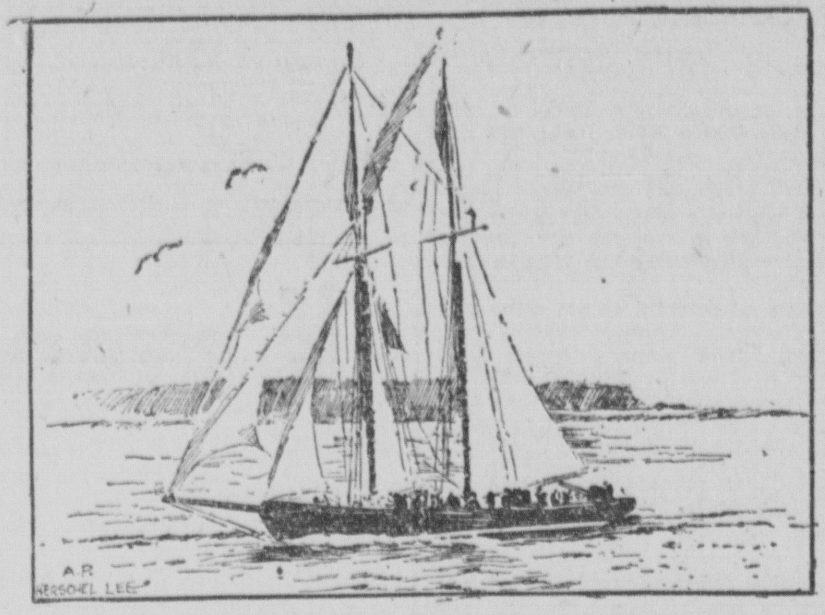
"I should be unhappy if I did not hear your sweet voice every little while."

"I'm afraid you will forget your promises after we are married."

"No, I won't. Is there anything else you want me to promise?"

"I can't think of anything just now. Oh, yes. There's one other thing. Will you promise not to be cross if I sometimes call you by the name of someone else I've been engaged to? I'm so forgetful about such things."

BEAUTY AND UTILITY.



Gloucester fishing boats are built for speed and seaworthiness, but they combine with those qualities the added attraction of beauty of line. The picture shows the schooner Progress, which won the recent fishing boat race at Gloucester, beating her nearest rival ten minutes.

The "Hush" Policy Is Wrong in Dealing With the Modern Child

Emily Post in Collier's.

THE pace since the World War has gone so fast, so many signposts have been overturned, that only those who have kept up with the advance can possibly stake out the new boundaries.

In the past day of strict chaperonage, it was not thought proper—because it was not necessary—that a girl know any of the "ugly things of life." "Hush, the moment the children come within hearing!" was a household law as fixed as that breakfast was a morning meal.

Not merely gossip or scandal, but matters of life, death, honor and ethical standards, were not for the children to hear about—except as morals to adorn an occasional tale of warning, delivered as a curtain lecture.

PLAIN TALK BEFORE CHILD.

Today the signpost "Hush" should be changed to "Shout," since parents who are wise will choose the time the children are in the room to discuss everything imaginable from high finance to neighborhood gossip. Not with the object of filling their ears with scandal, but in order to place before them the attitude toward everything discussed that the utmost wisdom of their parents can present.

The guarded daughter of the most fashionable and richest goes out night after night with no one but her maid, who either goes home again or sits in the dressing room and sees and hears nothing.

The more typical young girl of America goes out alone with another girl or more likely with a man friend who stops for her and again sees her home. But what she does, how she behaves, even where she goes, her mother and her father have no idea beyond what she happens to choose to tell them, or what they hear accidentally from others.

IF PARENTS ARE FRIENDS.

If she and her mother or father are genuine friends, she will quite possibly volunteer to tell them everything that she thinks is "good for them." And yet even in such cases she is apt to keep to herself the few facts that are of real importance for her parents to know.

Happily such family understanding as that of the Nevins's is within the possibility of a great American majority. Any father can look after his daughter as well as Mr. Nevin looks after Evelyn—if he wants to!

Mr. and Mrs. Nevin and their debutante daughter, Evelyn, go pretty much everywhere together. Nevin, who misses very little, noticed Evelyn was watching a young divorcee, Mrs. Lotis, with obvious approval. Lola Lotis is chic to her finger tips, daringly conspicuous, and though many of her quips are in bad taste, they are invariably amusing.

A SALUTARY EXPERIMENT.

Evelyn's youth was unable to gauge the quite vicious character of Lola; and seeing her apparently admired by the laughing group of men surrounding her, including Tommy Fairway, a friend of her father and her own especial hero, she might very likely have taken Lola's success as a standard, and tried to copy her.

To check such an impulse at the start, Nevin at once asked Fairway home to lunch. In a lull, he said to Fairway:

"Lola was in great form this morning! Do you think Martin'll marry her?"

"Good Lord, I hope not!"

"I thought you liked her! You laugh enough every time she is about."

"Yes, I laugh because she is amusing; I don't know whether I would say I like her."

Nevin continued to Fairway, but intentionally enlightening Evelyn: "Bad luck to have her husband repudiate the child! It was like a deathbed scene in a melodrama."

Fairway answered with an indifferent shrug: "If it had happened to any other woman, it could have been put down to delirium. But almost any evidence would do to convict a girl who has gone out of her way to get the reputation that Lola has."

The next time Evelyn saw Mrs. Lotis she wasn't quite so incautious about taking her for a pattern.

Women Run the Drug Stores in Philippine Isles

Dorothy Ducas in the New York Evening Post.

THE most popular occupation for women in the Philippine Islands is pharmacy. Ninety-nine per cent of the people who stand behind drug store counters mixing chemicals together into internal and external balms are feminine. Really!

Why?

"Oh, because they don't have to go out, and they can easily own their own drug stores."

This was the explanation of a group of Philippine women who recently came to New York on a round-the-world voyage which began in Manila March 27 and will end about October 1 in the same city.

Miss Amparo Rodriguez, Mrs. Corazon Torres and Mrs. Rosario Imperial explained the situation between breathless sightseeing of "this oversized city." Miss Rodriguez, daughter of a senator and niece of Antonio Torres, chairman of the police committee of Manila, acted as spokesman, for only she could express herself in English.

PREFER TO STAY IN.

"Women do not like to go out into the streets like men in the Philippines," she explained, sitting primly at the end of a sofa in the lounge of the Hotel Victoria, where the party made its headquarters. "It is the remnants of the old chaperon idea, of course, but it is true. After 300 years of Spanish influence, it is hard to get over old ideas in thirty years of American influence, isn't it?

"Our women are going to school, but they are studying those things they can do later without going out alone. Pharmacy is the best. I, too, am going to be a pharmacist. I shall own my own drug store!"

Strangely enough, Miss Rodriguez confessed, although the women are backward enough to avoid spreading out into professions and trades hitherto all-masculine, they continue their work after marriage. It is considered no social liability at all for a woman to work after marriage—if she doesn't go out alone at night!

Women in the Philippines do not vote, and Mrs. Torres and Mrs. Imperial were glad they do not. Miss Rodriguez was not so sure, but she took consolation in the thought that women can have something to say about the management of their country through influencing their men folk.

Mrs. Torres said she would enjoy living in New York and having a profession or business, but she did not think she would enjoy politics.

"For men," she said, vehemently nodding.

Except for these little differences between American and Philippine women the visiting trio could see few distinctions. The women of Manila live much like the women of New York, they said. They wear the same clothes—indeed, Mrs. Torres in her rose tweed coat and printed silk frock, Mrs. Imperial in her beige crepe ensemble, and Miss Rodriguez, wearing blue and white polka-dotted silk, with mannish white blouse, looked as if they stepped right out of Fifth avenue or the Rue de la Paix.

BEAUTY STANDARDS HIGH.

The standard of beauty is very high in the Philippines, she added. Beauty contests are held in all the little towns periodically, and each year a Miss Philippines is selected. The girls who enter these contests look almost European or American. This year's prize winner might have a fling in Hollywood any day.

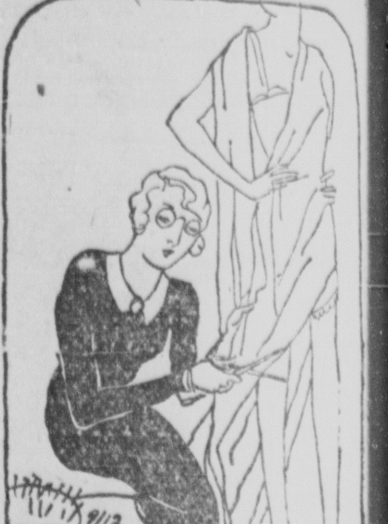
For the Filipinos are fond of calling themselves the "most westernized of the orientals." They point proudly to the fact that 80 per cent of their school teachers are women, that 70 per cent of their stenographers are women, that there are perhaps a dozen women lawyers, one an assistant city counsel. These are considered signs of progress.

Also, there is no prohibition in the Philippines, although they fly the American flag. It is correct for women to drink a mild cocktail and champagne with dinner, too.

Mr. Torres, happening in at the end of the interview his wife and two friends were giving, vowed there was no drunkenness at all in the Philippines.

Mr. Torres, in spite of the lukewarm sentiments of his wife, is an ardent believer in woman suffrage. He was educated at Cornell university, and thinks his ideas were molded by his acquaintanceship with American ideas there. He said girls in this country did not seem so interested in pharmacy as in his own land, however.

Witty Kitty.



The girl friend says the reason dressmakers are so friendly is because they are great cut-ups, although they have trying times.

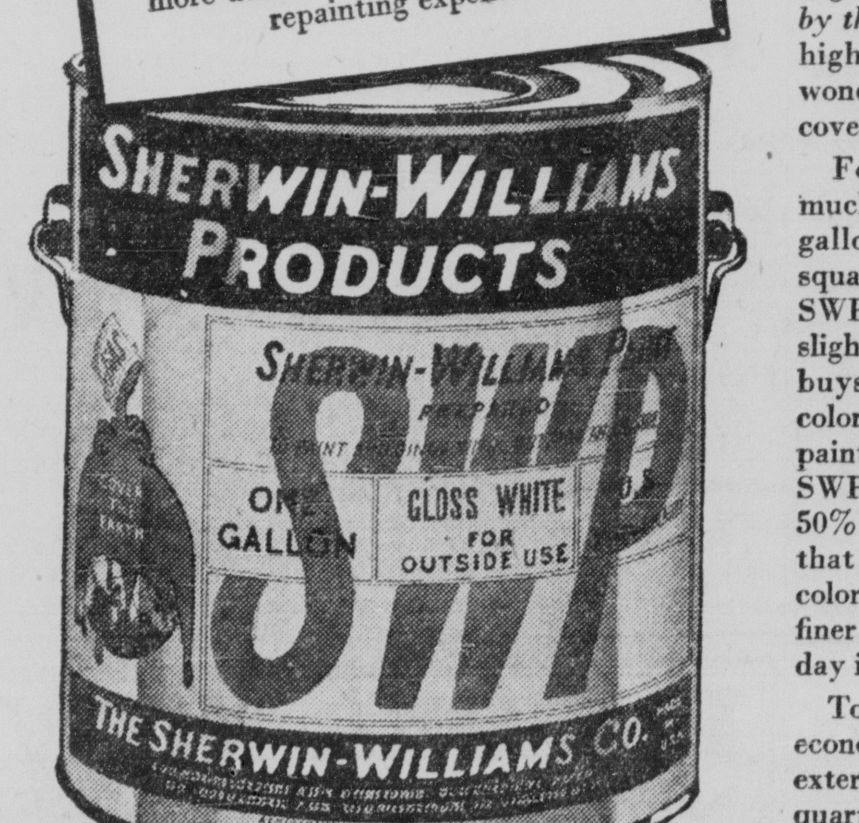
Fine old SWP House Paint costs even less than cheaper paints
Fewer gallons are needed. Colors are more durable. Lasts longer and cuts repainting expense.



You need fewer gallons

SWP House Paint may cost slightly more than cheaper paint by the gallon. But that slightly higher gallon price buys SWP's wonderful "body" and amazing covering quality.

Fewer gallons of SWP do a much better job because every gallon thoroughly covers more square feet of surface. Therefore, SWP costs less on the wall. That slightly higher "gallon" price also buys SWP's rich, weatherproof colors and a tough, armor-like paint film that lasts years longer. SWP often cuts repainting costs 50% to 75%. And do not forget that the superior quality of SWP colors gives your house a much finer appearance. Even to the last day it has a quality look.

Arab Herdsman Added Cheese to Diet of Mankind Centuries Ago

AN Arab herdsman whose lunch went awry several centuries before Christ is tradition's favorite way of accounting for the origin of the delicious curd called cheese. This desert nomad started out one day equipped for lunch with a bag of dates and a skin bottle, made from the stomach of a calf, filled with milk. One can picture him as the noon sun evokes his hunger and he sits down in the shade of a scrubby bush to eat his bite of food.

He unties the mouth of his milk bottle. His first draught reveals something wrong. He pours out a sample and finds that instead of milk the liquid in his skin bottle is thin, watery and of a kind he has never tasted before. Still, hunger is driving and the liquid has an agreeable taste. So he drinks it—then, by some lucky impulse of curiosity, he cuts open the bottle to see what has happened inside. Immediately he sees what has happened to the "white" part of the milk. It seems to have gathered into lumpy yellow-white masses of moist but solid material.

This Arab, fortunately for cheese lovers, was of a practical turn of mind and in this change in milk he saw decided possibilities. Agreeable to the taste, a little squeezing would make it quite solid and much easier to carry than the milk. Accordingly he relates his experience and his tribe takes up the idea. Thus, if tradition is to be credited, did the world learn how to make one of the most widely used and popular foodstuffs ever added to the diet of mankind.

SWISS LEAD IN CONSUMPTION.

Today cheese is eaten from the Sahara desert to the north pole. The Swiss eat more cheese than any other folk on earth. This speaks well for the value of cheese as a good food stuff, for the very same Swiss connotes sturdiness—ability to scale hazardous mountain tops and wrest a living out of a soil embedded in rocks and glacial ice. Next in the roster of cheese-eaters come the Danes and the Dutch—stout folk both of them, daring mariners, skillful farmers and redoubtable fighters. After them come the French, the English, the Germans and finally, last of all, the Americans. The annual consumption of cheese per individual in this country is 4.14 pounds, while the average Swiss consumes twenty-three pounds each year.

Wisconsin leads all the other states in cheese production today, making some 70 per cent of the nation's total. New York state comes next with 14 per cent and Oregon has climbed to third place in recent years with about 2.4 per cent of the national production. Americans eat their own cheese mostly relying on the fancy imported varieties principally as a luxury food.

CHEESE A REAL DIET OPPORTUNITY.

Greater use of cheese is one of America's most important diet opportunities. And what a variety of shapes, odors and flavors greets one when he enters the world of cheese! There are cheeses large and round like millstones, cheeses as small as a baby's fist—some shaped like bowling balls, some like Indian clubs. The most general classification is divided into soft and hard cheeses, and is further divided into the ripened and unripened kinds.

The most prominent members of the cheese family are as follows: brick, brie (French), caciocavallo (Italian), Camembert (French), Cheddar (American), cottage, cream, Edam (North Holland), Gorgonzola (Italy), Goulda (South Holland), Gruyere (French), Limburger (Belgium), Munster (Germany), Neufchatel (American), Parmesan (Italy), Port Du Salut (Quebec), Roquefort (French), Stilton (England), and Swiss (Valley of Emmen, Switzerland).

Cheese, since it is simply a concentrated form of milk, is a very superior food. Because it is concentrated its fuel value per unit of weight is very high. The kind of protein that is found in cheese is so valuable that if it were the only source of protein in the diet it would, given in sufficient quantity, be adequate not only to maintain life but support normal growth. As to its mineral elements, calcium and phosphorus for building bones and teeth, it is equally valuable. The fat-soluble vitamins A and D only become more concentrated when whole milk is made into cheese. Cheese should occupy an important place in the low-cost diet, since it is so highly concentrated and its digestibility figure is high, 90 to 95 per cent of its total weight is taken up by the body, so there is practically no waste.

Since the passing of the pioneer days good cheese has become both plentiful and low in cost and young America would do well to make a general return to the cheese-eating habits of her ancestors.

Looking into my Mirror

MANY women possess what is correctly described as delicate hair. This is also the type that is known as thin hair or weak hair, and it should be protected and strengthened more than the average, else it will always be a liability to its possessor.

Of course, it must be thoroughly cleansed, but not too vigorously and not too often. A shampoo once every three weeks is frequent enough for this type of hair, and any massage must be done gently, rather than briskly. Brushing may be included, but it must be gentle brushing, with a soft-bristled brush.

Those who have delicate hair should always avoid wearing tight hats, since these interfere with the circulation of the scalp. In fact, hats of any sort should be worn as little as possible, since light and air are good for delicate hair, although too much strong sun should be avoided as being bleaching. At night, such hair should be left loose, unless it is long, when it can be braided into two soft plaits. Such braiding leaves the back of the head bare and open to the air and is highly beneficial to the part of the scalp that is usually covered up.

If this delicate hair comes from a dry scalp, a treatment that is obtainable in many of the better beauty shops is excellent for it. This consists of gently massaging the scalp with oil and then turning either a sun lamp or a lamp that creates heat upon the scalp, thus driving the nourishing oil deep into the pores of the scalp. In treating delicate hair that is also dry, it is helpful to rub the oil along the hair, as well as over the scalp, since this is effective in counteracting brittleness. When this hair becomes broken or split at the end it is well to have it singed by a hairdresser.

The person who has such hair should never experiment with preparations that tend to change the color or with strong rinses or shampoos. Only the purest soap for the shampoo and whatever tonic the individual condition of the scalp requires should be used.

TWEEDS LEAD WOOLS

FALL ENSEMBLES MAY BE IN SEVERAL FABRIC COMBINATIONS.

The Scarf and Bag May Harmonize or Be Made From Identical Material. Silk and Satin Blouses Are Favored.

Since the days of the swooning, smelling salts lady, sport has ceased to be a masculine noun. The pursuit of sport has failed to condemn the sportswoman as a dashing, unladylike, unfeminine being who always looks a fright. On the very contrary, sports clothes though not in the least losing their practicality and sensibility, are becoming so extremely attractive that the woman who chooses them carefully can find herself most dangerously appealing; and she can even now be most attractively coquettish though she wear the roughest of tweeds.

If she is fashionable she will undoubtedly be in tweeds; but if she is very, very fashionable these will not be in any degree rough. For materials woven today are popular for their softness and light weight, though to glance at them only, one receives the impression of strength and durability. A popular Paul Caret model is in material made especially by Rodier. To the eye the skirt was much heavier than to the touch, and it had been woven in the finest wool threads of brown and beige with a tiny red stripe. Both the coat and blouse were of the same light weight jersey—although the blouse was beige and the coat a chocolate brown, both harmonizing beautifully with the mixture in the skirt. An extra silk blouse for this ensemble was shown as well as a scarf and bag of the same woven material of Rodier's. To be very chic this fall it is better to have your bag and scarf made thus, if not of exactly the same weave as your ensemble, then certainly harmonizing perfectly. This constitutes, of course, the familiar type of sports suit used for walking; and the lines as designed by the Paris couturiers are so simple that any woman so attired appears not only extremely fashionable but also interesting.

Tweed, which undoubtedly will lead this fall for every sort of dress on every occasion of sport, has been and still is being given the closest attention by the House of Savouret. So have these weavers perfected and made beautifully light and supple the heavy scratching tweed material of a few seasons ago, that they have been given as a name for their house—Queen of Tweeds—and the haute couturier buys their weaves as fast as they are woven.

This return of the tweed suit and ensemble has also given a high place to the blouse, although honors at the moment are seemingly divided equally between the blouse of silk crepe de chine and the blouse of fine jersey. Especially since such varied effects can be achieved with woven or knitted materials, so that the soft tweed skirt may be of three or four interwoven threads, and the fine jersey blouse of perhaps two complementing colors, while the coat can be of one dark harmonizing shade. Different shades of beige and brown lend themselves more readily to this harmony at the moment, but no doubt the fall showings will produce other contrasts, also.

The severity of the off-the-face line is softened in a model designed by Lanvin by the long brim turned up against either side.

NAUTICAL FLAGS IN JEWELRY.

Are Seen on Necklaces, Bracelets and Brooches at Deauville.

PARIS, Sept. 13.—Signal flags, like those that indicate the weather aboard the luxurious yachts at the French seaside resort, Deauville, are appearing not only in the sweaters and bathing suits worn by fashionable women, but in jewelry as well. Fashion authorities prophesy signal flag jewelry as one of the outstanding jewelry styles to be featured at southern resorts this coming winter.

The little enameled and jeweled flags that hang from smart necklaces, bracelets and brooches often duplicate the signals that indicate "fair weather," "light winds" or "calm sea." But often as not, the jewelry designer has chosen the combination of flags for its color harmony rather than after any nautical formula, so that the little row of flags hung from a necklace chain may mean nothing to a seaman's chart.

Women at Deauville are wearing flag jewels with evening dresses as well as on the beach. Four flags to a necklace and three to a bracelet, are the general rule.

INDIA TEA

Orange Pekoe does not mean what most people think it does!

Thousands think "orange pekoe" means an orange-scented tea, or tea with an orange flavor. Others imagine that the words "orange pekoe" on a package of tea means "finest quality." Neither is correct.

"Orange pekoe" refers only to the shape of the tea leaves. The important thing to look for is the name of the country which produced the tea. India produces the finest tea in the world.

Leading packers of fine teas are now placing the map of India on their brands to let you know that you are getting genuine India Tea.

Appreciation Necessary in Child Supervision

BY ANGELO PATRI.

Never give a child a task and take for granted that he did it. Check up. Go over his work carefully, with an appraising eye, and value it for him. Unless you do this the child will not consider work worth while.

The mother who says, "Dust the dining room chairs, dear, and make sure you don't skip the bottom rail," and then says, "You've finished? So soon? All right. You can go now," without taking a look at the chairs is laying the foundations for trouble. Everybody needs an audience, the child especially needs an appreciative one. Your checking up is to be more of an appreciation than a condemnation, but it must strengthen the child to further effort always.

When you send a child to the store insist upon having a slip for every purchase and having the change come right every time. This may seem a very untrusting attitude but it need not be. Make it a business attitude. All purchases are to be checked up. All money transactions made a matter of record. If a child is trained that way from the very beginning he will have a fine background for such things and related things, later on. Good bookkeeping helps many a wavering youngster to keep straight.

All homework lessons must be checked up. Teachers often give more homework than they can correct. That is very dangerous. As soon as a child finds that his work is not checked up, is not valued, is not held to a standard of perfection, he slights that work. It is far more serious to the character growth of a child to have him slight work than it is to have him fail to do it altogether and say so. Teaching a child to get by without effort, is sad teaching.

Checking up work has its effect on both sides. If you have to go over the child's work you will be more careful in assigning it. You will soon learn, too, a great deal about the kind of thinking the child does, about his attitudes, his powers and the like. Many a little fault that might grow into a big one is discovered in time by a checking up process. Many a weakness is strengthened, many a talent is discovered because some mother or teacher checked up the child's work, read his story carefully, studied his picture with interest, and gathered insight regarding the little worker.

Remember to check up the little jobs you give the children lest they, too, know the bitterness of neglect. There is a word of caution, as usual. Supervision means a higher vision—not a prying, carping scrutiny for the purpose of finding fault. Appreciation is the essence of the check up.

LINEN NAMED FOR CITY.

Damask Evolved From Damascus, Once a Fabric Center.

From the bizarre oriental city of Damascus comes the origin of the name of the gleaming linen damask of today. Because this eastern city excelled in the production of richly woven fabrics of linen having a lustrous finish, medieval traders applied the name of damaskeen to such materials. This was gradually shortened to the simple word damask.

In the early days the term indicated all the elaborately woven fabrics, particularly those whose patterns were woven with gold or other metallic threads. Nowadays the words linen damask denote fabrics richly patterned with fruits, flowers and geometric designs which the modern housewife finds to be the most acceptable covering for her dining room table.

The Shadow-Children Step Into a Natural History Book and Learn About Crocodile Birds

It is really too bad that we all can't be like Mij, Flor, Hanid, Yam and Knarf, the five little shadow-children with the odd, turned-about names. Think of being able, when you see a picture in a book, to go inside that picture and walk around and talk to whomever you find there!

One afternoon, while the little real-children were taking a nap, the shadows came upon an open book on the library table. It was a Natural History book, which means a book about animals, and was open on a picture showing a large crocodile resting on the bank of a stream in far-off Africa.

EVEN THE CROCODILE GRINNED.

The most curious thing about the crocodile was this. Its mouth was wide open and three little birds were perched on its jaw. What they were doing in that extraordinary position, the shadow-children couldn't imagine. It seemed utterly silly that little birds should perch on the jaws of a fierce crocodile when with one snap he could gobble them all up.

"It must be a mistake," Mij said.

"I have an idea," said Knarf. "Let's go inside the picture and see for ourselves."

All the children agreed except Yam, who, being the smallest, was naturally afraid of crocodiles. They managed to persuade her, however, that nothing would come amiss, and taking each other's hand they sprang right inside the picture.

The next instant they found themselves sitting on the branch of a tree, right above the crocodile. It was exceedingly warm. They seemed to be in the middle of a deep forest.

On seeing them the three birds uttered shrill cries of alarm and flew off to a neighboring tree. As for the crocodile, it clashed its jaws together furiously and, with a sweep of its tail, disappeared below the water. But a moment later, the tip of its nose reappeared, then its eyes, and finally observing that the shadows meant no harm, it crawled back on the bank and, opening its mouth again, cried: "Toothpicks! toothpicks!"

The shadow children thought this strange enough. Yet an even stranger thing happened. The three little birds flew to their perch on the crocodile's jaw again, and to the astonishment of the shadows began to pick its teeth!

Knarf immediately let himself down and approached very close. The others followed him.

"Are they really picking your teeth?" the shadow boy asked.

As the crocodile couldn't answer without closing its mouth, and as that would have interfered with the work of its odd toothpicks, the birds replied instead.

"Yes, indeed," they said. "Mr. Crocodile kindly lets us pick his teeth. We get our dinner, he gets clean teeth. In that way we help each other. If we didn't get our dinner we would starve, and if Mr. Crocodile's teeth weren't kept clean they'd fall out and he'd starve, too."

"Can't he keep his teeth clean himself?" Flor wanted to know.

The birds shook their heads. "It's hard to buy a tooth brush in the middle of the forest. And as he simply insists on having clean teeth, with no shreds of food between them, we do it for him. In payment we keep all the food we can find. Our family has always done this for the crocodiles. That's why we're called Crocodile birds."

"And doesn't he——" began Hanid hesitantly, "doesn't he ever eat any of you up?"

"Oh, no! Does anyone ever eat up a toothpick?"

And even the crocodile grinned.

This Is Shagmoor Week

"Shagmoor" Topcoats Are Exclusive but Not Expensive

We find much pleasure in recommending these Coats to you, because they are so very unusual. They are fashioned of two smart, choice, specially constructed and very enduring fabrics: One of the purest wool and almost entirely indifferent to dust, moisture and wrinkles; the other is of de luxe alpacan fleece—of the most exquisite softness, warmth and tint.

The fur collars and cuffs are stunning in appearance and rich in quality. The linings are of fine, fashionable silks. The lines accentuate youthful charm and grace. And the tailoring is as swagger and flawless as it can possibly be. Name any occasion but the most formal, and a "Shagmoor" Coat "belongs" pre-eminently. Yet the prices are extremely restrained.

LIVES IN THEIR HANDS

THREE HUNDRED FORTY-EIGHT MINE RESCUERS HERE.

Contests and Demonstrations Will Increase Safety of Hundreds of Miners and Other Industrial Workers, Sponsors Believe.

Convention hall, long the scene of athletic contests and national conventions, was entertaining a new type of contest today, but to the contestants participating the Olympic games and national basket ball tournaments are of little importance as compared to the national first aid and mine rescue contests, which are being held there today, tomorrow and Saturday under the auspices of the United States bureau of mines.

Fifty-eight teams of six members each are here from twenty-eight states to compete for three prizes, one a congressional medal, in contests of life saving and mine rescue work. If you don't believe these miners take their contests seriously step into Convention hall at one of the sessions and see for yourself the work that is being done by the large mineral and petroleum industries in the United States for the promotion of safety.

The 348 team members represent the best rescue workers in the United States, perfect physical specimens and with years of experience in their work. They are here this week by virtue of previous contest victories in their respective districts and states. For many of them a trip here for the national meet has come only after years of conscientious training and study.

The large floor space at Convention hall was transformed into a coal mine today. There were coal shafts, elevator pits, communication tubes and everything else found in a mine, except, of course, the ore itself. A problem was given the teams, and thirty minutes was allowed in which to solve it. Ten judges, stationed at different points, watch and record their work. The men carry apparatus exactly as they would if they were about to enter a mine in search of dead bodies. Breathing apparatus, flashlights, picks and hammers and even a canary bird are included in the equipment. The canary is used as a means to test for deadly gas.

The mine rescue contests continue tonight, and tomorrow first-aid is to be taken up, with contests and demonstrations. Friday night a special first-aid program has been arranged and the public is invited.

W. D. Ryan of Kansas City, mine safety commissioner of the United States bureau of mines, will preside at the meeting of all delegates, contestants and officials Saturday night, at which time the various prizes and trophies are to be awarded. Conrad H. Mann, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Maj. T. J. Strickler, president of the Kansas City Safety Council, and Dr. R. R. Sayers, chief physician of the health and safety branch of the bureau of mines, are among those who will address the miners at the Saturday night program.

ROBBERS TAKE CIGAR TRUCK.

Returning From Delivery, Driver Finds $1,500 Cargo Gone.

Robbers invaded the central part of the downtown section today and stole a truck of the Rothenberg & Schloss Cigar Company and tobacco valued at $1,500.

Basil Hoard, the driver had parked the truck on Walnut street, between Eighth and Ninth streets, to make a delivery. When he returned the truck had disappeared.

It was the second robbery of a Rothenberg & Schloss truck in two weeks. Tom Harrington, another driver for the company, was held up at Thirtieth street and Brooklyn avenue about two weeks ago, bandits stealing the truck and $15 in tobacco, after forcing Harrington to drive to the Blue River. The truck later was abandoned by the bandits.

Members of one of the fifty-eight competing mine rescue teams in the national contests in progress today at Convention hall are shown demonstrating the method of carrying an injured or gassed miner from the mine. ONCE A FAMOUS GOLD TOWN, TELLURIDE, COL., LOSES ITS GLORY.

From a roaring mining camp to a prosperous gold city of Colorado, Telluride has risen, but now its former glory is only a memory with the decline of mining. The leading banker of the town, C. C. Waggoner, caught in the failure of the city, sought to save his friends and depositors in a scheme to defraud six New York banks of ½ million dollars. His plans blasted, the banker awaits action of a federal grand jury which will investigate the case. The picture above is an artist's sketch of the town as it appeared many years ago.

A MINING TOWN SHORN OF ITS RICHES IS TELLURIDE'S PLIGHT

The Rise and Fall of the Once Roaring Gold Camp of Colorado Is Closely Linked With the Downfall of Its Banker Who Fought to Save His Friends.

(By the Associated Press.)

TELLURIDE, COL., Sept. 12.—A sleeping mining town, languishing in the decay of its boom-day glory, hemmed in by the rising heights of the San Juan range which once gave to the city great wealth and the romance that goes with it—that is the home town of C. D. Waggoner, president of the Bank of Telluride.

Just as Waggoner began his business life here in humble circumstances, so his town, Telluride, rose from obscurity to prominence and then declined to comparative lifelessness.

Old residents here are prone to compare the rise and decline of the town to the rise and downfall of its most prominent banker. They see in Telluride's ascent to fame and in her struggle to uphold a bold, if false, front when mining declined, an analogy in the story of the small-town banker who sought by duping nationally known banks to protect his depositors, many of them his stanch friends of a lifetime.

A Colorado Beauty Spot.

The mountaineers are a clannish people. Waggoner worked for them thirty-odd years, first as a clerk in the bank, then as his fortunes grew with the prosperity of the town, as president of the foremost bank and "first citizen." Despite the charges against him, he still apparently retains some of his prestige. Regardless of its decay, Telluride is the foremost beauty spot in Colorado.

The town lies in a valley as level as a floor, but on either side the San Juans rise to commanding heights. They are composed of horizontal strata of red sandstone and in some places white and almost black limestone, heavily timbered slopes and a touch of green to the lower levels.

At the head of the principal street is a filmy waterfall of surpassing beauty that leaps from a cleft in the mountains with a soothing rumble that is always heard in the city's streets.

Telluride proper dates back to 1878. July 13 of that year the entire population of the town met on the outskirts of the townsite for an election. There were twenty-eight votes cast unanimously for a resolution proposing an incorporation of the town of Telluride, formerly known as the settlement of Columbia. George M. Hyde was elected the first mayor.

A Roaring Gold Camp.

Through mining the town rose to a roaring gold camp. Rough and ready "hard rock" miners flocked to it. As early as 1875, placer mining had been carried on in sporadic fashion on a little stream, the San Miguel, which fringes the town. The river was first crossed by Spanish monks who traveled the San Juan country long before the migration from the East.

Placer operations vanished with the discovery of rich deposits of quartz. Huge mining companies were formed and fabulous wealth came to many of the early operators. Today there still remain remnants of these operations in the famous Tom Boy, Great Union Smuggler and Liberty Bell mines. Some mining still is carried on and the old-timers look forward to a revival of mining that has often failed to materialize.

There were wild days in Telluride—bitter strikes when "the union men chased the nonunion miners up the hill one day and killed some of them, and the nonunion men did the same thing the next day."

Those boom days were in the fifteen or twenty years following 1880, when Otto Mears climaxed his wagon road building operations with the construction of a narrow gauge railroad into the city. That railroad, now a branch of the Denver & Rio Grande Western, still is the principal outlet of the town.

A Cattle Town, Too.

Before mining reached its greatest decline, the city found another source of revenue in the newly developed farming country opened up by the building of the railroad. The approach to Telluride is through far-flung ranges and rich fields under cultivation and well irrigated. For many years the wealth of the town was evident in heaps of ore cars that stood beside cattle cars filled with fat range cattle on the sidings.

It was in the period of extensive cattle raising in the sections of Southwestern Colorado close to Telluride that C. D. Waggoner organized the Norwood Cattle Loan Company, one of the companies involved in his fake ½ million dollar transaction with six New York banks.

For a time cattle raising held off the inevitable decay of mining as claims "petered out" and the price of precious metals went steadily lower. For many years stanch defenders of the mining industry sought to revive it and sank the funds in futile operations of worn-out claims.

At the close of the World War the cattle industry also fell into difficulties, leaving Telluride and its influential citizens either penniless or heavily involved financially.

ARRAIGN IN ARSON CASES.

Piggott, Crowe and Glover Face More Charges.

Arch Glover, D. L. Piggott and John L. Crowe, charged with first degree murder in the Sixty-ninth street and Prospect avenue drug store blast, were arraigned today before Judge Ben Terte on charges of third degree arson in connection with other alleged incendiary fires. Indictments had been returned by the grand jury against them in connection with the fires.

Two indictments were returned against Glover, for the Churchill home fire January 2, 1928, at 2114 Independence avenue, and again September 19, 1928. His bond was fixed at $5,000, but he already is charged with first degree murder, so he went to jail. Crowe and Piggott were arraigned on indictments returned in the Nu-Tone Medicine Company fire April 9, 1929, at 3430 Independence avenue. Bond was fixed at $2,500 each.

THE "SCENIC RESERVE" PLAN TO PROTECT HIGHWAYS WORKS OUT

California Has Found a Way to Eliminate the Unsightly Billboards Along Roads, and Other States Have Found the Remedy Has Considerable Merit.

"What's a scenic reserve?"

"It's a place where nobody can put up a signboard or a hot-dog stand and spoil the scenery," explained the Californian. "We're going to have them all over the state."

"Do you mean that no signs can be put up on the private property along the highway?"

"That's what I mean, if it's a scenic reserve."

"Well, it's about time somebody invented something like that," said one of the visitors. "I wonder if that wouldn't work in New York."

"Sure it would," replied the Californian. "It works in all the Pacific states."—Horace M. Albright and Frank J. Taylor in the Saturday Evening Post.

SO, at last, a simple, old-fashioned, time-proven device—private restriction—has been utilized to eliminate "uglies" along public highways.

Funny no one thought of it before. For years on end property owners have banded together for mutual protection against some menace. Long before zoning was an accepted fact property owners got together along certain streets and in certain districts and restricted their property for terms of years against business buildings, against cheap and shoddy construction or even against certain races.

Rural Districts the Place.

But that usually was in cities. The country folk usually built and did as they pleased. It was only in cities, with their congested populations, that such protection was needed. But the building of hard-surfaced highways through the country revolutionized conditions in the rural districts. It opened up a new field to the billboard, for instance. And now the most-traveled highways, winding through the country's most beautiful scenery, are becoming billboard alleys. They have become the subject of cartoon. They have been commercialized in the worst sense.

But along comes California with a remedy. It worked there and has spread to other Pacific and Rocky Mountain states. It is simply the banding together of the property owners along a highway in an agreement to refuse permission for the erection of billboards or other disfiguring structures on their property. In some instances the agreements or restrictions have been brought about by county commissioners.

Example of Cody Road.

There is an interesting instance of that character told by Horace M. Albright in this week's issue of the Saturday Evening Post.

"The Cody road to Yellowstone is an interesting example of this," Mr. Albright says. "This scenic route extends sixty miles from Cody, Wyo., to the Yellowstone boundary, and all except a quarter of a mile of it is entirely free from roadside signs.

"Citizens of Cody signed agreements controlling all the property along the Cody road when it was being constructed. Then, to be fair to the billboard interest, they set aside a hill, just outside the town of Cody, for advertisers. Fifty or more billboards are crowded on this hill, which is known as 'Signboard Heaven.'"

Mr. Albright tells of a similar plan in operation for Gallatin County, Wyoming, which has seventy-five miles of scenic highway. In this instance the county commissioners called on the farmers and other landowners to sign them up in agreements not to permit roadside nuisances along the route. Park County, the northern approach to the Yellowstone, likewise is clearing its highways of signs.

To Protect Columbia Highway.

Another West Coast illustration used by Mr. Albright is that of the Columbia River highway.

"This marvel of engineering, stretching along the cliffs, overlooking the Columbia from Portland to The Dalles, cost the taxpayers of Oregon a handsome amount of money," he writes. "They did not propose to have its scenic value destroyed to make profits for a few signboard owners. A group of Portlanders took it upon themselves to visit all the landowners along the proposed highway before it was constructed, and prevailed upon them to sign agreements that they would never permit signboards or roadside shacks along the new highway.

"Obviously, the ideal time to create a scenic reserve is when plans are being laid for a new highway. Land owners generally are willing to sign away billboard rights for nothing or for the increased value which the new highway will add to their property. This plan worked so successfully along the Columbia River that it has been applied more recently to various new routes in the Pacific Northwest, in both Oregon and Washington. It has likewise been used to preserve the scenery along certain new highways in California.

Saving virgin scenery along a proposed new highway may be accomplished fairly easily if action is taken in time. Recovering the scenery along an old highway, already pocked with signs and shacks, is an entirely different matter. The California plan is momentous because it enables the public to create reserves on routes where the billboard artists have done their worst already."

"WE" PLAN LONG FLIGHT

THE LINDBERGHS WILL START 7,000-MILE JAUNT NEXT WEEK.

Famous "Circle Route" Blazed by the Lone Eagle Last Year Over the West Indies Is to Be Reversed.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—The new "we" of the Lindbergh family—Col. Charles A., Mrs. Anne and the ship that carries them—will start on a new 7,000-mile air cruise September 20.

The flying colonel and his bride will reverse the famous circle route he blazed alone through the South American, Central American and West Indian air lines a year ago, returning to America, the starting point, October 4.

Whirring propellers of the Lindbergh ship will cut air in sixteen foreign countries between the take-off September 20 and the return fourteen days later. From each stop of the flight three local persons will be chosen to make the flight to the next stop.

The purpose of the flight, according to an announcement today by the Pan-American Airways office here, is to be fourfold. It will formally open the West Indies tourist season and blaze the way over an "air cruise" route to be open for commercial tourists. The passenger lines now in operation will be inspected along the northern shore of South America and the 2,000-mile Miami-Panama line, now open only for mail service, will be checked for safety and feasibility for passenger traffic.

TO BUY A PLANE FOR ANNE.

Small Sport Monoplane May Be Purchased by Lindy.

(By the Associated Press.)

NORTH HAVEN, ME., Sept. 12.—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh were at the summer home of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's father, today after a flight from Long Island, N. Y., in a small sport plane which, it is rumored, the famous flier is planning to buy for his wife.

Mrs. Lindbergh has made several solo flights in the course of flying lessons her husband is giving her.

The plane was a small open cockpit monoplane, equipped with a 60-horsepower motor and dual controls. Colonel Lindbergh ordered it sent from a factory at Keyport, N. J., to Roosevelt Field before he went to Arizona to assist in the search for the missing T. A. T. air liner, City of San Francisco.

Stock models of the make of the sport plane are equipped with 40-horsepower engines. The larger power unit in the plane sent to Colonel Lindbergh was installed at his request.

FINAL CAREY INVENTORY IN.

Personal Property of $18,377 Is Reported for Dead Bootlegger.

A final inventory and appraisal of the estate of D. M. Carey, sr., bootlegger who committed suicide in the face of murder indictments in connection with the Sixty-ninth street drug store blast, which killed three city firemen, was filed today in the probate court. It was shown that Carey had personal property valued at $18,377.43.

Clarence I. Spellman, executor under D. M. Carey, sr.'s, original will, whose executorship is challenged by Carey's heirs, filed the inventory and appraisement. The executor informed the court the personal items did not include real estate equity valued at about $30,000, corporate bonds valued at about $12,000 or currency or diamonds and "other sequestered assets." Spellman has been attempting to assemble all the assets of the Carey estate.

Three appraisers were appointed by Judge Jules Guinotte of the probate court September 5. They were H. J. Nie, secretary of the Retail Druggists' Association; Russell T. Boyle, an assistant prosecutor, and Wilmer Groh. In his report to the court, Spellman asserted Groh declined to act as one of the appraisers.

Groh formerly was associated with June Carey, one of D. M. Careey, sr.'s, sons, in a bootlegging drug store at 1332 Main street. It was from the store at 1332 Main street that fixtures were transferred to the drug store at Sixty-ninth street and Prospect avenue, and were destroyed in the fatal blast. Nie and Boyle swore to the inventory presented to Judge Guinotte. Items in the personal list ranged from $4.17 found in Carey's pockets at the time of his death to mortgages and bonds. Among the assets were 115 cases of Bond & Lillard whisky stored since 1916 and appraised at $2,587.50.

KILLS HEIRESS OVER JOB

DISMISSING GARDENER, MRS. BARBARA DIEBOLT, 62, IS SLAIN.

Losing His Place After Seventeen Years, Italian Shoots Wealthy Employer Who Wouldn't Hire Him Again.

(By the Associated Press.)

CLEVELAND, Sept. 12.—Mrs. Barbara Diebolt Irr, 62, heiress of the Diebolt brewing fortune, was shot and killed at her Euclid Village home today by a gardener angered because he had been dismissed, police said.

Michael di Tirro, the gardener, walked into the village police station shortly after the killing, and admitted shooting the woman.

He had been employed at the Irr home for seventeen years prior to his dismissal two weeks ago. Servants said he became disgruntled at his discharge, threatening to shoot the family. Di Tirro said he went to the home today, found Mrs. Irr seated at a kitchen table and asked for his job again. The woman threatened to call police to remove him. He then shot three times.

Mrs. Irr was the wife of Joseph Irr of the Cleveland Billiard Supply House. She was a member of the Diebolt family, which long owned the Diebolt Brewing Company before prohibition.

"The Flavor proves it's better"
SAY MANY CELEBRATED COOKS
"—the minute you taste it you know it contains finer ingredients"
Mary Reilly, cook for Alice Duer Miller, of New York City, says, "Only the best of everything could give Hellmann's that rich, true mayonnaise flavor. I have used it for 6 years in preference to any other, even my own." —Mary Reilly
COSMOPOLITAN New Yorkers know it is the sauce or dressing which brings out the full rich flavor of foods.
That is why they use Hellmann's Mayonnaise to make their salads more luscious. Any mayonnaise to be as rich and as perfect in taste must be made of the same, fine ingredients they would use in their own kitchens. The finest eggs, the best salad oil, pure vinegar, and rare spices, and only these, are put together by a secret recipe from France and beaten hour on hour until the blend is marvelously delicious.
Hellmann's is made in six shining kitchens scattered over the country, and rushed fresh from the nearest one to your grocer. Get a jar from your grocer today. The popular family size is ½ pint—25¢. Other sizes, 3½ ounce, pint, and quart jars.

SPORTING COMMENT

As Halsey Hall of the Minneapolis Journal Sees Our Blues—And a Glance at Our Gang Through the Eyes of Charley Johnston, a Veteran Writer of Minneapolis—Freeman Shelden, Who Learned His Golf Under Joe Mathews, Shoots Under the 70 Mark at Times.

(By The Star's Sports Editor.)

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 12.—Always interesting, although not always pleasant to read, is what the other fellow thinks of you. The members of our pennant band rather enjoyed the following article, written by Halsey Hall in the Minneapolis Journal, after the first game of the series just completed, yes, enjoyed it even though the article carries the sting of a razz:

That's a funny looking ball club Kansas City is winning the pennant with. It was a funny looking ball club as it stepped on the Nicollet Park diamond last Saturday. It had Bill Wamby, an aged second-sacker on first; Spurgeon, a fair ball player on second; Knothe, a Western League shortstop at short, and Riconda, a second sacker, on third. In the outfield, among others, was Fred Nicholson, who was playing ball in this league when you could go to Nicollet Park in horse cars.

But the club was hustling and of course, that wasn't its regular line-up. It piled up its big lead with its regular first-sacker and a reversible outfield and it has had good pitching all along and, aside from St. Paul, it's the best ball club in the league with those hurlers going as they are and have been.

It looks like Rochester in the International League, and what a battle of old-timers you'll have when the Kodaks and the Blues get together!

A line on Halsey Hall, the youthful author of this article, may be of interest to Blue patrons and followers. Halsey is a likable fellow, a keen observer, a pungent writer, but a champion raver. He rants and storms in the press coop very much after the manner of your old friend, Spencer Abbott, on the bench. To say that Halsey Hall raves with a greater degree of ferver than Spencer Abbott would be to do injustice to that worthy gentleman; to say that Hall rants and paces back and forth lionlike in the press box with a passionate animation equal to that of Spence Abbott when things are breaking stormily for his ball club is a compliment to the young man and no discourtesy to Abbott, so we'll let it go that way.

Halsey Hall really is a daring young man. He boldly hurls stones at our glass house, forgetful, at least neglectful, of the fact that he's living in one himself. He talks of Fred Nicholson as an Association warrior of ancient extraction. At that, Nicholson, 33, has been playing in this league for six years, going first to Toledo in 1924—but, of course, makes no mention of Sammy Bohne, Emmer, Earl Smith, Griffin, Johnny Rawlings, the veteran Rube Benton, the venerable Pate and that antediluvian, Jimmy Middleton.

We would make it plain that we mean no offense to these honorable gentlemen. We like them—they're nice "boys"—and we throw them on the screen simply in rebuttal to the charges of the young Minnesota writer.

Nor is it difficult to forget when Minneapolis was winning pennants with that grand old galaxy of octonenarians, Williams, Rossman, Gavfy Cravath and Davey Altizer. In those days Minneapolis didn't mind what the other fellows said, because those great old wooden-legged athletes were copping the flag each year. Maybe that will convey to Halsey just how we of Kansas City feel about this year's Blues.

The Saints may be better, the Millers stormier, the Mudhens fussier, the Senators peppier, the Colonels snappier, but the Blues, well, you see they're front running the pack, winning the pennant with games to spare. And all these other boys are on the outside looking in.

NOW for a more complimentary notice. Charley Johnston, one of the veteran sports writers of Minneapolis, writes in the Minneapolis Star:

KANSAS CITY REAL CHAMPION, DESPITE LACK OF COLOR.

Kansas City is one of the few pennant winners the American Association has had in many years that has failed to impress itself as champions should on the foreign fans. In fact, as one watches the Blues go about the business of clinching the flag, one wonders how they did it.

To begin with, it is not a colorful team. There is no real outstanding player on the club. The team isn't overloaded with pep and fight. It's just one of those machines that has more natural ability than any other contender in the race.

In fact, if the average unprejudiced fan had to take his pick of the club that it really got the most kick out of watching play day in and day out, he unquestionably would not select Kansas City. It's neither disrespect for the team nor sour grapes from the losers, but merely a statement of fact.

From a baseball standpoint, there doesn't seem to be a single weakness in the prospective champions. It deserves its triumph, won fairly and decisively over a season of strenuous competition. It unquestionably compares well with all past titleholders in this league from a baseball standpoint.

In other words, "Dutch" Zwilling has a baseball machine this year that is everything that one could ask from a mechanical standpoint. Yet it lacks that something that one generally finds in a championship club. That "something" may be color or it may be pep or something else. Whatever it is, the Blues are not the type that sends the average fan home with the indelible impression that they are typical champions.

Any team that can gain a 10-game lead on St. Paul with less than a month to go is entitled to the pennant. The Blues didn't falter once all year. They met every crisis as a good team should, without flinching. It proved its superiority over the field beyond any question. They really represent the best the Association had this year, but they do not excite Minneapolis fans to the point where they are anxious to see them perform.

Perhaps there may be more color to the Blue club than Johnston has seen in the games the Blues have played at Nicollet. One hears that Cooke of St. Paul is a colorful ball player, but he has only rare speed over Joey Kuhel, and Kuhel is not slow. Joe is a far flashier fielder in his position than Cooke in his. In fact, Kuhel is the nearest to the Hal Chase fielding model several major league scouts have found. He might be said to be a colorful ball player. Harry Riconda is a high voiced, popping-off, walloping wop, not without color. Tom Angley, the mighty clouter, is far from a colorless pastimer. Lynn Nelson and Max Thomas, young hurlers of excellent merit, aren't altogether drab personalities on the ball field.

And look where they are, boys!

AMONG the many fine golfers whose play in the qualifying rounds of the recent national amateur at Pebble Beach was not up to their standard was Charles F. Sheldon of Rye, N. Y., who fell by the wayside with scores of 89 and 85. Yet this young man, a former Kansas Citian, son of Charles N. Sheldon, former member of the Mission Hills Country Club, is capable of keeping company with the country's great in golf.

Recently I ran across a clipping from a New York paper, telling of Sheldon's play in the Metropolitan championship tournament. Note some of the excerpts from that story:

Charley Sheldon of Siwanoy, who occasioned some surprise by upsetting Eddie Held in the first round of the Metropolitan amateur golf championship, showed that his victory was no flash in the pan by scoring a new course record of 67 in defeating John Riddell of Lakeville, 3 and 2.

The magnificent scoring of Sheldon and the game battle of Knowles to overcome odds were the features of the third round of play.

Sheldon, cracking the ball solidly on the nose and sinking putts from all corners of the green, was a scoring machine. His 12-foot putt on the eighteenth green hung on the lip for a 66.

On the first nine Sheldon was out in 35, to be 1 down to Riddell, who also played magnificent golf. Sheldon's birdie 3 on the eighth hole was one of the outstanding feats of a tournament of startling surprises and amazing recoveries.

On the eighth, with its steeply sloping fairway from right to left, Sheldon put his 310-yard drive in a trap. His shot out was thirty feet from the pin, but a great niblick shot from sand nevertheless.

Sighting the line, Sheldon sank his putt for the birdie. On the second nine Sheldon quickly took the lead by sinking three pars, a birdie and another par on the first five holes. On the 456-yard fifteenth Sheldon had a mighty drive and perfect second to be on the green in 2. He sank the putt for an eagle 3. Riddell could do nothing against the marvelous playing of his rival, and met inevitable defeat on the sixteenth green, when both took par 3s. Sheldon finished the round, getting another birdie 3 on the seventeenth and a 5 on the eighteenth for a 32 and a 67 total.

The card:

Out—
Sheldon. . .5 3 3 4 3 4 5 3 5—35
Riddell. . .5 3 6 4 2 4 4 4 4—36
In—
Sheldon. . .4 4 3 3 4 3 3 3 5—32—67
Riddell. . .5 4 3 4 5 5 3 4 4—37—73

Charles, or Freeman, as he was known in Kansas City, is a product of the Joe Mathews school of golf instruction. The young man learned his golf under the veteran instructor of the Mission Hills Club, known as one of the most skilled golf teachers among the ranks of the professionals. Mathews put in many an hour with Freeman Shelden down under the big tree along No. 18 fairway and is justly proud of the golfing record the young man has made in eastern metropolitan and intercollegiate circles.

A 78 Today Gives Meadow Lake Star a Total of 156.

Mrs. O. S. Hill, Meadow Lake, continued her dazzling pace in the annual 54-hole women's city medal play championship by turning in a 78 today at Hillcrest, equalling the course record. The Trans-Mississippi champion registered a 78 in the initial eighteen holes yesterday, giving her a total of 156.

The defending champion fozzled the opportunity of turning in a new course record by 3-putting the home green.

A SERIES TICKET SIEGE

CHICAGO CUBS LOCK OFFICES AGAINST THE FANS.

Reservations May Be Made Only by Mail With a Certified Check or Money Order—Currency Is Rejected.

(By the Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—One of the busiest club offices of organized baseball locked the door from the inside today, it was so busy. The Chicago Cubs were getting ready for the world's series.

Telephones were dead, so far as series conversation was concerned. The mail man was the only intermediary between the Cubs and their ticket-eager public. The only things that talked were certified and cashier's checks and money orders. Even the green and golden currency of the republic was being turned down.

Prices for the Wrigley field games will be $6.60 for boxes, $5.50 for grandstand, $3 for grandstand standing room and $1 for bleachers, taxes included.

Tickets will be sold in series of three for the first, second and sixth games. Should the third Chicago game be unnecessary the price paid for that ticket will be refunded after the series is over. The only single game tickets to be sold will go on sale the days of the games.

ROLLA MINERS ARE READY.

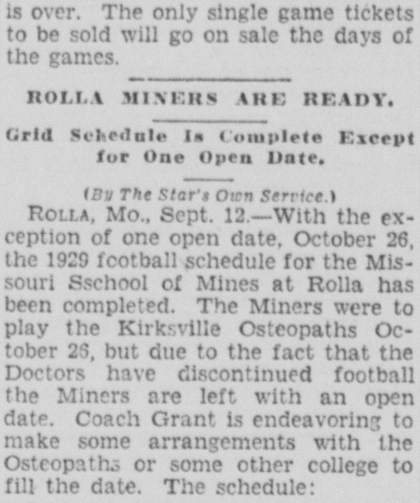
Grid Schedule Is Complete Except for One Open Date.

(By The Star's Own Service.)

ROLLA, Mo., Sept. 12.—With the exception of one open date, October 26, the 1929 football schedule for the Missouri Sschool of Mines at Rolla has been completed. The Miners were to play the Kirksville Osteopaths October 26, but due to the fact that the Doctors have discontinued football the Miners are left with an open date. Coach Grant is endeavoring to make some arrangements with the Osteopaths or some other college to fill the date. The schedule:

October 4—Kirksville Teachers at Kirksville.
October 12—Lombard at Rolla.
October 19—McKindree at Rolla.
November 1—Central at Fayette.
November 9—Westminster at Rolla.
November 15—Maryville at Rolla.
November 28—Drury at Springfield.

Down the Fairway.



THE golf news famine is at hand. Despite the fact that the summer swing of tournaments is not yet completed and that the inside story of why Bobby Jones was defeated at Peeble Beach has not been told in more than a dozen ways, the rumor that professional golfers are talking about seceding from the United States Golf Association and conducting their own tournaments has been bobbing up.

The revival of the lovable old battle-ax, which is founded on the application of the prefix "Mister" to the names of amateurs in the entry lists of open tournaments, and the same application in the announcements, is fully a month or two ahead of time. The discussion of the question generally is conducted between the lull in the summer's play and the start of the winter tournaments in the South. It is the last ditch in golf news, as it were. A comparison might be made to the movement in tennis circles to abolish the term "Love Thirty" on the grounds that it sounds too effeminate or like an appeal for promiscuity.

Sir Walter Hagen, who is a firm believer in an even break, especially for Walter, states that the practice is an undemocratic old country class idea, wholly alien to the great American spirit of equality and that the golf professionals of the country have fretted under what he calls an unfair discrimination too long.

Hagen's ideas on the question are patterned along Rienzi's address to the Romans. He states that the program, official scoreboards take an inordinate delight in holding the pro up for public edification as not being worthy of the designation of "Mr." He insists that the time has come, fellow citizens, to end this high-hatting of the professional element, a relic of the British idea of treating the instructor as if he were the man who raked the sand pits or mowed the fairways, and not as a teacher, pedagogue, if you please, of the noble game of the Scots.

The Haig supplements his remarks, which are given in a whither-are-we-drifting spirit, with a few sinister hints of what the pros could do this winter if they launched into an "anti-Mister" crusade loaded to the gills with possibilities of secession, rebellion, upheaval, and what have you.

Probably ("Mr.") Hagen is of the opinion that the majority of the "Master" class who play in tournaments are no more amateur than he is. But to effect an equal standard the professionals shoot from the wrong angle. They do not challenege the amateur standing of the amateur, but their own treatment.

Maybe the whole question is founded on idle threats. Possibly, the golf fathers might do well to consider the conditions of the case and set about to ameliorate them. The present ill-feeling, superficial or otherwise, would be abolished. If the caste system is continued, some player of the mercenary ranks will direct his remarks toward the amateur qualifications of the amateur. The result might be a depletion of the ranks of the big shot amateurs. Some of the boys, it seems, have discovered that they can make more money as amateurs than they can make as professionals, without the loss of any apparent dignity, and that is to what the pros object.

Amateur Baseball Notes

ONCE again the amateur baseball picture that affords color and entertainment to Kansas City fans in the summer months almost is blotted from the sport screen. Arguments over the line drives that curved foul, the base that was stolen, the balk and all activities of the sandlot that blend into amateur play soon will cease. Only a few games remain and those are in the faster divisions of the Independent-Major League. The stakes have been pulled on M. and J. battling except for a tournament that is to decide some sort of a title. Of course, Joseph Chester Gooding, the big boss of the I.-M. loop, would have you know that the season is far from over and would inform you that he has some mighty interesting play-off games soon to be exhibited.

A resume of last week's jousting recalls that two reversals, only one of which was of importance, occurred. The Kansas City, Kansas, Board of Education team of the M. and J. circuit and Lexington of the I.-M. League perhaps will protest that their victories were important. They were just triumphs and had no effect on divisional championships. However, when the American Beauties came home in front they really ruffled some feelings, for they whipped the Terminals, who were unequal to the task of moving into a first place tie with the Gas Company. The Kansas Board of Education turned back Gas Company, but it mattered not as long as the Railroaders were being eclipsed on another diamond.

Amos should be a privileged character around the Lexington camp, at least until the incident is forgotten. What incident? If you haven't already heard, Mr. Amos himself delivered as only an Alger hero can last week. Finding the cushions crowded, Amos landed on one of Cochran's slants and unloaded the runways, while he made his way to second base. That gave Lierman, Lexington pitcher, something on which to work, and so, with his 3-run advantage, he turned back the champion Poland Chinas of Richmond, 5 to 4, pitching one of his best games of the season.

One of golf's most important rules—keep your eyes on the ball—might well be applied to Jack Peck of the Terminals, who, after hitting a long one last week, lost sight of the ball and was tricked into being held on second while a fielder retrieved the bulb, which had sailed over the fence.

Riegel's boner of the gridiron and Merkle's of major league baseball brought no more havoc on their teams than a De Molay member who failed to tag second last week. He made a home run. It tied the game. But—called out for failure to touch second cost the De Molays, doped to upset Milwaukee, which won the International I.-M. flag with that last regular match.

Some real battles held sway in the Cass-Jackson County division last week, the only two games going an extra inning. The Old Americans beat the Plaza Merchants, 3 to 2, and Lees Summit edged out Buckner, 7 to 6.

J. Krueger of Lees Summit missed connecting for a safety only once in five trips up. The third sacker's big stick has been doing potent work this season.

Starting the race as if they were destined to be a stepping stone for the rest of the field, the Majestic Radios slid into second place in the final reckoning as a result of their triumph over the Blue Valley Blues, a formidable combination indeed and one which was in the "going" from the very outset.

No doubt the Plaza Merchants would like to put rocks in the bed of Curtis, first baseman for the Indians. All the Tribe's runs were driven in by him last week, his tenth inning solitaire breaking up the game.

The Platte County League play-off between Farley and Hampton will be Sunday. They tied for the title, each having only one defeat. They beat each other.

Phillips 66, National group victor, faces the Summe Dairies, winner in the American division, in the first Independent-Major League play-off contest Sunday.

The First K. U. Casualty.

(By The Star's Own Service.)

LAWRENCE, KAS., Sept. 12.—The first casualties of the season to K. U. football material came yesterday afternoon, but they weren't on the gridiron. The injury toll is three stitches in the head of Otto Rost of St. Louis, 190-pound prospective guard, and a $10 crimp in the pocketbook of Roland Logan, Leavenworth, 2-letter guard.

Rost, rated as one of the outstanding sophomore candidates for the varsity this fall, was dumped against a staircase at the Delta Tau Delta house in a friendly scuffle with Phil Ehly, Mankato, Kas., frat brother.

While Logan was rushing Rost to a doctor to have the cut sewed up, Steve Hinshaw, freshman football coach, called from a downtown sidewalk and as Logan turned to wave he rammed his car into that of a young woman school teacher, Otto breaking through the windshield for a 5-yard gain. No additional cuts were received, but it cost Logan five bucks to fix the young lady's car and another five for a windshield glass.

FIGHT STAGE TO GOTHAM

HAYMAN-GRIFFITH BOUT HOLDS THE SPOTLIGHT TONIGHT.

Trial for Heavyweight Title Campaigners Tops Card for Reopening of Graden's Indoor Boxing Season.

(By the Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—Madison Square Garden reopens for the indoor boxing season tonight.

At the top of the list comes the meeting between Dr. Ludwig Hayman, who holds the heavyweight championship of Germany since the abdication of Max Schmeling in search of greater honors, and Tuffy Griffith of Sioux City, Ia.

Haymann has been campaigning in the smaller clubs in the United States with enough success to earn himself the Garden shot. Griffith, likewise, has been successful as a heavyweight, although his sole appearance in New York as a light heavy met with disaster at the hands of James J. Braddock. Both of the principals go on the theory that the man who punches the hardest wins.

HOW long is a pitched ball? Get serious and reason with that one.

The publicity director of Ohio State university made the test on Silas Johnson, fast ball pitcher of the Columbus Senators. By employing a stop watch he discovered it took Johnson's fast ball just six-tenths of a second to reach the catcher.

Some pitchers can't be tested this way because what they throw never reaches the catcher. Sometimes Johnson is this way, but he has hurled several times against the Blues when almost everything he threw reached the backstop.

Johnson is considered as having one of the fastest balls in the league. The distance from the pitching mound to home plate is sixty feet and six inches, and this goes to prove a man can throw a baseball faster than he can run.

This information, no doubt, will be of immense aid to base runners, who, very frequently, have attempted to out-run a thrown ball. The runner who reaches second as the centerfielder picks up the ball and then tries to make third only to find the sphere there ahead of him now will be able to understand the reason for this. The thrown ball is faster.

KNOWING the speed of Johnson's fast pitch, it would be interesting to time the offerings of such moundsmen as Slim Harriss, Jeff Pfeffer, etc. There would be less difficulty encountered here because a stop watch wouldn't be needed.

To measure Harriss accurately—Harriss being the elongated slow person of the St. Paul pitching staff—an 8-day alarm clock would be enough.

Manager Zwilling remembers the first time he went to bat against Walter Johnson. It may be recalled by the old-time fans that this Johnson also had a fast ball.

But Walter wasn't fast to Dutch, who unloaded a lot of his tobacco juice on the ball as it went past him. He saw it that well.

VETERAN COACH TO QUIT

MICHIGAN WILL LOSE SERVICES OF FARRELL NEXT YEAR.

Retirement Will End Career of Forty-Five Years as Famous Athlete and a Leading Track Mentor.

(By the Associated Press.)

ANN ARBOR, MICH., Sept. 12.—Stephen J. Farrell, veteran coach of the University of Michigan track teams, will retire next spring, terminating a career of forty-five years as an athlete and coach. Although no official announcement has been made of his retirement, when he returned to Ann Arbor yesterday to begin his year's work, he said he would be through next June.

Back in the early days Steve Farrell was the world's champion half-miler. He could run any race from the hundred to the mile. Professional foot racing, first on the hose teams of the early days and later in the glamorous atmosphere of the Caledonia games and the Sheffield handicap, gave Farrell his first reputation as a track star.

He was captain at one time of three hose teams in the East. This was in the '80s, and his companions were Mike Murphy, late coach at the University of Pennsylvania; Johnny Mack of Yale, "Pooch" Donovan of Harvard, Walter Christie of California, and Keene Fitz Patrick of the University of Michigan and Princeton.

Farrell competed in the middle distances in the Caledonia games. Twice he won the Sheffield event with its $15,000 purse. He was track coach at Yale in 1902, was at the University of Maine seven years and two years at Ohio State university before going to the University of Michigan in 1912. Since Michigan re-entered the Big Ten in 1918, Farrell's teams have won five indoor and five outdoor Western Conference championships. Hee developed such track stars as Carl Johnson, only athlete ever to win four first places at a Big Ten meet; DeHart Hubbard, probably the world's greatest broad jumper, and Eddie Tolan, Negro sprinter.

Charles Hoyt, Farrell's assistant, is slated to succeed him as head track coach.

FORT WORTH, TEX., Sept. 12.—The sale of Lil Stoner and Larmon Cox to Pittsburgh was announced today by Ted Robinson, president of the Fort Worth, Tex., League baseball club. No price was made public, but both were cash considerations.

Stoner was purchased in July from Detroit, where he served six years. Cox came up late in 1928 from the Arizona State League.

A MAN once considered by many to be one of the greatest ring prospects will make his first appearance before Kansas City fight fans on the Convention hall fistic card September 19.

The fighter is George Manley of Denver, who is matched with Benny Ross of Syracuse, N. Y., in the initial bout of a series of light heavyweight matches, by which Gabe Kaufman, promoter, hopes to find a light heavyweight who will be recognized by the Missouri commission as the successor to Tommy Loughran, who recently laid aside his title to contest in the ranks of full-fledged heavyweights.

Manley still is considered a man capable of rising to great fistic heights, but this is followed by an "if" which the fistic wise attach when speaking of a man who refuses to follow the rules of training. Failure to train has been Manley's biggest obstacle in his quest for ring honors. Fight managers of national recognition have eagerly sought his contract, only to release him later because they could not induce him to obey orders. And now comes the news from Denver that Manley has seen the error of his ways and has turned to the straight path by which he hopes to battle his way to a championship.

That Manley has the ability is unquestioned. Even in the days of his laxity of training methods he won twenty-seven of twenty-nine bouts. Although weighing only 176 pounds, he defeated such outstanding heavyweights as Chuck Wiggins, Johnny Risko, Joe Lohman, Yale Okum, Paul Cavalier, Norman Genet and Lou Scozza. He also holds a victory over Tiny Roebuck, the 240-pound Indian. The fights which he failed to win were with the champion, Tommy Loughran. One resulted in a draw; in the other Loughran received the verdict after ten rounds of fighting.

That Manley is beating back in the eyes of the promoters is seen in the efforts of Nate Lewis, Chicago promotor, to sign him for an October match. Kaufman today exhibited this wire from the Chicagoan:

Gabe Kaufman, Convention hall:
Please use your power to get Manley to box here October 8. I consider him the best heavyweight prospect today. Will allow you $1,500 or expenses to release him from September 19 card.
NATE LEWIS.

Kaufman, however, said he could not consider the Chicagoan's proposal, as it would disrupt his entire plan for the elimination series.

BAGBY HANGS UP HIS TOGS.

Post as Manager Will Be Sought by Veteran Pitcher.

(By the Associated Press.)

NEWARK, Sept. 12.—The veteran right-hander, Jim Bagby, has obtained his release from his old Pal, Tris Speaker, and has left for his home in Atlanta. Purchased from Jersey City in midseason of 1928 by Newark, Bagby never again was able to approach even close to the form which made him a hero of Cleveland's pennant victory in 1920, and he decided to turn to a managerial career in a smaller league. He has several offers under consideration.

CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—(A. P.)—Jackie Fields, world welterweight champion, will meet Vince Dundee, brother of Joe Dundee, from whom he won his title, in Promoter Jack Dempsey's first show in Chicago, October 2, in the Coliseum.

OFFERS BY OHIO STATE TO "PURCHASE" ATHLETE ARE DENIED.

Star Tackle at Cleveland and Student Who "Approached" Him Both Clear University Officials in Case.

(By the Associated Press.)

CLEVELAND, Sept. 12.—Offers of room, board and tuition to Ted Rosequist, sophomore at John Carroll university of Cleveland, for playing football at Ohio State university, were denied today both by Rosequist and Hal Ells, Ohio State senior, whom Coach Ralph Vince, Carroll coach, accused yesterday of attempting to buy his star tackle.

Ells and Rosequist made a joint statement to the Associated Press today in which they asserted that Vince's charges were groundless. Rosequist denied he had received any offer from Ells, that he had told Vince of such an offer, or that he had been in communication with athletic officials at Ohio State.

Ells asserted that he had gone no further than to volunteer to aid Rosequist in obtaining a position at Columbus to help him in defraying his school expenses.

"I do not even know Coach Sam Willaman at Ohio State, nor any of the officials of the athletic board," Ells asserted. "I was not acting in any official capacity, but merely as a student anxious to bring good athletic material to Ohio State."

Ohio State officials denied all knowledge of the affair. Willaman said he had never heard of Rosequist or Ells.

Some Difference.

By Walt Mason.

The rum holes, in the grand old days, were thick in every busy town, inviting dry and thirsty jays to purchase drinks and pour them down. As men went forth to do their chores, to earn their bread and pie and meat, they saw the swinging slatted doors all up and down the village street. Perhaps they were resolved to shun the customary forty drops, from all temptation dire to run, avoiding all things brewed from hops. But they'd be sure to meet a friend, who'd say, "Let's go and have a snort; this most unseemly drought should end—we'll all feel better for a quart." The friend would treat and then they'd treat, and then the friend would treat again, till they were wabbly on their feet, and anchored to that boozing ken. Thus every day a host of men got lighted up against their will, because at hand there was a den that sold the product of the still. A host of men with purpose high went forth each day to saw their wood, and then fell victims to old rye, because saloons before them stood. And now a man may walk a mile, or he may journey twice as far, and no one with a thirsty smile will say, "Let's line up at the bar." There is no bar of polished oak on which a well dressed gent may lean, and take his tot of liquid smoke and wash it down with pure benzine. If he would buy illicit drinks he has to seek a bootleg nest, infested by a thousand stinks, and each one worse than all the rest. In some foul cellar he may find the liquor that is not allowed, and it may haply knock him blind, or fit him for a bier and shroud. And so the nation sobers up, it grows more sober every day; for who would want a brimming cup so bad he'd go for it that way?

Firemen Who Used Fists.

Firemen in Philadelphia in the early days of the nineteenth century did not devote themselves exclusively to fighting fires. Frequently they fought each other, relates Ernest von Hartz in an article in the Baltimore Sun. So common did the practice become that the fire insurance organization which contributed largely to the support of various fire fighting units was moved to call attention to its regulations concerning contributions, which provided, among other things:

"Companies are to avoid disturbance and noise on the ground at the time of a fire, and those engaged in broils and fighting will not be considered in the distributions of the company."

"Nick Carter" Foiled at Last.

Russell M. Coryell, in an article in the Bookman, relates how, in prowling around the attic of his boyhood home, he ran across a scrapbook filled with clippings which proved that his father was the author of the famous Nick Carter stories, long taboo as a topic for conversation in the Coryell household:

"It was a dramatic moment," he writes. "Father was surprised and chagrined. Taken off his guard, his first impulse was one of resentment. He had a high forehead and when I saw the blood mount to it I regretted my rash curiosity. But father had a fortunate sense of humor that never left him for long. He admitted that he was none other than Nick Carter himself—the man whose name I had not dared mention in my own home."

WHEAT LOSES EARLY GAIN.

Reports of heavy losses to wheat in Argentina due to continued drought and an estimate of a reduced acreage there, together with strength in foreign markets, stimulated active buying of wheat futures in the early dealings this morning, followed by a setback in the last hour.

At the full advance prices were up about 2½ to 3 cents. The close was ⅜ cent lower to ¼ cent higher in Kansas City and ¼ to ⅞ cent higher in Chicago.

Liverpool futures displayed a buoyant tendency, due to pessimistic crop news from Argentina. Closing prices showed gains of 2½ to 3¼ cents for the day.

Buenos Aires futures advanced 1½ cents in the early dealings after making gains of nearly 3 cents yesterday.

Export demand for North American wheat continued dull. Exporters are still long Gulf premiums, it was said, and until they make disposition of old f. o. b. purchases, it is not expected any new buying will take place. Small scattered sales of low grade Manitobas were made by the pool.

Receipts of wheat at Kansas City were moderate, 133 cars, an increase of 22 cars over a week ago and 65 cars less than a year ago. Other markets had moderate arrivals.

Corn futures displayed moderate strength in the early dealings in response to the advance in wheat and weakened later. The close was ⅝ to 1¼ cents lower at both Chicago and Kansas City.

Receipts of corn were somewhat heavier than recently, but were still considered light. Kansas City had 30 cars, St. Louis 39 cars and inspections at Chicago were estimated at 135 cars.

RISE AND SETBACK IN STOCKS.

New York, Sept. 12.—Further substantial advances occurred in a long list of stocks this morning, reflecting in part a more cheerful view of the current credit situation. Announcement that several additional investment trusts were in the process of organizing also improved sentiment. Gains were held well until after noon, when many issues turned down abruptly.

General Electric rose 5½ points, American and Foreign Power was up 4½, Allied Chemical 4, Hershey 3⅜, National Biscuit 4¼, Radio 4⅜, Industrial Alcohol 5¼, Westinghouse Electric 3⅞, American Can 2⅜, General Motors 2, Standard of New York 2½, Electric Auto-Lite 2¾ and United States Steel 2½.

Other gains of about 1 to 2 points embraced many of the motor, copper, oil, steel and utility issues.

Standard of New Jersey lost 1⅜ points of yesterday's gain and Packard was down a fraction.

The rail group was irregular at the outset, after which the more active issues generally made gains of 1 to 2 points.

The subsequent selling carried Westinghouse Electric down 9 points, Johns-Manville 6⅞, General Electric 3¼, American Telephone 4¼, Byers 4⅜, Du Pont 3½, Simmons 5½ and Auburn 5. Elsewhere in the list gains were reduced or lost.

Call loans renewed at 8 per cent, compared with a closing rate of 7 yesterday.

The high priced stocks tobogganed rapidly in the final hour. J. I. Case, which had been as high as 451, slumped to 430. American Machine and Foundry was down from 279½ to 261; Westinghouse Electric from 258⅞ to 252⅝, General Electric from 380 to 368 and United States Steel from 243 to 233⅝. Auburn Auto sold 15 points under the previous close and several others were off 4 to 8 points. The close was weak.

Transactions in the first half hour were 815,000 shares; to noon, 2,083,000; to 1:30 p. m., 3,316,000; to 2:10 p. m., 4,062,000; total, 5,017,000 shares; bonds, $9,916,000.

The range of prices for the leading issues on the New York Stock Exchange, the closing prices today and the closing prices yesterday, as reported by the Associated Press, are as follows:

WALL STREET COMMENT.

New York, Sept. 12.—Already in a highly nervous mood, Wall street quickly concluded from the outburst of heavy selling in the speculative leaders that hit the market after midday, that something in the way of bad news was hanging over the market. At any rate the rapidity with which such leaders as United States Steel, American Can, Westinghouse and shares of that caliber receded, offered testimony of urgent liquidation, and not entirely for the account of small traders. What the bad news could be was a matter of much conjecture, but intimations were strong that something would come with this afternoon's meeting of the directors of the local federal reserve bank.

Directors of the Fox Film Corporation have approved a plan for increasing the capitalization from 1 million shares to 5 million shares by raising the class A shares from 900,000 to 4,900,000, leaving the present number of 100,000 class B shares unchanged. It was announced that the increase was to enable the company to expand its activities and acquire properties. This was generally understood, however, to indicate a consolidation into one company of the various motion picture and theater interests of the Fox organization. These include the Fox theaters, Loew theaters, Fox Metropolitan theaters, Fox Film Corporation, Fox Case Corporation and the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Motion Picture Producing organization.

Announcements of formation of new huge investment trusts continue to be a daily occurrence. Public demand for trust issues is at high pitch, and financing of these organizations now constitutes the largest group of new offerings. This is demonstrated by figures of new financing for eight months ended August 31, 1929. Of an aggregate of $4,231,847,000, investment trusts accounted for $1,494,093,000, or 35 per cent of the total. This was almost twice as large as the next group, public utilities.

The announcement that only the regular $2 quarterly dividend had been ordered by directors of Southern Railway at their meeting today was something of a disappointment. Strength in the stock since the beginning of the week had been based on reports that an increase in the rate of disbursement would be voted today. While Southern's earnings might be readily regarded as sufficient to warrant the higher rate, which had been expected, directors undoubtedly could see no reason for undue haste in placing the stock on a higher basis.

Except for the fact that bullish operations have been switched into a new line of stocks, most the moderately priced issues instead of the "blue chip" shares, there has been little change in the character of trading since the beginning of the week. The bulk of business is still very largely concentrated in a virtual handful of stocks, as indicated by a survey of yesterday's operations, which showed that the twenty-six most active stocks had contributed more than half the total turnover of around 4,800,000 shares, and of that proportion roughly 1½ million shares was accounted for by the tremendous activity in six stocks, namely, Standard of New Jersey, Radio, Standard Brands, United Corporation, Standard of New York and United States Steel.

BROKERS' LOANS UP AGAIN.

Washington, Sept. 12.—(A. P.)—Loans to brokers and dealers held by New York Federal Reserve member banks for the week ending September 11 were announced by the Federal Reserve board today as $6,474,000,000, representing an increase of 120 million dollars over the preceding week and establishing a new record for the fourth consecutive week. Compared with a year ago there was an increase of 2,089 million dollars.

Directors of the New York Federal Reserve bank made no statement regarding its rediscount rate, which is 6 per cent. Failure to make an announcement is regarded as indicating that the prevailing rate will continue.

FOREIGN BANK STATEMENTS.

New York, Sept. 12.—Weekly statement of the Bank of England, cabled from London, showed a decrease of $758,000 in gold. The proportion of the bank's reserve to liabilities is 27.72 per cent, compared with 26.04 a week ago, 55.13 a year ago and 31.03 two years ago. Rate of discount is unchanged at 5½ per cent.

Weekly statement of the Bank of France shows the following changes in francs:

Gold increased 76 million, sight balances abroad decreased 19 million, bills discounted at home decreased 1,361 million, bills bought abroad increased 19 million, advances increased 146 million, circulation decreased 687 million, current accounts decreased 435 million. Rate of discount is unchanged at 3½ per cent.

CONVERTIBLE BONDS DOWN.

New York, Sept. 12.—(A. P.)—Convertible bonds hit the skids in the last hours of today's market and prices showed a general decline from yesterday's closing levels. Gains of about 2 points, made during the forenoon by some of the more popular issues, including American and International Telephone 4½s were rapidly converted into net losses in the late trading as a selling wave struck the stock market. Liquidation was only moderate, however. Reading Coal & Iron 6s worked against the trend for a gain of 6 points.

The remainder of the list had a somewhat haelthier appearance as investment rails held firm. A report that new financing for the Shell Union Oil Company would take the form of an issue of 50 million dollars in debentures bearing common stock warrants was accompanied by a break in that concern's listed 5 per cent debentures which dipped 2½ points to the new low of 93. Shell Pipe Line 5s were also sold freely.

Certain-teed Products 5½s lost part of Wednesday's gain.

The new Treasury 4⅞s certificates, traded over the counter, commanded a premium of ⅛ of a point. Listed governments were dull.

Transactions in principal bonds in thousands of dollars and the high, low and closing quotations, as reported by the Associated Press, are here shown:

CORPORATION NEWS.

Gold Dust Corporation has purchased from United Cigar Stores Company 46,000 shares of stock of Beech-Nut Packing Company, it was reported today. The report added that the transaction did not affect the management of Beech-Nut.

The reorganization committee of Cuba Cane Sugar Corporation announces that although only 28 per cent of the debentures remain undeposited under the plan for the financial reconditioning of the company, a receivership, with consequent forced sale of the property, seems inevitable. The statement asserts, however, that the committee believes it can carry out the reorganization plan even in the event of receivership. Time for deposit of securities was extended to September 25 and for the exercise of subscription warrants for proposed new securities, through October 5.

August sales of First National Stores, Inc., amounted to $8,047,563, compared with $5,618,857 in August, 1928.

EXTEND NEW MEXICO AREA.

Artesia, N. M., Sept. 12.—The Hobbs-High structure has been extended three-quarters mile to the southeast by the wildcat test of Walker et al. No. 1 Terry, in section 10-19s-38e. This is the most development in the New Mexico district of recent date.

The well while drilling down to the pay picked up a showing of gas at 2,912 feet, a show of oil at 3,265 and at 4,155 feet it started flowing by heads. It has been shut in for storage.

With this wildcat a producer it gives the Hobbs-High structure the appearance of having around four miles of proved acreage offered.

NEW SECURITIES ISSUES.

Stern Brothers & Co. and Fidelity National Company today offered 1 million dollars of A. R. Jones Oil and Operating Company 5-year 6 per cent collateral trust convertible bonds, priced at 99 and interest to yield 6.23 per cent. Each $1,000 of bonds may be exchanged for twenty-two common shares of Independent Oil and Gas Company prior to September 15, 1932. The issue is secured by 48,500 shares of Independent Oil and Gas. The A. R. Jones Company on August 31 had assets applicable to these bonds of about 8¾ million dollars, equal to $8,753 for each $1,000. Prescott, Wright, Snider Company, Baum-Bernheimer & Co., Columbia National Bank, City Bank and Liberay National Bank are participting.

It was reported today that new financing, totaling 50 million dollars, will be announced soon for Shell Union Oil Corporation, one of the Royal Dutch group. The issue, it is understood, will be in the form of debentures, accompanied by warrants for the purchase of common stock, the proceeds of which will provide funds for development of the company's marketing facilities.

E. H. Rollins & Sons are offering $78,000 of City of Amarillo, Tex., 4½ per cent sewer bonds, due 1952 to 1956, priced to yield 5 per cent.

Continental Illinois Company, William R. Compton Company and others are offering 11 million dollars of State of Illinois 4 per cent highway bonds, due 1945 to 1959, priced to yield 4.40 per cent.

An issue of 1 million dollars of American Service Company 3-year convertible 7 per cent gold notes, due September 1, 1932, are being offered by A. B. Leach & Co. and Halsey, Stuart & Co., at 99½, to yield 7.20 per cent.

George H. Burr & Co. next week will offer 75,000 shares of 6 per cent cumulative convertible preferred stock, series of 1929, and 75,000 shares of common stock of Burco, Inc., at $64 a unit of one share of preferred, one share of comm stock and one warrant. The warrants will entitle the holders to purchase common stock at $15 a share up to and including January 2, 1940. Burco, Inc., has been formed to deal in securities and participate in syndicates and underwritings. It is planned to use also a portion of its resources in company development, particularly in the chain store field. George H. Burr & Co. will pay all expenses of the corporation's organization, and the majority of the board of directors will be members of the Burr firm.

MAY BE NEW DEEP POOL.

Oklahoma City, Sept. 12.—(A. P.)—Oklahoma County's second deep oil pool was in the making today with Mid-Kansas Oil and Gas and Ramsey Petroleum Company's No. 1 Trosper, a wildcat, in section 19-12-1w, eleven miles east of Oklahoma City, flowing by heads into the tanks after being bailed in during the night. The first head between 5 and 6 a. m. put an estimated 45 barrels of oil in the tank and a second head between 7:20 and 7:45 a. m., 50 barrels.

The oil tested 38 gravity at 66 degrees. There was no water cutting, although the first head brought in some fresh water which had been put in the hole to check pressure.

Drillers estimated the well was good for 1,000 barrels daily. Considerable gas was showing, estimated at 2 to 5 million cubic feet.

The well was producing from sand at 6,160 feet, which showed in the core test. The hole, after being carried to the Wilcox sand at 6,830 to 6,904 feet, and finding it dry, was plugged back to 6,250 feet.

THE LATEST MARKET NEWS

CURBS IRREGULARLY LOWER.

New York, Sept. 12.—Irregularity crept into the market as the ticker limped 20 minutes behind at the beginning of the final hour on the New York Curb Exchange today. Unloading started in the early afternoon in anticipation of the forthcoming brokers' loan statement and federal reserve bank meeting, and continued till the close. The majority of specialties, however, continued strong, and a number of sizable gains were recorded.

Noblett Sparkes jumped 19¾ points to a new high at 62, on a small number of sales. Newmont Mining, after reaching a new top at 235¾ earlier in the day, dropped back to 228, for a net loss of about a point.

National Investors remained strong throughout the day and closed with a net gain of 40 points at around 380, reaching a high of 391¾, while the warrants closed with a net gain of 34 points at 360½, a new high. National Public Service B proved a feature, rising 18 points to hang up a new record top at 60.

North States Power, after touching a new high level at 269¾, dropped to 262, for a net gain of 6 points. Electric Bond and Share was a weak spot at the close, dropping from 179¾ to 174½, while Electric Investors was down to 270, off 8 points.

Oils turned reactionary, under the leadership of the pipe lines. Illinois Pipe at 303 and Eureka Pipe at 55 were each down 4 points, while Gulf of Penn dropped to 200, down 3.

Principal transactions in the curb market in hundreds of shares, with the range of prices, as reported by the Associated Press, are here shown:

ANOTHER FREIGHT RECORD.

Washington, Sept. 12.—(A. P.)—Revenue freight loadings for the week ended August 31 totaled 1,160,210 cars, the highest for any week this year and the highest for any corresponding week on record.

This was an increase of 24,643 cars over the preceding week and an increase of 43,499 cars above the corresponding week a year ago. Compared with two years ago, there was an increase of 42,850 cars.

Human Walls of Sparta.

A distinguished stranger being shown around ancient Sparta commented on the fact there were no walls about the city. The king of Sparta led him out to where the Spartan army was drawn up in full array, and said, "There thou beholdest the walls of Sparta—10,000 men, and every man a brick."

Entranced.

"Did you dance with the prince of Wales when he was in this country?"

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne.

"Is he a good dancer?"

"How could I know? I was so flattered and enthused that I could not possibly take notice."

NOTES OF THE GRAIN TRADE.

"A sharp contraction in flour business has brought the volume of new sales in the Southwest to about 65 per cent of the capacity of mills, and in the Northwest to only slightly above capacity," said the Northwestern Miller. "In both territories the figure is the lowest in several weeks. The lesser buying came as somewhat of a surprise to millers, who were at a loss to find adequate reasons for it. Obviously, buyers are puzzled by the fact that flour is being offered in a wide range of prices, while the wheat market has steadied and is working in a comparatively narrow range. The trade also, apparently, was disappointed that the market did not undergo the break anticipated immediately following Labor Day. Lots of 500 to 1,000 barrels are typical of current business. Inquiry for future delivery still is active, and indications are that, if the market eased off a few cents, sales would increase considerably. Recent export bookings were principally to Latin American outlets."

The French wheat crop is officially estimated at 361 million bushels, compared with 279 million bushels last year.

R. O. Cromwell wired from Logansport, Ind.: "The larger parts of Newton, Jasper and North Benton counties have good corn for this year. Some fields are spotted and firing, but the loss is exaggerated locally. White, Pulaski and Carroll counties will average poor if it all matures, but important sections have young to old roasting ear stages and some are prematurely beyond frost damage. I have seen little old corn in cribs."

"The persistent dry weather in Argentina is doing considerable damage to wheat in Cordoba and Santa Fe," said Broomhall. "Our agent believes the loss in these provinces already amounts to 30 per cent and the rest of the country must continue deteriorating unless heavy general rains fall soon. In this event the crop would partly recuperate, but present prospects indicate a considerable reduction in the crop compared to last year. The wheat acreage has been officially placed at 8½ per cent less than a year ago."

"Generous rains broke the severe drouth lasting since early July, but the moisture came too late to materially benefit most crops," said the weekly Oklahoma bulletin. "Some late planted corn will be benefited but much of the crop has been damaged beyond recovery. Grain sorghums will be improved by the rains. There is now good soil moisture for plowing and preparation of ground for winter wheat. Seeding has begun in the extreme northwest Panhandle counties."

Grain Privileges.

Privileges on Chicago wheat, good tomorrow, were quoted this afternoon 1½ to 2½ cents under the close for bids and 1¾ to 2 cents over for offers.

Privileges good all next week were 5¾ to 6½ cents under the market for bids and 9½ to 9¾ cents over for offers.

Bids for corn, good tomorrow, were 1 to 1¼ cents under the close and offers ¾ to 1 cent over the close.

Good all next week bids on corn were 3⅝ to 3¾ cents under the close and offers 6¼ to 7½ cents over the close.

NEW CHICAGO EXCHANGE RULE.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—(A. P.)—Governors of the Chicago Stock Exchange, at a meeting that lasted most of the night, voted early today to amend the stock exchange by-laws to prohibit members belonging also to the Chicago Board of Trade from trading in securities on the board's new market. The governors decided, however, to permit its members to trade in grain and provisions on the board.

Under the original by-laws, members of the stock exchange were forbidden to belong to any other Illinois organization which traded in securities listed by the stock exchange. The board of trade announced yesterday that, starting next Monday, it would trade in securities, including some already listed by the stock exchange.

Drug store chains, compared to merchandising chains in other fields, are comparatively in their infancy. The stocks of two well-managed, successful Drug Store chains operating in the Middle West are among our current investment suggestions.

To Non-Depositing Debenture Holders of Cuba Cane Sugar Corporation:

Seventy-two per cent of the Company's Debentures have been deposited under the Plan and Agreement of Reorganization. With 28% of the Debentures still undeposited, the Committee is forced to the conclusion that a receivership with consequent forced sale of the properties is inevitable. The Committee believes, however, that, because of the fairness of the Plan and the substantial support it has already received, the Committee will be able to carry out the Plan even in receivership.

The Committee feels it proper to state that in receivership proceedings all non-assenting debenture holders will receive only their distributive share of the proceeds of any forced sale, whereas upon consummation of the Plan, the depositing Debenture holders will receive the securities of the new company as set forth in the Plan. The Committee believes these securities will be of materially greater value than the share of the proceeds of the sale which the non-depositing Debenture holder will obtain.

That all non-depositing Debenture holders may be advised and given the opportunity to deposit, the Committee has extended the time for deposit to and including September 25, 1929.

It is not the intention of the Committee to make any further extension of the time for deposit.

In event of redemption prior to maturity, conversion privilege may be exercised up to 15 days prior to date set for redemption. Denominations $1,000 and $500. Registerable as to principal.

Fidelity National Bank and Trust Company of Kansas City, Trustee.

Secured by deposit with the Trustee of 48,500 shares of capital stock of Independent Oil and Gas Company, a Delaware corporation, which, at current market price on the New York Stock Exchange as of September 9, 1929, had a value in excess of $1,500,000. The indenture provides for maintenance of collateral at not less than 130% of the amount of bonds at any time outstanding.

EACH BOND OF $1,000 DENOMINATION IS CONVERTIBLE AT ANY TIME PRIOR TO SEPTEMBER 15, 1932, INTO 22 SHARES ($500 BOND CONVERTIBLE INTO 11 SHARES) OF THE PRESENT CAPITAL STOCK OF INDEPENDENT OIL AND GAS COMPANY

The A. R. Jones Oil and Operating Company was organized under the laws of the State of Kansas in 1922, for the purpose of owning and managing the valuable properties and investments of Mr. Albert R. Jones, who is president of the company, and who, together with members of his immediate family, owns all its capital stock.

A statement as of August 31, 1929, filed with the bankers, indicates the assets of The A. R. Jones Oil and Operating Company, applicable to these bonds, to be $8,752,790.82. There are therefore $8,752.79 of assets applicable to these bonds for each $1,000 par value outstanding.

The net cash income of the company for the six years ending December 31, 1928, has aggregated more than $3,400,000, or in excess of $560,000 per annum, being over 9 times the interest requirements upon this issue of bonds, which constitutes the entire funded debt of the company.

Mr. Albert R. Jones, President of the company and guarantor of these bonds, has been eminently successful. He is a director of Fidelity National Bank and Trust Company of Kansas City, of Independent Oil and Gas Company, and is also a director or officer of a number of other well-known corporations.

The Independent Oil and Gas Company is a complete operating unit, owning valuable production, refineries, pipelines, tank cars, and filling stations. In 1928 it acquired the Manhattan Oil Company. Earnings for the year 1928, after depletion and depreciation, were $3.81 per share on the stock outstanding, while earnings for the first six months of 1929 were $2.63 per share, or at the annual rate of $5.26 per share on the stock outstanding. Regular dividends are being currently paid at the rate of $2.00 per share per annum.

The statements contained in this advertisement, while not representations by us nor guaranteed to be correct, are believed to be accurate and reliable and are those upon which we have acted.

A 4-SPEED TRANSMISSION IS AN ATTRIBUTE OF THE NEW PACKARDS.

A 4-speed forward transmission and a number of improvements designed to increase the convenience and comfort of driving are attributes of the new Packard "Straight Eight." Three complete lines, the "Standard Eight," priced from $2,375 to $2,775, f. o. b. the factory; the "Custom Eight," listing from $3,190 to $3,885, and the "De Luxe Eight," priced from $4,585 to $5,350, are offered.

The 5-passenger sedan of the "Standard Eight" series has a wheelbase of 127½ inches, and the other ten models have a 134½-inch wheelbase. All models comprising the "Custom Eight" line have a wheelbase of 140½ inches, and the cars of the "De Luxe" series have a 145½-inch wheelbase chassis. A pleasing touch has been given the familiar Packard lines by the adaption of a broad molding at the belt line of the bodies which sweeps from a curve at the back, forward over the cowl. The cars are one and a half inches lower than the former series.

Twin adjustable inside visors behind the windshield, which can be lowered at any angle from the ceiling to protect against glaring light, are a feature. All models have nonshatterable glass in every window and windshield. The centralized chassis lubrication system has been extended to serve forty-three on the chassis. The motors are equipped with a new type of carburetor.

Vanity and smoking sets are built into the armrests of the closed models, and all body types are equipped with a compartment on each side of the instrument board, opened by a knob on the dash, which supplies room for gloves and small articles. The 5-passenger "Standard Sedan" is shown above.

STOCK TO THE GLOBE

"THE LOVE BANDIT" WILL BE THE OPENING OFFERING.

Jean Darby Is the Leading Man of the Company and Dorothy Woodward Heads the Cast—A College Story the Movie.

Kansas City's theatrical season will be augmented this year by a musical stock company at the Globe theater. The company will present its first offering, "The Love Bandit," next week. Dorothy Woodward, who was seen here with the Loie Bridge Company, heads the cast. Miss Woodward sings, dances and has a good gift for comedy. She has been extremely popular here on other occasions.

A feature of the company will be a well-trained chorus of twelve girls capable of ballet work, as well as the usual routine of chorus numbers.

In the cast Del Phillips will be the leading comedian. Mr. Phillips was here several years ago with an earlier Loie Bridge company. William Rader, also familiar to Globe audiences, will do character roles, and Myron Cox will be the juvenile of the company. There will be a weekly change of program.

Jean Darby will be the leading man. Others in the cast are Virginia Karnos, Mat Munsey, Lloyd Connelly, Tola Radcliffe, Florence May and Howard Evans.

On the screen the Globe will present "College Love," with George Lewis, Dorothy Gulliver, Eddie Phillips, Hayden Stevenson, Churchill Ross and Summer Getchel.

Jeanne Eagels and Frederic March insure the Royal of a skillfully performed talkie. They will appear in "Jealousy," a play which comes up to Miss Eagels's requirement for hard-boiled and highly dramatic vehicles. Miss Eagels is known here first of all as "a home town girl who made good;" second, as the star of "Rain," the phenomenal stage success, and third, as the star of that turbulent talkie, "The Letter," in which her fine mannerisms and powerful voice proved for the first time that the combination of camera and microphone could produce drama of the highest order. Mr. March's stage reputation is equal to that of Miss Eagels. He is a handsome and finished performer. You may remember him from "The Wild Party," or that highly mature and little appreciated picture, "Paris Bound."

JEAN DARBY, LEADING MAN OF THE NEW GLOBE STOCK COMPANY.

Al Jolson, who seems to be banking too much on his reputation in "Say It With Songs," is safe at least for the time being. Al's past record has been so favorable the power of his name brings people to a theater to see him in even a bad vehicle. The picture is being held at the Newman a second week.

Eddie Leonard, who has been a blackface entertainer so long he was on the verge of being called "the grand old man of vaudeville," is at the Pantages next week in a picture called "Melody Lane." In this he sings several old songs. Josephine Dunn and Huntley Gordon have featured positions in the cast.

On the stage Pantages will feature a headline act called "Gigolo of Paris," a musical dancing act in which Louise Elyda, late star of the "Whiteway Gayeties," and Iris Chanipar, are featured. Bailey and Jackson do blackface comedy in "Gimme My Dollar," a skit. William Bence & Co. present "An Oriental Incident," in which Mr. Bence impersonates a Chinese. Walton and Brandt have a skit based upon baseball. It is called "Just Dumb." Johnson and Duker have a juggling act.

Eddie Quillen, Jeanette Loff and Sally O'Neil in "The Sophomore" supply the Mainstreet's screen entertainment. The picture has a collegiate background. The theater's stage offering also will be of the Oxford bag variety, "The R. K. O. Collegiate Show." This unit carries a company of twenty-five. This includes a girl jazz band, Bobby Grice, as mistress of ceremonies, and several singers, dancers and comedians.

MUSHMOUTH, GAVE THE NEIGHBORS QUITE A MOUTHFUL OF GOSSIP ABOUT MR SMOKEHOUSES BEING OUT. ON ACCOUNT OF RECEIVING THREATS FROM AN IRATE HUSBAND WHEN THEY HEARD A SHOT FIRED THROUGH THE FRONT DOOR AND DURING THE EXCITEMENT HE NEGLECTED TO EXPLAIN THAT HE HAD BEEN A BIT CLUMSY IN HANDLING THE GUN.
HE'S BACK AGAIN MULLINS, YOU GO OUT AND CALM THAT FELLOW.
NOTHIN' DOIN'- MUSHMOUTH, YOU BEAT IT OUT THE BACK WAY AND CALL A COP. NO-I AIN'T GONNA GET IN ANY RIOT WITH THAT GUY, SYLVESTER- IT'S AGAINST MY BELIEF.
BAM! BAM! BAM!
WHAT BELIEF?
I BELIEVE THAT BABY OUT THERE WOULD MOVE US OUT OF A NICE COMFORTABLE LAYOUT LIKE THIS INTO A COUPLE OF COTS IN THE EMERGENCY WARD.
NOK NOK NOK
SUCH PERSISTANCE! HEAVENS- WHY DOESN'T MUSHMOUTH HURRY?
HE DONT KNOW WHAT THAT MEANS. HE'S SO SLOW THAT IF HE GETS HIS FEET DAMP IN JULY HE DON'T CATCH COLD TILL JANUARY.

Between Fruit and Cheese.

Between a pear and some cheese, according to Aristide Briand, there was laid the other day the corner stone of a European federation. It is a picturesque phrase. It conjures up a vision of the genial M. Briand, presiding over a luncheon table in one of those excellent hotels for which Geneva is noted. His guests include twenty-one foreign ministers, who have gathered in that city for the September meeting of the League of Nations, and he is discussing with them his plan for a United States of Europe.

He has waited until the end of the meal, however; for M. Briand is too good a Frenchman to interrupt the major business of dining for any extraneous purpose. And so between a pear and some cheese, we may suppose, the conversation turns to the advantages to be derived from an economic union of European states. But the subject is being discussed in merely the most general terms and under the soothing influence of an admirable Swiss luncheon. M. Briand would be the first to admit that the difficulties are being ignored.

Among the guests, for example, is Arthur Henderson, "Uncle Arthur," the British foreign secretary. If Uncle Arthur should start to explain the British position with respect to the project, M. Briand might well have to order dinner for his party. It has been suggested elsewhere that all customs barriers between European states be abolished, in order to create the same free trade conditions that exist between the states in this country.

But Uncle Arthur knows that in all probability Great Britain could never join such a European customs federation; for the simple reason that the dominions and colonies would have none of it. Even within the British commonwealth of nations today there is not free trade nor is there any immediate prospect of establishing it. Many of the constituent states are committed to tariff policies, either for purposes of protection or revenue.

Australia has long been one of the chief exponents of protectionist theories. Canada raises 200 million dollars a year by customs and excise duties, the Union of South Africa receives a revenue of 50 million dollars a year and the principal income of several of the colonies is derived from the same source. It is extremely unlikely that these members of the commonwealth would agree to remove their tariffs on European imports and certainly Great Britain would not join a union which did not include them and even required her to impose tariffs on their products, as fixed by the general federation.

Obviously Uncle Arthur had no time to go into such considerations during dessert. But his host probably understands the situation. Between a pear and some cheese, M. Briand has said, the corner stone was laid. He might have added, but the corner stone does not determine the size of the building which we may be going to erect.

A Special Session in Missouri.

Whether there should be a special session of the Missouri legislature to act upon the report of the state survey commission is a question that best can be answered when the report is made and its nature revealed. There is general knowledge, however, of conditions at the state institutions now being investigated by the commission. The need of remedial action also has been understood. The commission's findings most likely will serve to accentuate the need and at the same time to clarify the point as to what should be done to meet it.

To delay action until the regular legislative session, more than a year from the time the report is to be completed, would be a serious matter. Further, the expense of a special session could be limited by restricting the legislature to the one subject of the commission's report. Perhaps, too, at a special session the legislature might be more ready to get down to business and accomplish something than it is in the confusion of a general session.

More Speed Where It Is Safe.

Speeding up of traffic under the congested conditions that prevail in a large city must be undertaken with caution. Yet quickening the flow of traffic means relief from congestion, and where it can be brought about with a reasonable assurance of safety it should be attempted. Traffic movement in Kansas City admittedly is slow, compared with that in other centers.

The traffic survey now in progress should result in recommendations of a varied character. The final outcome of it should mean a thorough modernizing of the situation here. But pending such a development, which necessarily cannot be effected for some time, there are no doubt helpful changes that could be made.

Better protection of the safety zones seemingly would be all that is necessary to make use of the car tracks both safe for pedestrians and an aid to traffic. The street cars, of course, use the space now. There seems no important principle involved, save that of keeping the reckless motorist out of the space specifically preserved for those boarding and leaving the cars. Providing lanes for fast and slow moving traffic on the wider streets also should help, and actually promote safety. Often the poky motorist who gets out near the middle of the street is a genuine menace, just as he is on a highway.

Making speed more a matter of driver discretion than of legal limitation is being resorted to widely at present and might be sanctioned with reasonable limitations in Kansas City.

Important Road Connections.

It is urgent that Kansas and Missouri combine, as proposed, to complete connections between highway 71 from Harrisonville and highway 73 at Louisburg, and also between the same roads from Nevada and Fort Scott. There is still another road that should be put into first class condition between the two highways named. It would be a much shorter connection, between Grandview on 71 and No. 73 due west. This road is the Martin City-Olathe road, and really demands a good surface all the way. At least it should be made a slab between the two much traveled north-and-south roads. This connection will be all the more important when the Jackson County road program is completed, for then Holmes road will be paved all the way to Martin City and the new Blue Valley road will connect with it near Martin City.

The Barber of New York.

The American barber who is hastening to London at the request of a New York patron should realize that he will not be met at the pier by a committee of welcome from the Amalgamated Union of British Hair Dressers. Any official welcoming in all probability will be left to his majesty's immigration inspector at the port of entry.

The inspector will examine the barber's passport and then coldly inquire whether he possesses a home office permit to practice his profession in England. If he is not so provided, the inspector may yet permit him to land on the strict understanding that he report to the police immediately upon his arrival in London and to the home office in Whitehall.

After the barber has tried standing in line before a Bow street police sergeant, to obtain an identification card, and arguing with an official in the aliens' branch, to secure an employment permit in a country which has not even enough work for its own citizens, he may decide that his patron's hair is scarcely worth the trouble it involves, and return home. As for his New York patron, he may discover to his surprise that despite their somewhat primitive plumbing, English barber shops are ordinarily as satisfactory as those at home, and that he will be urged to take just as many expensive accessories.

Chicago's New Opera Plant.

The new home of grand opera in Chicago soon will be dedicated. Along with the dedication, the promoters also will bid adieu to the deficits they have had to pay from year to year to keep the Civic Grand Opera going, deficits amounting to more than ½ million annually. At least such a farewell is expected, and the public, which has been the beneficiary of the continuing subsidy, will hope for it.

It is the faith of the sponsors of opera in Chicago that the profits of the great office building in which the new opera house is housed will be a profitable investment, whatever the cost of keeping opera on the highest feasible plane. The enterprise is one of peculiar relation to possible changes in the next few years in musical productions.

Whatever the development of vocalized motion pictures, there will be a demand for at least two or three first class opera companies to give grand opera on a splendid scale, and this demand may be even greater than now. It happens that so far musical pictures have been exceedingly satisfactory.

Opera is an expensive thing to transport even comparatively short distances. If the time shall come, say in four or five years, when we shall have really satisfactory opera in our picture houses, there will be little need to send the companies on the road and incur certain loss in so doing.

Another Ride by Sheridan.

Gen. Phil Sheridan, when he was a boy not yet in his "teens," had probably his most thrilling ride, not excepting even that to Winchester from "20 miles away," writes J. H. Galbraith, Ohio historian. Some older boys boosted young Sheridan onto the back of a horse which, unused to being mounted without saddle or bridle, dashed across fields and over a fence to the highway. Some miles away, winded and foaming with sweat, the animal came to a stop by the hitching rail of a tavern where, it developed, its owner was a frequent visitor. When the crowd about the bar learned that young Phil had ridden so many miles without fear of any kind and had even held on while the horse cleared a farm fence, they asked who taught him to ride. This brought out the fact that under the tutelage of another boy, Bill Seymour, he had frequently ridden horses on the neighboring farms, though never before without saddle or bridle.

TAKING ON A NEW PILOT.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

A BURST OF FLAME AND THUNDER, AND THE BATTLE OF ST. MIHIEL WAS UNDER WAY

After Nights, When Roads Throbbed Under the Iron Shod Feet of Masses of Troops, of Heavy Guns and Ammunition Trucks, American Soldiers Started Their Big Engagement, Eleven Years Ago Today.

THE vast movement of troops into the beautiful region spread out at the foot of Mont Sec, the keystone of the St. Mihiel salient, began many days before the rumble of guns opened the battle, eleven years ago today.

We were billeted in a rude shelter of sandbags and corrugated iron lying just off a broad rock road through the woods, a few kilometers from the prodigious green cone of Mont Sec, a grim eruption lying about 2,000 yards behind the concrete German trenches of the line. From that eminence German observers, with cruel accuracy, had directed artillery fire upon the Allies below, whose only refuge had been in the dense woods and the slightly rolling character of the landscape.

Nights before the break of the long heralded battle we were awakened by the throbbing rumble of troops upon the rock road. All through those black, drizzling nights the iron-shod feet of American soldiers beat.

"THE AWFUL, MONOTONOUS BEAT OF THOUSANDS OF FEET BEGAN AGAIN."

TO GLORY OR DEATH.

The voices of sergeants and second lieutenants shouted in the darkness and, for a moment, perhaps, the rumble of columns ceased. Then tired feet shuffled rapidly as the ranks closed in. The awful, monotonous beat of thousands of feet began again. Those men were tired of the march, weary almost to staggering, but the rhythm sustained them until the column straggled and broke and men sought a moment's rest in the ditches by the side of the road. It was at those times the men were halted and the ranks closed.

Many times we arose and sought the roadside, eagerly scanning the tired faces that passed like phantoms in the circle of our one electric torch, hoping, although we knew the hope was absurd, to see somebody from home. For we had been many, many months in France, and these men were now going up to battle for the first time, perhaps to death.

And there were nights when the road was filled with the rumble of artillery, going up to positions in the wood in the dark and the rain. Drivers cried their curses. Horses, tired and at last crazy with the lash of whips, sometimes attempted to bolt their harness. Then there were more cries and the crack of whips and sometimes the jangle and crash of a gun carriage overturning in a ditch.

Behind each gun walked tired men, raincoats over their heads and packs. Grotesque creatures they were, like headless hunchbacks, until one saw the perspiring and dirt-streaked faces peering from out.

THE CLOWNS OF THE PARADE.

Sometimes the machine gunners came by, trudging behind their tiny wire-wheeled gun-carriages drawn by donkeys. They were the clowns of the parade. What obstinate teams! What picturesque profanity! Now the donkeys would march decorously, now they scampered around the dark road, the carriages reeling behind them. Sometimes they turned willfully from the road and attempted to go through the woods. How their drivers shrieked and belabored!

There were nights when the road shook with the relentless stream of motor trucks, which ground the rocks hour after hour. Some of them were filled with dozing men, their arms and legs entangled, so closely crowded were they. Some bore munitions. It was an ominous sight because the men and munitions usually were concealed by the tarpaulin covers. One saw nothing but the dark bulk of the monsters roaring up the road in an endless file, mile after mile. They were the juggernauts. But presently they would return, bearing other cargoes, which one could not see but which, nonetheless, filled the breast of the man beside the road with an unspeakable terror.

There were nights, too, filled with the moan of bombers, shrouded by the dark wings of night, on their desperate missions behind the German lines.

And then the great day came. It had been rumored amongst thousands of men. It was cafe talk in Paris. It had been published. And so, although it was spectacular and successful it was not such a great day. The Germans had learned of it and, in the face of the tremendous massing of troops, all but had evacuated the salient when the guns boomed in the gray mist of that morning eleven years ago.

We were up, "standing to" for emergency, when the first burst of flame and thunder rumbled along the artillery lines through the woods. Dawn just was breaking and a heavy fog lay upon the dark woods.

The road through our woods was desolate and quiet. Thick slime lay upon the one white surface. The wrecks of trucks and guns lay upside down in the ditches, as if storm or battle had passed that way. Only the troops had passed in the night to do battle. Beyond the battle was roaring. The fog was luminously red along the front. We shouted to one another at our morning porridge under the dripping trees, so loud was the thunder. And presently the thunder ceased to be, because it was all-pervasive and, like the sound of a waterfall to which one has become accustomed, rumbled on unnoticed. But, for many hours after the guns actually ceased firing, we shouted to one another in our conversations.

The fog lifted when the sun came up. The green mountain emerged, mist flying across its vast side. The black heads of guns rose at intervals from our woods, like the heads of dragons. They rose and snorted a blast of flame and smoke and withdrew adroitly. Great shells went whispering over to the German lines and from those lines came a dread silence.

A puff of smoke bloomed out on the green side of Mont Sec. Then another. And presently the mountain seemed engirdled in a chain of smoke blossoms which moved ever toward the top. It was the barrage, seeking out the last observation posts and artillery emplacements on the eminence which so long had dominated the green country around. On the peak of that mountain—it was only 457 feet above the surrounding terrain but immense because it was solitary—stood a little house, the principal observation post. There was talk of a tunnel through the mountain which was connected by a shaft to the post at the top. A shell dropped there. The volcano seemed to erupt and when the smoke drifted away, the little house was no longer to be seen.

As we watched the shells break on the mountain, the green of foliage faded in patches and the torn earth shone yellow and brown.

POUND, POUND, POUND!

Through that whole day, eleven years ago, the guns rose and fell as they pounded, pounded, pounded upon that sharp blade point of the salient which so long had been driven into that side of France. It is useless to say it was broken off and that the broken sword fell from the hands of Germany.

It was almost dusk of September 12, when our little crew was called from its dugout to lend a hand with an ammunition train, blown from its toy track near the mountain. We went up as the first wounded and first prisoners were coming down. The light casualties were walking back, their bandages wet, for a light rain had set in. One muddy doughboy came laughing, perhaps deliriously, but, even in delirium, he was privileged to laugh. A machine gun bullet had pierced the front of his tin hat and had carved out a red part through the middle of his scalp. Blood had drawn fine lines down his face, as if the grating of a furnace had cast a ribbed glare upon him. He was not hurt much, but he was stunned.

Some of the walking wounded whimpered, more from fear than hurt. Had they received the same injuries in a factory they would have laughed away the hurt. But they were under nervous strain; they had been sleepless and afraid for many days. A wound seemed to release their pent-up emotions and they whimpered or sobbed.

PRISONERS A SORRY CREW.

The prisoners were a sorry, muddy crew, as they marched in column formation back through the woods. Small guard detachments accompanied them. Few men could be spared and, furthermore, there was no danger of the prisoners running away. There was nowhere to run. Very likely they were inferiors who had been left behind by the retreating German army to lend the impression the line still was occupied. Had the retreat been apprehended, the American army would have smashed down upon them as they fled.

We attained a height and looked down upon the muddy lowlands, scattered with sparse copses, over which the army had plunged into the salient. There an artillery emplacement smouldered and smoked where a German shell had smitten it. The dead lay around it. Beyond a German gun poked its nose from a copse. But it was not a gun, we discovered. It was a smokestack, part of the elaborate camouflage of the German lines.

From the eminence, as darkness fell, we saw four patches of fire in the vast landscape.

"Ammunition dumps?" someone asked.

"Towns," said an officer, who trudged by. "Four flaming towns."

That is all he said. He trudged on, head down.

The night was very black and the rain continued to fall. Enemy bombers soared over every few minutes, looking for troops and trains. Occasionally the ground would quake and an explosion flare as a bomb whistled down. In the distance machine guns barked, but infrequently. The hurrah of the artillery had died. An awful silence brooded upon that desolate landscape where four towns burned and men lay dead.

We finished our labors long before dawn. Two doughboys trudged by.

"Come on, Jack," one of them growled. "Let's hit for the canteen. This battle's over."

We followed them to a tiny cross-roads village, a half mile away. A yellow light showed through the chinks of one wrecked house. There was no door. It had been blown away with the end wall. A tarpaulin covered it. We crawled under it into a narrow room, where two men with white hair were ladling coffee from a great urn. Tired, muddy soldiers sat on the floor and leaned against the wall, all silent.

"We're the Red Cross, boys," one of them said very kindly. "Get a cup."

The battle wasn't over, but it was over for us. The battle went clamoring on, more or less, for another day. H. W. K.

KANSAS NOTES.

"A boy and his mother are a majority in almost any family," observes Everett Palmer in the Jewell Republican.

Noting that a Chicago woman slept for eight days, the El Dorado Times guesses the esteemed gangsters of that city must be using Maxim silencers on their artillery these days.

Jack Harris feels that this year hasn't been complete, because for some unexplained reason the paradoxical distribution of complimentary tickets to the Kansas free fair has been discontinued.

It is queer how topsy-turvy things have become in this age, says the Lawrence Journal. The bootjacks abandoned by their grandfathers are now needed by modern women to remove their hats.

The Ottawa Herald's comment on Kipling's "Hymn of the Triumphant Airman" is that it is remarkable he rhymed "onset" with "sunset" and thus far has got away with it.

According to the Hiawatha World, a circus sword-swallower eating at a Hiawatha restaurant got a fish bone stuck in his throat, and only vigorous thumpings on the back cheated a doctor out of a fee.

THE REMARKABLE FEATURE.

AFTER TWENTY YEARS.

Editorial Opinion of the Columbus, O., Dispatch.

Twenty years ago, a Sicilian of the province of Palermo was murdered. The identity of the two murderers was known, but they succeeded in escaping to the United States, and for nearly twenty years nothing more was heard of the matter. The effort to pick up their trail had not ceased, however, and last Friday night they were picked up by the police in Chicago.

This will be taken by some as evidence of the truth of the old saying that "Murder will out," but when one reads statistics of unsolved murder mysteries his belief in that adage does not survive the shock. Doubtless the crime of murder, in most cases, wreaks a penalty of its own. The man who feels that he is being continually hunted as a criminal can never be a happy man. Always, figuratively at least, looking over his shoulder for a pursuer, such a one probably sees less hours of comparative ease than if he were in a prison cell.

ECHOES.

How sweet the answer echo makes
  To music at night
When, roused by lute or horn, she wakes
And far away o'er lawns and lakes
  Goes answering light!

Yet love hath echoes truer far
  And far more sweet
Than e'er, beneath the moonlight's star,
Of horn or lute or soft guitar
  The songs repeat.

'Tis when the sigh—in youth sincere
  And only then,
The sigh that's breathed for one to hear—
Is by that one, that only dear
  Breathed back again.

STARBEAMS.

The campaign against noise in the city seems to be getting along screamingly. Five city ambulances have been equipped with bigger and louder sirens at $125 each.

The new sirens doubtless will sound loud at first, but by the time we get a few thousand more trucks with loose parts running on the streets, the noise of the sirens will die down and then we'll need more new ones at $150 apiece.

TARPAPER PALACE

By Lida Larrimore

Copyright, Macrae Smith Co.

Twenty-year-old Mary Ellen Gardiner, who lives in Gray Gables at the Atlantic coast town of Mayport with her grandfather, Captain Hollis, and her aunts, Molly and Ella, who keep summer boarders, feels lonely. She sails her boat across the harbor and gazes languidly at the vacant tarpaper "palace" on Shadow Island around which cling many of her childhood memories. She is surprised to find a handsome young man there, who is seeking solitude and says he will live in the old ruin a while. His name is Eric Swann. He says he knows little about cooking and housekeeping; so Mary Ellen promises to help him out of any difficulties. Eric is the son of Nellie Shannon, who was a popular actress thirty years ago. She bought Shadow Island. Later she ordered the house built there, but it was left unfinished and never occupied. Eric rents a boat from grandfather and the latter takes a liking to him. So Eric calls at Gray Gables, and the aunts also take a fancy to him. He says his parents are dead and a whim has brought him to the island to spend the rest of the summer. Mary Ellen helps him to select furnishings for the house, and sometimes in her boat she takes him food sent by her aunts. Eric and Mary Ellen are romantically happy in each other's companionship. One day they are caught out in a heavy rainstorm. They stop on somebody's porch for shelter and he kisses her. Mary Ellen tries to persuade Eric to get into some useful work instead of idling. Lolita Wetherill, a rather spoiled 18-year-old girl, takes a room at Gray Gables to attend art school while her wealthy parents are in Europe. But she spends most of her time loafing about. One day she meets the handsome Portuguese youth, Joe Bandarra, who is engaged to Mary Ellen's friend, Lolly. Lita's young admirer, Jerry, takes her and Mary Ellen and Eric to the beach in his car for a Sunday afternoon. A picture in a newspaper of some girl, strange to Mary Ellen, makes Eric oddly glum. He does not explain, and Mary Ellen is saddened. Next day he does not see her; so she attends a dance with Jim Mason, a boy she has known all her life. But later Eric appears and virtually tells her he loves her and wants to marry her. Mary Ellen notices with concern the attachment growing up between Lita and Joe Bandarra.

THE town clock struck midnight. . . . Too sleepy to house-clean any longer. . . . The wind blew in through the window, lifted the corners of the patchwork quilt. What if the quilt should sail away with her over the roofs, the masts, the steeples to some far land beyond the rim of the world? Eric wanted to take her there. . . . A new country. . . . Nothing to remind them of the past, no squirrel coats, no violets, no slippers with sparkling heels. . . . Why did those things annoy him? . . . Violets were lovely, slippers with sparkling heels. . . . The girl on the crumpled fragment of newspaper with her slanting eyes, her cool, mocking smile. . . . "She wouldn't wear a dress made of maple leaves. She wanted diamond button." . . Eric amusing the oldest Peterson, talking to her, asking her to understand. . . . She did understand. . . . Eric! . . . Of what importance were slippers with sparkling heels? She would follow him gladly in sandals made of goatskin, in felt bedroom slippers, in no shoes at all. . . . Perhaps. . . . Sometime. . . . If she kept her rose-colored glasses brightly polished. . . . "The girl with the April heart." . . . Sweet. . . . Her thoughts became less distinct. The wind lifted the corners of the quilt with a soft silken swish. The leaves outside the window brushed against the screen. Mary Ellen drifted across a calm sea into the far haven of dreams.

She dreamed that she sailed away on the patchwork quilt, out of the window, over the roofs, the trees. It was a delightful sensation. Like flying. She picked a cluster of blossoms from the top of the Tree of Heaven, fastened them in her hair. Higher and faster sailed the quilt. The moon challenged it to a race and was woefully outdistanced. Pleasant to fly, to run away from the moon, to peep in the lighthouse window. On and on sailed the quilt. The stars saw it coming and scurried out of the way. Strange music sounded in her ears. The chimes? No . . . It was lighter, showers of silver notes. Were the stars singing? Lovely the singing of a star. . . . She bent her head to listen, was astonished to discover that it was not music, but voices—two voices—people talking. Where? She peered over the edge of the quilt. Darkness below, utter darkness. The voices persisted. Someone laughed. . . . She felt that she must find out who it was. She leaned far over the edge of the quilt, slipped, clutched for it, missed, felt herself falling . . . down . . . down . . . . down. . . .

Mary Ellen opened her eyes with a start. She lay in her own familiar bed. The patchwork quilt was in its accustomed place. Dreaming! She smiled, closed her eyes, fell into a doze. Again the sound of voices roused her. She sat up, instantly wide awake. It wasn't a dream. Someone was talking beneath her window. That was curious. She glanced at her watch. Quarter of one. Who could be talking beneath her window at quarter of one? She tossed back the covers, walked to the window, looked out. The sound of voices had died away. There was no one in sight. Perhaps she had fancied it, after all. She stood for a moment at the window. What a beautiful night! Moonlight lay like pools of silver on the shadowy lawn. She thought it might be pleasant to slip out of doors, to sit in the moonlight on the steps at the edge of the lawn. Lovely nights should not be wasted in sleeping. She found her slippers, donned a quilted kimono, crept cautiously downstairs and out on the veranda.

The night was very still. There was no sound save the gentle lapping of waves against the wall. Mary Ellen stood for a moment on the veranda, looking out across the lawn. The familiar scene was transformed by the magic of moonlight into a fairyland of black and silver. She wished Eric were there to share with her the beauty of the night. Perhaps he was at that very moment gazing out from his tower window. Perhaps he was wishing too. She blew a kiss at the shadow-smudged island and started to cross the lawn.

A rustle, a low murmur of voices broke the stillness. Mary Ellen halted abruptly and glanced back toward her house. Her eyes widened incredulously; she uttered a little sound of dismay. There in the shadow of the kitchen porch were Lita and Joe Bandarra locked in an ardent embrace.

CHAPTER XIII.

The midnight adventure troubled Mary Ellen, caused her to lie awake a long while that night. She could not banish from her mind the scene she had witnessed, Lita and Joe Bandarra swaying toward each other in the shadow of the kitchen porch. If Lita had not been wearing her cream-colored coat, if the moon had not shone so brightly, she might not have noticed. But Lita was wearing the cream-colored coat and the moon shone very brightly. Mary Ellen could not help but see though she had looked away after that first startled glance and hurried into the house. One o'clock! And Lita had complained of a headache, said she was going to bed early! Perhaps Lita slipped out to meet Joe Bandarra every evening after the household had retired. They certainly had seemed to know each other rather well. The thought distressed her. Lita and Joe Bandarra!

A thousand worries flocked through her mind. How distressed Aunt Ella would be if Lita should become entangled in some mad escapade. She had been entrusted to Aunt Ella's care. Always something to fret about. Mary Ellen wondered if she should speak to Lita. After all it was none of her business. If Lita chose to amuse herself in that furtive fashion, it was her privilege to do so. But what about Lolly? Such a muddle! Mary Ellen tossed restlessly. None of her business. Lita was accustomed to having her own way. If she had taken it into her head to carry on a secret flirtation with Joe Bandarra all the king's horses and all the king's men could not stop her. Better not to say anything. Lita was able to take care of herself. Foolish to worry. She hushed the voice of anxiety and thought about pleasant things until at last she went to sleep.

But the voice of anxiety would not be permanently hushed. It spoke to her the next morning, clamored in her ears. She watched Aunt Ella moving briskly about the kitchen and thought how unhappy she would be if anything happened to Lita. Dear Aunt Ella! Mary Ellen made up her mind that she must talk to Lita. It was a duty. She nerved herself to perform it. Lita had not come down for breakfast. Apparently she intended to take a holiday from art school. Mary Ellen determined on diplomacy. She prepared a breakfast tray.

"What's that for?" asked Aunt Ella.

"I'm afraid Lita is ill. She had a headache last night."

"Dear! Dear!" murmured Aunt Molly. . . . "Perhaps I'd best go up and see."

"Never mind. I'll call you if she needs anything." Mary Ellen departed with the tray, resentment at Lita mounting in her heart.

The door at the top of the third floor stairs was closed. Mary Ellen set the tray on the landing and knocked. There was no answer. She opened the door. Lita was fast asleep, her cheek cuddled against her hand, one shoulder banded with a strap of cherry-colored ribbon emerging from the covers. Mary Ellen stood at the foot of the bed, gazed at her intently. Lita looked so young when she was asleep. That childish gesture, her cheek against her hand. The smooth oval of her face, the long dark lashes, the hair brushed back from her brow combined to make a touching picture of innocence asleep. Mary Ellen felt her resentment melting away. She stayed it with the reflection that the innocent lashes veiled sophisticated eyes, that children did not wear black lace nightgowns with cherry-colored straps. She removed a curious assortment of objects from the table beside the bed, set the tray upon it and jerked up the window shade to admit a stream of sunlight.

The dark lashes quivered, reluctantly parted. Lita blinked sleepily, discovered Mary Ellen and the tray. She smiled and languidly turned her head.

"What is it?" she asked patting back a yawn. "Christmas or somebody's birthday?"

"It's half-past ten," said Mary Ellen. "I thought perhaps you were ill."

"Ill," repeated Lita. "What about?"

"You said last night you had a headache."

"Oh!" Lita seemed to be recalling something which had happened a long while ago. "It's all right now."

"That's good," said Mary Ellen brightly. "You might as well have some breakfast anyway."

"You're an angel. I'm starved." Lita sat up against the pillows and buttered a square of toast.

Mary Ellen sat on the edge of the bed.

"Would you rather have had marmalade?" she asked searching about in her mind for a method of attack.

"I love raspberry jam." Lita plunged a spoon into the jam pot.

"Sleep well?" asked Mary Ellen.

"Great!" answered Lita, her mouth agreeably full. "Did you?" she added politely.

"Not very. I was restless."

"Too bad." Lita sipped her coffee serenely.

"It was a beautiful night," said Mary Ellen.

"Was it?"

"I went out on the lawn—about one o'clock." Mary Ellen searched Lita's countenance for signs of guilt and found none. It was as bland and guileless as that of a trusting child.

"Have a good time?"

"I discovered something."

"Meaning which?" drawled Lita.

"Your flannel coat," continued Mary Ellen indicating a crumpled object on a near-by chair, "is not a suitable garment for a midnight rendezvous—that is, if you don't want anyone to see you."

"Now you're getting to the point," Lita smiled. "I wondered how long it would take. So you saw me last night with the boy friend?"

Mary Ellen nodded and looked as severe as possible.

"The moon was beautiful." Lita refilled her cup from the silver pot. "Too nice to sleep."

"You didn't intend to sleep," said Mary Ellen severely.

"Well, now that you mention it, I think you're right."

"You said you had a headache."

"My mistake. I should have thought up a better one than that." She continued to sip the coffee. Her eyes, mocking, amused, the least bit defiant, smiled at Mary Ellen over the rim of the cup.

"Where did you go?"

"Over to the Casino."

"With Joe Bandarra?"

"Himself. Sweet Aunt Susan, how that boy can dance! We won the prize. If you'll look in the pocket of my coat, you'll find an aluminum vanity case full of pink powder and brick-dust rouge."

"You know Joe's a Portuguese," ventured Mary Ellen.

"What of it? That doesn't put lead in his shoes. Besides I like foreigners." A dreamy expression banished the mocking light in her eyes. "Don't you adore to have your hand kissed, Mary Ellen?"

"That depends upon who does the kissing. I don't think I'd enjoy it if it were done by a professional kisser of hands."

"Practice makes perfect," quoth Lita lightly. "Amateurs are so clumsy. There's Jerry, for instance——" She shrugged the cherry-colored strap off her shoulder.

"Jerry's nice," Mary Ellen insisted.

"He bores me to death. Always talking about bungalow aprons and kitchen stoves. Imagine me making biscuits!"

"I can't," said Mary Ellen and she added gravely, "I don't think Aunt Ella would like you to go to dances with Joe.

"Are you going to scold?" Lita smiled engagingly over the rim of her cup.

"You deserve it."

"Now see here, little white lamb. Don't you worry about me. I know my way around. Besides that I know all about the handsome boy friend. He's wild and he's dashing, a regular village Don Juan. He's more or less engaged to the girl with red hair and the weird taste in perfume. But he is amusing. He sometimes trips up on his pronouns but never on the dance floor. He has the most marvelous eyes I ever saw off the movie screen but after all, he's nothing in my young life, grandmother, except a pair of dancing feet. Stop frowning. It spoils your pretty face."

Mary Ellen smiled and felt immensely relieved. Lita couldn't be falling in love with Joe Bandarra or she would not be able to discuss him so airily. He was merely a diversion, a pair of dancing feet. What was a kiss in the moonlight? To Lita it was only one more kiss. Foolish to worry. She drew a long, long sigh of relief.

"It's hard to scold you," she said.

"Now that's all over," said Lita cheerfully, "I'll tell you something amusing. Last night Joe and I were invited to dance at the artists' ball. What do they call it?"

"The Fakirs' Frolic, you mean?"

"Something like that. A man asked us last night. Thrilling?"

"It will be fun."

"Do you go?"

"I never have. It's given by the artists. I'm a 'native,' you know."

"Eric will take you."

"Perhaps." Mary Ellen's eyes sparkled at the thought.

"We'll do a tango. It's only a week off. I'll have to find a costume. Will you help me?"

Mary Ellen promised. They plunged into a discussion of costumes which lasted until dinner time. Lita seemed interested in nothing but her approaching performance. Mary Ellen's last little worry vanished. No, not quite the last. There remained hidden away in her mind a little worry for Lolly who might not be so pleased to have Joe dancing with Lita. But the summer was nearly over. In two more weeks Lita would return to New York and that would be that. She hoped Lolly would not be hurt. And Jerry—Oh dear! Life was confusing. No matter how carefully things were arranged someone was bound to be hurt. . . .

She forgot even to worry for Lolly. Eric came at dinner time. His hair was rumpled, his tie askew. There were streaks of paint on his trousers.

"You're painting the panel in the coffee-house," said Mary Ellen as soon as she saw him.

"How did you know?"

"Your hair is rumpled."

"Of course. I ought to wear a skull cap."

"Or a tam-o'-shanter. I thought all artists did."

"I'm not an artist." He smiled. "I'm merely making a gesture to amuse you. Balancing a peanut on my nose."

"Funny!"

"Will you come over this afternoon and watch me paint?"

"Do you need me?"

"I always need you." His voice was gentle, his gold-flecked eyes smiled at her.

"To pose, I mean," said Mary Ellen.

"No. This isn't a partrait. It's just for fun. I'm slapping on paint at a furious rate."

"Then I'd better help Ruby. She's making jelly this afternoon."

"I'll miss you."

"Me, too!"

"And you a school teacher!" teased Eric. "I think the directors should be informed."

"Will you come and tell me as soon as you've finished?" asked Mary Ellen.

"The very minute." Her hand lay in his for a brief happy moment. Then Ruby appeared in the doorway, and swung the dinner bell vigorously.

"The call of the kitchen! Good-bye, Eric. You'll let me know when it's finished."

"Immediately. Good-bye, pretty girl."

He strode off around the corner of the house. Heedless of the call of the dinner bell, Mary Ellen lingered on the veranda; listened to the singing of the birds in her heart. Worries had long ago vanished. Lita and Lolly were shadows. When Eric was with her everyone else in the world was a shadow. . . . Lita. . . . Lolly. . . . Silly to fret about other people's affairs. . . . That lock of hair standing up at the back of his head. . . . Funny! . . . Sweet! . . .

"My happy day, Mary Ellen!" Ruby, too substantial for a shadow, loomed in the doorway. "Do you want the soup to freeze to the plates? I'm glad to say love never went to my head!"

* * * * * * * *

The jelly was firm and cold before Eric returned. Mary Ellen was hanging the dish towels on the rack behind the stove when she heard him speak to Grandfather on the kitchen porch. She dropped the last towel and rushed to the door.

"Is it finished?"

"Yes and I'm starving."

"Haven't you had anything to eat?"

"Some crackers and a crumb or two of sponge cake."

"Is that all!" exclaimed Aunt Ella. "Come right in here."

He obeyed with alacrity, pulled up a chair to the kitchen table.

"You don't mind the kitchen?" asked Aunt Ella bustling about to take care of Eric.

"I like kitchens," he answered, "and I haven't seen a real one for years."

"You don't say!" fluttered Aunt Molly. "Well, that's too bad. Seems as though folks have missed a lot who don't eat in the kitchen once in a while." And she trotted off to get him a napkin, her best knife and fork, and the spoon with "Molly" engraved in the bowl.

Aunt Ella and Ruby produced enough food to feed a dozen famished refugees. And Ruby, who admired Eric immensely, opened a jar of the new jelly though she had refused to give Grandfather even a taste for supper. Observing that Eric was in kindly and capable hands Mary Ellen went upstairs to change her dress. When she returned he was combing his hair in front of the kitchen mirror and sending Ruby into gales of hilarity with his nonsense.

"I got a stitch in my side from laughin'!" she gasped. "He's more fun than a circus!"

"Thank you," said Eric and smiled at the mirth-stricken Ruby. "That's a real compliment. I have an enormous admiration for circuses. The only thing I like better is Mary Ellen in that strawberry ice-cream dress." And he looked at her so admiringly that Ruby was overcome. She vanished into the pantry and dropped a sentimental tear on the jelly jars.

"Can I see the panel?" asked Mary Ellen. "Right now?"

"Not until after dark. It will be nicer by candle-light. I hope you won't be disappointed. Will you like me just as well if the peanut falls off?"

"Of course. . . . Silly!"

"What!"

"I mean . . . darling!"

"That's better. I don't approve of disrespect from children." He kissed her right there in the kitchen with Aunt Molly moving around in the next room. Ruby popped her head through the pantry door in time to witness the scene. She promptly popped it back in again and dropped another tear on the jelly jars.

They sat on the kitchen porch with Grandfather to wait until it should grow dark. The old man pointed an accusing finger at the heap of paint tubes and brushes that Eric had left on the step.

"Belong to you?" he asked.

Eric admitted that they did.

"You one of these everlastin' artists?"

Eric confessed that he sometimes sketched a bit.

"Blamed if I ain't lost all faith in human nature," sputtered Capt'n Hollis. "Time was when I could judge a man or a boat first off without any mistake. Durned if I hadn't set you down for a sensible party. What you want to mess with that stuff for?"

Eric explained that he enjoyed it.

"Well, everyone to his own tastes." Grandfather shook his head. "But it's considerable of a disappointment to me. I thought you'd be too much of a man to waste time daubin' up canvas as ought to be used for sails. I don't know as I'm willin' Mary Ellen should be friends with you now that I've found out what kind of a feller you are." He scowled fiercely but Mary Ellen saw that his eyes were twinkling beneath the bristling brows.

"Isn't it possible to be a man and an artist at the same time?" Eric asked.

"It don't generally work out that way. From what I've noticed the fellers that paint pictures had ought to wear petticoats. There was one here last summer that sprayed himself with perfumery. Durned if he didn't smell like a funeral wreath. He crooked his little finger when he drank out of a cup and I don't doubt he wore tattin' on his underwear."

Eric laughed.

"Not guilty, Capt'n Hollis," he said.

"Well I should hope you ain't. But you better look out. Seems like it get's 'em sooner or later. Sam Arnold's boy was a nice enough young feller 'til he went off to art school in the city. Durned if he ain't a he dressmaker now. Wears pink shirts and calls himself Madame somebody or other. Poor Sam's that mortified he don't take any comfort in life. Still I reckon there's hope for you. Anybody that can handle a sailboat the way you do ain't likely to turn into a droopin' lily. But you stick to the boats, son. They're a heap more satisfyin' than daubs of paint."

"I'm fond of boats," said Eric, "and I promise you I won't turn into a drooping lily. I'd like to make a sketch of you, if you don't mind."

"Mind!" fumed Grandfather. "Why I'd be the laughin' stock of the whole town. Posin' at my age! If Sam Arnold and the other old timers should hear of it, I'm feared they'd come over and kiss me. By Godfrey! Posin' for a picture at my age! I'd as soon take dancin' lessons!"

He scowled very fiercely indeed but Mary Ellen suspected that he was pleased. She was sure of it when the old man said as they rose to leave the porch:

"Don't know but I'd as soon have you make my picture as anybody. Do you reckon you could do it somewheres in private? Over on the island, say. If anybody was to catch on, I'd never live it down and I'm an old man to have my head bowed low with disgrace. By Godfrey! I ain't sure but I'd like to see what kind of a picture you'd make of a seamed old chart like mine!"

Eric promised him that no one should know unless he wished. They left the old man flattered and pleased, softly chuckling.

"Shall we take Madame Cavella?" Eric asked.

"She'd love it. Do you mind, Eric?"

"I like her."

"She's a darling," Mary Ellen agreed.

So they asked Madame Cavella and because Miss Lillie Belle was sitting beside her on the veranda, they asked her too. Mr. Jackson came out of the house just then and was invited to join the party. Jerry's roadster was drawn up at the curb. He and Lita were about to drive off. Mary Ellen asked them if they would like to visit the coffee-house. They scrambled out of the car and joined the procession.

"Good grief!" moaned Eric. "It looks like a parade!"

"Do you mind?" asked Mary Ellen anxiously.

"Why don't you blow the fire whistle? There may be a few people in Mayport who aren't with us."

"Do you mind, Eric . . . Really?"

"Lord no! I'm teasing you. It's your peanut anyway." And he drew her hand through his arm.

There were no guests in the coffee-house. The little waitress named Peggy and the girl with the beautiful eyes were making sandwiches in the tiny kitchen. They came out to welcome the visitors. Someone lighted candles, many candles, placed them on a table beneath the panel. Mary Ellen looked, felt a lump in her throat, tears on her lashes. Lovely! Was she as pretty as that? Eric had painted the doorway of Tarpaper Palace, the step, the trailing trumpet vines and on the step the figure of a girl with long fair braids falling over her shoulders, a cluster of scarlet berries fastened in her hair. She wore a moss-green skirt, a tight green bodice buttoned with acorns. She was sewing on something which vaguely resembled a gentleman's shirt. Her head drooped slightly, dark lashes curled against her cheeks, a lovely, secret smile curved her painted lips. Below the painting a name was traced in letters as delicate as grape-vine tendrils and the name was . . . "Wendy."

"Like it?" asked Eric softly.

"It's lovely!" She whispered under a chorus of admiring exclamations led by Miss Lillie Belle's flute like voice. "It's like looking into an enchanted mirror which makes you beautiful. Am I as pretty as that?"

"Much prettier. That's badly done. No subtlety. I'll do it on canvas sometime and then you'll know how lovely you are. I can do it, Mary Ellen. I haven't quite forgotten."

And the happy confident tone of his voice pleased her as much as the painting. She slipped her hand through the curve of his arm, smiled up at him with shining eyes.

Everyone admired the panel. Madame Cavella thumped Eric heartily upon the back. Lita and Jerry marveled, very much impressed. Miss Lillie Belle fluttered like a purple striped morning-glory in a raging gale, informed the assembled company that she had suspected Eric was an important person. She spoke of the encounter on the Rockville dock but hesitated to mention the loss of her slipper. It hardly seemed proper since there were gentlemen present. . . . Mr. Jackson discussed technical points, spoke knowingly of tone and perspective. The little waitress looked at Eric with round admiring eyes, said his was the nicest panel in the coffee-house. The girl with the gentle manner thanked him for his addition to their collection and asked him to sign the panel. Eric looked pleased and ashamed and rather uncomfortable. "I hate to be pawed in public," he whispered to Mary Ellen. She patted his arm reassuringly and was very, very proud.

They gathered about a table. The little waitress served fudge cake and coffee in honor of the occasion. Madame Cavella called for ginger ale, proposed a number of amusing toasts to Eric, to Mary Ellen and the success of the coffee-house. Miss Lillie Belle declared over and over again that it was no more than she had expected and Lita commissioned Eric to do her portrait at once. It was all very gay and exciting. Mary Ellen was sure that life could hold in store for her no moment more thrilling. She sat on a nail keg beside Eric, starry-eyed, ecstatic and felt that she must positively crow.

The Close Relationship Between A FOREMAN & CLARK SUIT And The Man Who Wears It

▲ ▲ ▲ ONE of the notable features of relationship between a Foreman & Clark garment and the man who wears it is that they were made for each other. Neither stereotyped nor too studied in its lines. One which fits and becomes and which conforms to the exact demands of the man and the mode. A garment which has no superior for fit or equal for style.

We make our clothes the way you buy yours, governing our designs by what we want, not allowing others to do our choosing. That we differ from other clothiers is shown by the following outline of a few of the things we do that others do not do. We make as fine a suit as can be made in modern sunlit factories by modern American hand workers who enjoy their work.

We buy our woolens after exhaustive laboratory tests for sun and moisture resistance; friction tests for wear and mechanical pulling tests for strength. This saves us money. We do not experiment with unknown materials. This saves you money and annoyance.

Foreman & Clark Clothes are sold in upstairs stores from coast to coast. We save half a million dollars in rent annually. This also saves you money.

We hold no sales. A Foreman & Clark suit is sold at a profit of 55 cents.* With our volume of business it is ample profit. This too saves you money.

Everyone pays the same price for Foreman & Clark Clothes. We play no favorites. No one buys for anything but cash. To give credit would add at least 15% to our cost. Our customers enjoy this saving too.

In short the reason you save at least $10 on every Foreman & Clark garment is because we make our own clothes in our own sunlit factories, sell them and guarantee them. We sacrifice profits for quantity—but not quality for profit. We make less profit per unit but do not save on the unit cost. Economizing on rent but not on space.

We are frank about our business methods. And by the way that is the close relationship we enjoy with all our customers. ▲ ▲ ▲ ▲ ▲
